Big Four Conference Reaches Impasse

Dulles Blasts Kremlin Plan For Germany

Terms Unacceptable; Western Proposals Rejected By Russia

BERLIN, Feb. 4 (AP)—The Soviet Union brusquely rejected tonight the West's plan for German unification in freedom and demanded unconditional acceptance of a "neutralized" Germany in a Communist grip.

Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov virtually dug the grave of the Big Four conference with a totally unacceptable five-point Kremlin plan for "solving" the German question.

U. S. Secretary of State Dulles denounced the Russian terms—which included withdrawal of all foreign troops before a Communist-devised German governmental election—as exposing all Western Europe to Soviet armies which would retain a Polish frontier springboard 50 miles east of Berlin.

Would End German Defense

Said Dulles: "The Molotov plan would end any defense of West Germany. If Germany were thus exposed we must recognize that the whole of Western Europe would similarly be exposed."

French Foreign Minister Bidault failed to budge Molotov's resistance to a free German election with a plea that the conference quit arguing and get down to work.

British Foreign Secretary Eden, author of the West's unity plan, listened to a fiery rebuff by Molotov which ran two hours with the English and French translations.

Then Eden noted that the Russian had turned down the Western plan apparently for two reasons:

1. Because man sometimes was evil, he therefore should not be free.

2. Because parliamentary institutions sometimes were abused by totalitarians, they therefore were bad.

Molotov Uses Stark Words

Molotov put his case for imposing 50 per cent Communists in a provisional all-German government with these stark words:

"We must not close our eyes to the fact that in Germany Hitler has his followers.

"We cannot allow the Fascist monster, with the help of parliamentary procedures, again to take up a ruling position in a united Germany."

Categorically, he refused the least shred of agreement to the Western project for letting Germans, protected from intimidation even in the Soviet zone, elect their own representatives to write a constitution, form a government and make an undictated peace.

TRAPPED BY "LUCY"—Kenneth Darling, 31, an ex-convict, is shown after being booked on suspicion of burglary in Hollywood following a lead supplied by Lucille Ball. The actress allegedly saw him leaving the dressing room of her husband, Desi Arnaz, and gave police a description of him. Authorities said Darling, carrying a script under his arm, had roamed through motion picture and TV studios without interference, stealing from the dressing rooms.

U. S. Bolsters West Europe Atomic Punch

More Far-Reaching Nuclear Guns Sent To German Frontier

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (AP)—The Army is adding to its atomic punch for the defense of Western Europe by sending still more far-reaching nuclear cannon to the strategically vital frontier of Western Germany.

It disclosed today that to the original six atomic cannon sent last fall, it subsequently had dispatched other 280 millimeter gun units, and to these, a spokesman said today, another unit will be added, probably within the next three months.

Unit Is Alerted

The exact number of guns or units which have gone since last September was not revealed. A spokesman said today the unit which has been alerted for movement to Europe in the next few months is the 264th Field Artillery Batallion from Fort Sill, Okla.

The 280 millimeter gun can fire either standard ammunition or shells with nuclear explosive war heads.

Gun Has 20-Mile Range

The Army lays emphasis on the range of the big gun, the fact that it can deliver atomic explosives on an enemy in weather conditions which ground bomb-carrying planes, and on the extreme mobility of the huge, 85-ton gun and its towing tractor units.

Using the full, 280 millimeter size shell (that is equivalent to about 11 inches) the cannon can fire about 20 miles.

Freedom Day

John Hvasta (above), Czech-born naturalized American citizen, is free again after having beaten the Czech Communists in a fabulous game of hide-and-seek. He escaped from a Czech prison last October, was sheltered in the U. S. embassy in Prague and yesterday crossed into Germany and freedom. At left is the Michael Hvasta family of Hillside, N. J., shown after receiving the news that their son and brother was free again. Left to right are Mr. Hvasta, Stephen, 23, brother of the freed American, and his mother.

Ex-Navy Man Flees Prison, Wins 'Release'

Reaches Embassy Refuge After Hiding Out For 21 Months

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (AP)—John Hvasta, a 26-year-old American, emerged triumphantly from behind the Iron Curtain today after beating the secret police of Communist Czechoslovakia in a fabulous game of hide-and-seek.

A saga rivalling anything between the covers of a suspense thriller came to light after Prague's Red radio broadcast a brief announcement that Hvasta, who had been sentenced to 10 years for "espionage," had been "released" from prison and ordered expelled.

But the State Department officially disclosed that Hvasta escaped from prison over two years ago; that four months ago he reached the American Embassy in Prague, where he was given shelter; and that after long negotiations the Czech government had finally consented to his departure from Czechoslovakia.

Fled Prison In 1952

It was on Jan. 2, 1952 that Hvasta escaped from the bleak Leopoldov Prison near Bratislava. For 21 months he managed to live underground in Czechoslovakia.

Some time during that period he made his way from Bratislava to Prague, a distance of 175 miles through mountainous and closely policed territory, and last Oct. 2 he got safely inside the American Embassy.

He was given asylum there until yesterday. With permission of the Czech goverment, he left Prague by automobile at 6:32 a.m. (EST) today. Two American diplomats accompanied him on his return to freedom.

Marries While In Prison

As if the tale needed any embroidery, the State Department confirmed that young Hvasta was married while he was in prison in 1949. His wife, Gabrilla, is a Czech girl whose whereabouts could not be ascertained immediately.

Unconfirmed was a report from Czech refugee sources here that Hvasta was wounded by Czech border guards while trying to escape into Austria, which is only a short distance from Bratislava. This was said to be the explanation of why he went into hiding and finally made his way to Prague.

Hvasta, whose parents live in Hillside, N. J., is a native of Czechoslovakia but became a naturalized American citizen in 1944 and served in the U. S. Navy. He returned to Czechoslovakia in 1948 as a student and was employed briefly at the American consulate general in Bratislava prior to his arrest on espionage charges in October of that year.

First Class Mail Rate Boost Voted By House Group

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (AP)—The administration won the first round in its fight for higher postal rates today when the House Post Office Committee agreed to raise the cost of mailing first class letters from three to four cents.

The action may be reversed, however, when the committee completes its study of second and third class rates and then votes on a bill to raise all three. This may come tomorrow or Saturday.

Applies To Out-Of-Town Mail

A four cent rate would apply only to out of town mail. Letters mailed for local carrier delivery within a city would still take a three cent stamp, and the two cent rate for "drop letters"—letters for delivery in the same office in which they are mailed, would remain unchanged.

The big bulk of first class mail, however, is "non-local."

Rep. Gross (R-Iowa), who opposed the increase to four cents, told newsmen "I doubt it will go through the House." He added:

159 Million More A Year

Revised figures laid before the House group indicated the increase in the out of town letter mail rate would bring in an estimated 159 million dollars more a year.

Postmaster General Summerfield, who urged that rates all along the line be raised to help overcome an operating deficit expected to total about 500 million dollars this fiscal year ending June 30, had estimated the yield from an increase in first class rates at 150 million.

Britain Offered Billion In Trade Deals By Russia

MOSCOW, Feb. 4 (AP)—The Soviet Union today offered more than a billion dollars worth of contracts to British industries for delivery from 1955 to 1957. It was the biggest gesture thus far in Russia's widely publicized campaign to revive East-West trade.

The offer was followed several hours later by the announcement of a British ship builder here that he had signed a separate contract to build 20 fishing trawlers for the Russians for almost 17 million dollars.

Non-Strategic Trade Welcomed

(First comment from the British Board of Trade in London said "We welcome any increase in trade with Russia, provided it is within the non-strategic field."

(U. S. officials in Washington declared the Soviet offer looked like a major move to persuade the British to relax their strict controls on strategic shipments to the Soviet bloc. The officials expressed confidence the British government would move warily and refuse to ship any equipment which would add to Russia's war making potential. The officials said most of the items sought from the British include specific products completely embargoed or restricted in some way.)

Offer Involves Machinery

The cash-for-goods Soviet offer of 400 million pounds sterling ($1,120,000,000) involves varied equipment including tankers, industrial plant equipment and railroad equipment. It was transmitted by Foreign Trade Minister Ivan G. Kabanov to a delegation of 32 visiting British businessmen, along with a breakdown of equipment the Russians said they could use.

The British delegation—biggest private enterprise group to visit Moscow since World War II—has been conferring with leading Soviet foreign and domestic trade officials to ascertain what goods Britain can sell Russia, as well as possible products for imports.

Test Vote On Bricker Amendment Blocked

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (AP)—Republican leaders in the Senate were unable to obtain a vote on any phase of the Bricker amendment today, as the chamber rounded out its seventh day of debate on the disputed proposal to check the President's treaty-making powers.

With a final showdown apparently postponed for 10 days or so, Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich) said he would like a vote on one change he and other GOP leaders want in the constitutional amendment proposed by Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio).

But when Sen. Morse (Ind-Ore) objected the preliminary vote was blocked. Later it was reported the senators reached an informal agreement not to take any test votes tonight. The Senate then recessed until tomorrow.

Bricker Modifies Plan

The first section of Bricker's amendment provides that any part of a treaty in conflict with the Constitution shall be of no force or effect. Ferguson, chairman of the GOP Policy Committee, asked for a vote on an amendment that would make this applicable to executive agreements made by the President as well.

Morse said he regarded it as serious amendment and added he felt action on it should be deferred until tomorrow so that senators would have a chance to study today's debate overnight.

Earlier in the day, Bricker introduced a modified version of his amendment, declaring he was making an important concession to the Eisenhower administration.

"Which Clause" Dropped

The new plan laid before the Senate drops Bricker's controversial "which clause"—the section President Eisenhower contends would restore to the states their 18th century right to nullify treaties.

In its place Bricker substituted this provision:

"A treaty or other international agreement shall become effective as internal law in the United States only through legislation by the Congress unless, in advising and consenting to a treaty, the Senate, by a vote of two-thirds of the senators present and voting, shall provide that such treaty may become effective as internal law without legislation by the Congress."

There was no immediate indication that the White House would warm up to this modification. Eisenhower said yesterday he would not compromise one bit in any way which would change the traditional balance of power among the three branches of federal government.

GOP Approves Record Off-Year Election Budget

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (AP) — A record budget of $3,800,000 was approved by the Republican National Finance Committee today for the 1954 congressional campaign.

This is twice the $1,950,000 goal of the last off-year election, in 1950, and the Republicans hope to double the more than two million party contributors of 1952.

In announcing the decision, Finance Chairman F. Peavey Heffelfinger, of Minneapolis said the 1954 budget anticipates expanded activities by the National, Senate and House Campaign Committees plus increasing expenditures on television.

"President Eisenhower has expressed determination to broaden the base of the Republican party," Heffelfinger said. "Widespread public approval which his program for America has received indicates that he is succeeding beyond our fondest expectations. It is our belief that our money raising effort must match this splendid progress and we are determined to do it."

The budget approved today is the highest the committee has approved for a strictly congressional campaign. It compares with $6,600,000 for the 1952 presidential campaign and $1,900,000 for the non-election year of 1953.

Officials refused to say how much each of the campaign units—National, Senate and House—would be allotted under the new budget.

Yugoslav Refugee Wins Sons' Custody

NEW YORK, Feb. 4 (AP)—A court today barred the mother of two small boys from taking them to her native Yugoslavia and awarded custody to the father, a Yugoslav seeking asylum here.

State Supreme Court Justice Thomas L. J. Corcoran said his ruling was in the best interests of the children.

Slavoljub Djurovic, 29, the father, a former office manager of Jugometal, a Yugoslav exporting agency, had brought a writ of habeas corpus to prevent his wife, Zivka, 27, from taking their boys Goran, 6, and Srdjan, 4, back to the Communist-ruled country.

W. Va. Jobless Claims Up

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 4 (AP)—Jobless benefit claims rose last month to the biggest month volume since August, 1949.

Director Cabell S. Davis of the State Employment Security Department said 110,616 claims were processed in January, and the agency paid out $2,048,038 in unemployment compensation.

Benson Says Dip In Farm Prices Is Largely Over

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (AP)—Democrats opened a heavy attack on President Eisenhower's farm program today even as Secretary of Agriculture Benson declared that the long dip in farm income is "largely behind us."

Testifying before the Senate-House Economic Committee, Benson took issue with the "pessimistic view" that the 17 per cent drop in farm prices over the last three years is the harbinger of "a general depression."

"The latest price report of the department showed a widespread improvement, averaging 4 per cent from mid-November to mid-January," Benson said.

"For 1954, we believe that agricultural prices and agricultural incomes will be maintained fairly close to those of 1953."

Benson waged virtually a lone battle as he urged the lawmakers to approve what he called the administration's "middle-of-road" farm policies.

AFL, Administration Relations On Mend

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 4 (AP) — Strained AFL relations with the Eisenhower administration appeared on the mend today even with AFL leaders still unhappy over many administration policies.

Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell came from Washington for a private peace huddle with the AFL powerful Executive Council. Afterward both Mitchell and council members said the visit was "very friendly and constructive" even though they disagreed on several points.

AFL President George Meany told reporters meanwhile that he has settled a feud with Foreign Operations Administrator Harold Stassen and now is willing to serve on a special labor advisory board which Stassen is establishing in the FOA.

Three Children Drown

SOUTH HAVEN, Mich., Feb. 4 (AP)—Three small children, walking hand-in-hand, plunged to death through the thin ice of a small pond today.

The victims were Robert Roy Kirchner, 5, his brother Timmy Lee, 4, and Michael James Holman, 5, all of South Haven.

Stripper "Fed-Up" With Job Wins Suit

BALTIMORE, Feb. 4 (AP) — Pat (Amber) Jalliday, stripteaser who says she's "fed up" with her job, today won her suit to void a 50 per cent management contract with Jack A. White of Hyattsville.

The slender red-haired performer testified she was continuing in show business only to pay off income taxes she thought White had paid for her.

Miss Halliday recently became Mrs. Robert Lochrae of Baltimore, a position in which she would like to continue on a full time basis, she said.

Battle For Laos Capital Is Near

SAIGON, Indochina, Feb. 4 (AP) — The French set up a defense arc roughly 50 miles north of Luang Prabang today in an attempt to block a three-pronged Vietminh thrust aimed at the royal Laotian capital. A showdown battle appeared near in the surrounding tiger-infested jungle for control of the city of 150,000.

The emergency perimeter was established after the Communist-led foe seized four French forts guarding the approaches to Luang Prabang and speared to within 53 miles of the capital.

The French fear its fall would have repercussions not only in Indochina but elsewhere in the world.

Increased Vietminh activity already has aroused concern in Washington. President Eisenhower yesterday described the war as critical, in view of the "number of people in Indochina who have not committed themselves to the struggle."

Committee Approves Alaskan Statehood

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (AP) — A bill to grant statehood to Alaska cleared the Senate Interior Committee by a 14-1 vote today.

Chairman Butler (R-Neb) said the measure will be sent to the Senate within a few days to await action there.

The committee voted 12-3 in favor of statehood for Hawaii last week. Efforts to combine the two bills are almost certain when they reach the Senate floor.

Western Big Three Hears Russian Music

BERLIN, Feb. 4 (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov is host to the Western Big Three tonight and has arranged an evening of Russian music.

The party will be in the Soviet embassy and there will be folk songs by basso Ivan Petrov, chamber music by violinist David Oistrakh and pianist Emil Gillels, all from Moscow, and a ballet dancing couple from Leningrad.

McKeldin Signs First Death Warrant, Dooming Murderer

The governor signed his first death warrant since taking office three years ago and set the week of Feb. 15 for Madison's hanging.

He declared evidence "fully supports" the Baltimore Negro's conviction of first-degree murder.

McKeldin called the shooting of Zelig Gerstein in his North Fremont Avenue store "a killing in the course of a holdup."

At his trial, Madison said his automatic pistol went off in a scuffle with Gerstein on April 27, 1951, but denied he had tried to rob or intended to shoot the 50-year-old grocer.

Only once before has McKeldin permitted a man to hang. Then his course was to refuse to intervene in the execution of Lott Glover, 33-year-old Washington Negro, last Aug. 28.

Madison was convicted when the law required governors to sign death warrants and set the fatal date. Since then criminal court judges have been assigned that function, although the governor may still order clemency.

The governor has lifted seven death sentences.

Madison's hanging will end a 28-month stay in the penitentiary death house. It also will leave G. Edward Grammer alone there. Grammer is taking his conviction of wife slaying to the Supreme Court.

Madison, whose sentence was affirmed by the Court of Appeals in April, 1952, will be only the second man to hang at the penitentiary in almost five years.

'Easier Money' Action Taken By Federal Reserve Board

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board in an "easier money" move to spur lagging business, tonight announced lower discount rates in five federal reserve districts.

The board said it has authorized the federal reserve banks of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, St. Louis and San Francisco to lower their rate from 2 to 1¾ per cent, effective tomorrow.

An informed source said the same rate probably will be extended to the seven other districts soon. The cut reversed the board's action of a year ago, when the discount rate was raised from 1¾ to 2 per cent, as an anti-inflation move.

The discount rate is the rate of interest at which member banks may borrow from the federal reserve system. Lowering the rate makes it cheaper and easier for member banks, which include most of the nation's commercial banks, to borrow money which they in turn can lend to businessmen and the public.

However, present bank conditions indicate that in permitting a lower discount rate at this time, the reserve board may have had its eye principally on the psychological effect in the business world.

Bank loans are half a billion dollars lower now than they were at this time a year ago. Federal borrowing has decreased. For the past nine months, the Federal Reserve Board has been supplying money to bank reserves—nearly a billion dollars in all—by purchases of government securities.

Sydney Gives Queen, Duke Wild Reception

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 4 (AP)—Many women climbed lamp posts to blow kisses at Queen Elizabeth II and screaming bobbysoxers almost mobbed the Duke of Edinburgh in a wild but happy Australian reception to British royalty today.

It was too much for some of the women and 150 fainted in a crowd which broke through a police barrier at a restaurant where the Queen attended a public luncheon with representatives of women's organizations.

Monster Mechanical Man Ideal For This Hectic Age

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (AP)—The ideal man for this hectic age arrived in the nation's capital today.

He's a mechanical man who can walk, talk, follow spoken directions, smoke, play the piano, tell the difference between red and green and count up to 10 on his fingers.

But what makes him perfect for these troublsome days is this: He has no brain, and hence hasn't a worry in the world.

The fellow's name is Elektro, and he's a monster. A 260 pounder, 7 feet tall, he's made of aluminum and painted bronze. With him is his faithful Sparko, a mechanical dog which can sit up, bark and wage his tail.

Elektro is a direct descendant of other mechanical men that J. M. Barnett began building in 1930 for Westinghouse out in Mansfield, Ohio.

The new monster, with his built-in, electronic habits, is here to help dedicate a new radio-television building, Broadcast House, and his first public appearance was at a Kiwanis luncheon.

It takes two trucks to tote Elektro, his control gadgetry and Sparko's doghouse, and they were delayed by fog over the mountains. When newsmen and photographers arrived, engineers were still busy adjusting their boy.

From time to time a test was run and Elektro would say: "Chlorophyll is green. It is the color of money."

"We made this schedule too tight," a publicity man said. "As soon as we finish here, we got to set him up all over again. He's on television tonight."

"Chlorophyll is green," Elektro said. "It is the color of money."

Earlier in the day, Bricker introduced a modified version of his amendment, declaring he was making an important concession to the Eisenhower administration.

"Which Clause" Dropped

The new plan laid before the Senate drops Bricker's controversial "which clause"—the section President Eisenhower contends would restore to the states their 18th century right to nullify treaties.

In its place Bricker substituted this provision:

"A treaty or other international agreement shall become effective as internal law in the United States only through legislation by the Congress unless, in advising and consenting to a treaty, the Senate, by a vote of two-thirds of the senators present and voting, shall provide that such treaty may become effective as internal law without legislation by the Congress."

There was no immediate indication that the White House would warm up to this modification. Eisenhower said yesterday he would not compromise one bit in any way which would change the traditional balance of power among the three branches of federal government.

Stripper "Fed-Up" With Job Wins Suit

BALTIMORE, Feb. 4 (AP) — Pat (Amber) Jalliday, stripteaser who says she's "fed up" with her job, today won her suit to void a 50 per cent management contract with Jack A. White of Hyattsville.

The slender red-haired performer testified she was continuing in show business only to pay off income taxes she thought White had paid for her.

Miss Halliday recently became Mrs. Robert Lochrae of Baltimore, a position in which she would like to continue on a full time basis, she said.

Battle For Laos Capital Is Near

SAIGON, Indochina, Feb. 4 (AP) — The French set up a defense arc roughly 50 miles north of Luang Prabang today in an attempt to block a three-pronged Vietminh thrust aimed at the royal Laotian capital. A showdown battle appeared near in the surrounding tiger-infested jungle for control of the city of 150,000.

The emergency perimeter was established after the Communist-led foe seized four French forts guarding the approaches to Luang Prabang and speared to within 53 miles of the capital.

The French fear its fall would have repercussions not only in Indochina but elsewhere in the world.

Increased Vietminh activity already has aroused concern in Washington. President Eisenhower yesterday described the war as critical, in view of the "number of people in Indochina who have not committed themselves to the struggle."

Sydney Gives Queen, Duke Wild Reception

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 4 (AP)—Many women climbed lamp posts to blow kisses at Queen Elizabeth II and screaming bobbysoxers almost mobbed the Duke of Edinburgh in a wild but happy Australian reception to British royalty today.

It was too much for some of the women and 150 fainted in a crowd which broke through a police barrier at a restaurant where the Queen attended a public luncheon with representatives of women's organizations.

GOP Approves Record Off-Year Election Budget

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (AP) — A record budget of $3,800,000 was approved by the Republican National Finance Committee today for the 1954 congressional campaign.

This is twice the $1,950,000 goal of the last off-year election, in 1950, and the Republicans hope to double the more than two million party contributors of 1952.

In announcing the decision, Finance Chairman F. Peavey Heffelfinger, of Minneapolis said the 1954 budget anticipates expanded activities by the National, Senate and House Campaign Committees plus increasing expenditures on television.

"President Eisenhower has expressed determination to broaden the base of the Republican party," Heffelfinger said. "Widespread public approval which his program for America has received indicates that he is succeeding beyond our fondest expectations. It is our belief that our money raising effort must match this splendid progress and we are determined to do it."

The budget approved today is the highest the committee has approved for a strictly congressional campaign. It compares with $6,600,000 for the 1952 presidential campaign and $1,900,000 for the non-election year of 1953.

Officials refused to say how much each of the campaign units—National, Senate and House—would be allotted under the new budget.

Committee Approves Alaskan Statehood

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (AP) — A bill to grant statehood to Alaska cleared the Senate Interior Committee by a 14-1 vote today.

Chairman Butler (R-Neb) said the measure will be sent to the Senate within a few days to await action there.

The committee voted 12-3 in favor of statehood for Hawaii last week. Efforts to combine the two bills are almost certain when they reach the Senate floor.

Yugoslav Refugee Wins Sons' Custody

NEW YORK, Feb. 4 (AP)—A court today barred the mother of two small boys from taking them to her native Yugoslavia and awarded custody to the father, a Yugoslav seeking asylum here.

State Supreme Court Justice Thomas L. J. Corcoran said his ruling was in the best interests of the children.

Slavoljub Djurovic, 29, the father, a former office manager of Jugometal, a Yugoslav exporting agency, had brought a writ of habeas corpus to prevent his wife, Zivka, 27, from taking their boys Goran, 6, and Srdjan, 4, back to the Communist-ruled country.

'Easier Money' Action Taken By Federal Reserve Board

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board in an "easier money" move to spur lagging business, tonight announced lower discount rates in five federal reserve districts.

The board said it has authorized the federal reserve banks of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, St. Louis and San Francisco to lower their rate from 2 to 1¾ per cent, effective tomorrow.

An informed source said the same rate probably will be extended to the seven other districts soon. The cut reversed the board's action of a year ago, when the discount rate was raised from 1¾ to 2 per cent, as an anti-inflation move.

The discount rate is the rate of interest at which member banks may borrow from the federal reserve system. Lowering the rate makes it cheaper and easier for member banks, which include most of the nation's commercial banks, to borrow money which they in turn can lend to businessmen and the public.

However, present bank conditions indicate that in permitting a lower discount rate at this time, the reserve board may have had its eye principally on the psychological effect in the business world.

Bank loans are half a billion dollars lower now than they were at this time a year ago. Federal borrowing has decreased. For the past nine months, the Federal Reserve Board has been supplying money to bank reserves—nearly a billion dollars in all—by purchases of government securities.

McKeldin Signs First Death Warrant, Dooming Murderer

The governor signed his first death warrant since taking office three years ago and set the week of Feb. 15 for Madison's hanging.

He declared evidence "fully supports" the Baltimore Negro's conviction of first-degree murder.

At his trial, Madison said his automatic pistol went off in a scuffle with Gerstein on April 27, 1951, but denied he had tried to rob or intended to shoot the 50-year-old grocer.

Only once before has McKeldin permitted a man to hang. Then his course was to refuse to intervene in the execution of Lott Glover, 33-year-old Washington Negro, last Aug. 28.

Madison was convicted when the law required governors to sign death warrants and set the fatal date. Since then criminal court judges have been assigned that function, although the governor may still order clemency.

The governor has lifted seven death sentences.

Madison's hanging will end a 28-month stay in the penitentiary death house. It also will leave G. Edward Grammer alone there. Grammer is taking his conviction of wife slaying to the Supreme Court.

Madison, whose sentence was affirmed by the Court of Appeals in April, 1952, will be only the second man to hang at the penitentiary in almost five years.

Freedom Day

John Hvasta (above), Czech-born naturalized American citizen, is free again after having beaten the Czech Communists in a fabulous game of hide-and-seek. He escaped from a Czech prison last October, was sheltered in the U. S. embassy in Prague and yesterday crossed into Germany and freedom. At left is the Michael Hvasta family of Hillside, N. J., shown after receiving the news that their son and brother was free again. Left to right are Mr. Hvasta, Stephen, 23, brother of the freed American, and his mother.

Ex-Navy Man Flees Prison, Wins 'Release'

Reaches Embassy Refuge After Hiding Out For 21 Months

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (AP)—John Hvasta, a 26-year-old American, emerged triumphantly from behind the Iron Curtain today after beating the secret police of Communist Czechoslovakia in a fabulous game of hide-and-seek.

A saga rivalling anything between the covers of a suspense thriller came to light after Prague's Red radio broadcast a brief announcement that Hvasta, who had been sentenced to 10 years for "espionage," had been "released" from prison and ordered expelled.

But the State Department officially disclosed that Hvasta escaped from prison over two years ago; that four months ago he reached the American Embassy in Prague, where he was given shelter; and that after long negotiations the Czech government had finally consented to his departure from Czechoslovakia.

Fled Prison In 1952

It was on Jan. 2, 1952 that Hvasta escaped from the bleak Leopoldov Prison near Bratislava. For 21 months he managed to live underground in Czechoslovakia.

Some time during that period he made his way from Bratislava to Prague, a distance of 175 miles through mountainous and closely policed territory, and last Oct. 2 he got safely inside the American Embassy.

He was given asylum there until yesterday. With permission of the Czech goverment, he left Prague by automobile at 6:32 a.m. (EST) today. Two American diplomats accompanied him on his return to freedom.

Marries While In Prison

As if the tale needed any embroidery, the State Department confirmed that young Hvasta was married while he was in prison in 1949. His wife, Gabrilla, is a Czech girl whose whereabouts could not be ascertained immediately.

Unconfirmed was a report from Czech refugee sources here that Hvasta was wounded by Czech border guards while trying to escape into Austria, which is only a short distance from Bratislava. This was said to be the explanation of why he went into hiding and finally made his way to Prague.

Hvasta, whose parents live in Hillside, N. J., is a native of Czechoslovakia but became a naturalized American citizen in 1944 and served in the U. S. Navy. He returned to Czechoslovakia in 1948 as a student and was employed briefly at the American consulate general in Bratislava prior to his arrest on espionage charges in October of that year.

Monster Mechanical Man Ideal For This Hectic Age

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (AP)—The ideal man for this hectic age arrived in the nation's capital today.

He's a mechanical man who can walk, talk, follow spoken directions, smoke, play the piano, tell the difference between red and green and count up to 10 on his fingers.

But what makes him perfect for these troublsome days is this: He has no brain, and hence hasn't a worry in the world.

The fellow's name is Elektro, and he's a monster. A 260 pounder, 7 feet tall, he's made of aluminum and painted bronze. With him is his faithful Sparko, a mechanical dog which can sit up, bark and wage his tail.

Elektro is a direct descendant of other mechanical men that J. M. Barnett began building in 1930 for Westinghouse out in Mansfield, Ohio.

The new monster, with his built-in, electronic habits, is here to help dedicate a new radio-television building, Broadcast House, and his first public appearance was at a Kiwanis luncheon.

It takes two trucks to tote Elektro, his control gadgetry and Sparko's doghouse, and they were delayed by fog over the mountains. When newsmen and photographers arrived, engineers were still busy adjusting their boy.

From time to time a test was run and Elektro would say: "Chlorophyll is green. It is the color of money."

"We made this schedule too tight," a publicity man said. "As soon as we finish here, we got to set him up all over again. He's on television tonight."

Action On Liquor Tax Veto Runs Into Delay

Republican Attorney General Under Fire

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 4 (AP) — The Democratic floor leader of the House of Delegates today called an opinion of the Republican attorney general "an attempt to influence votes rather than give us sound legal advice" on a controversial bill to revise state liquor taxation.

Del. Thompson (D-Dorchester), the Democratic whip, issued a hold fire order on the governor's veto of the bill "in order to give Atty. Gen. Edward Rollins time to give us a good opinion."

Thompson put off action on the veto until Feb. 15. In the meantime, the delegates refused to accept the governor's veto on three of last year's bills. They were of a local nature and 20 other vetoes were sustained.

The senators overrode five of their bills vetoed by Gov. McKeldin after they went home last year and also moved to restore $250,000 each for buildings at Washington and Western Maryland colleges. They accepted his disapproval of 10 more.

Both branches of the General Assembly must override the vetoes by 18 votes in the Senate and 74 in the House in order to enact the bills.

Two Different Opinions

"The attorney general has given us two different opinions in the last 24 hours," Thompson told the House in explaining the reason for putting off action on the liquor tax veto.

"It was an attempt to influence votes rather than give us sound legal advice."

Thompson said he will press Rollins for reconsideration of his opinions.

The questioned bill would raise the state tax from $1.25 to $1.50 a gallon. No local taxation would be allowed and all counties would share in a redistribution of the money raised by 50 cents of the tax.

Baltimore City and County now have a special privilege to add a local 50 cent tax until 1955.

At first, Rollins concluded that the bill could not be enacted legally over the veto because its effective date is July 1, 1954. He concluded this would prevent Baltimore City and County from collecting the local tax during the next fiscal year and also might throw the state budget out of balance because it would be keeping 25 cents less.

Second Interpretation

In his second interpretation, Rollins ruled that the bill could become effective July 1, 1955, despite the bill's date of 1954. He concluded this was possible since the intent of the Legislature was not to unbalance any budgets.

"Rights for the farmer" in the batch of vetoes succeeded in the Senate and failed in the House.

The Senate voted 25-4 to exempt insecticides for farm use from the sales tax. But the delegates could muster only 59 votes after a long debate to exempt traded-in farm machinery.

Seventeen of the Senate's 18 Democrats voted to override the governor's veto of construction projects at Western Maryland and Washington College, with Sen. Turnbull (D-Baltimore County) abstaining.

The 18 votes necessary to override developed when Sen. Hoff (R-Carroll) stepped across party lines and voted with the Democrats. He had sponsored one of the proposals, a $250,000 men's dormitory at Western Maryland College.

A bare two-thirds vote for overriding also came on bills to reduce Susquehanna River Bridge tolls for residents of Cecil and Harford counties, official automobiles of those two counties, and two-axle trucks.

New business received by the Legislature on the second of its 30-day session included:

A proposal to hold a special election of delegates to a constitutional convention in September of 1955. The voters in 1951 approved by a 4-1 majority such a move, but the General Assembly refused to set in motion the machinery called for in this year's bill.

M'Carthy Assails Truman, Acheson

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 4 (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) said tonight "The hard fact is that those who wear the label—Democrat—wear with it the stain of a historic betrayal."

He termed it "a political label stitched with the idiocy of a Truman; rotted by the deceit of an Acheson; corrupted by the Red slime of a White."

The name of the late Harry Dexter White soared into the headlines last November when Atty. Gen. Brownell said former President Truman had promoted White in the face of FBI warnings that White was a Soviet spy. Truman said his purpose was to enable the FBI to keep an eye on White. FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said the promotion hampered FBI surveillance of White.

Former Secretary of State Acheson was not reachable in Washington tonight for comment on McCarthy's remarks. Truman also was unavailable for comment.

McCarthy made his accusations in a prepared statement released as an advance extract from a Lincoln Day speech he was scheduled to deliver here tonight.

"This is an indictment of the Democrat party—not of each and every member of that party, for there are those who hold their heads high alongside the very best Americans and who refused to yield," he said. But these, he asserted, were "far too few to hold the lever that controlled the political destiny of a nation for two decades" and that the result was "20 years of treason."

"We have had to learn in a harsh and bitter fight that the Republican party label represents the fight against subversion, the leadership back to religious ethics and honesty and loyalty," McCarthy said.

Comic Book Probe By M'Carthy Asked

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 4 — State Rep. William S. Broomfield (R-Royal Oak) today asked Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) to investigate "the creators of these monsters of hatred and moral destruction — the comic books."

Broomfield said that a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision invalidated most state laws designed to regulate comic books. He asked McCarthy, chairman of the Senate Permanent Investigations Committee, to look into the matter.

Tanks Cross Streams With "Water Wings"

DETROIT, Feb. 4 (AP)—Big 48-ton tanks can now "swim" and keep fighting at the same time.

The Army said Thursday it has tested flotation equipment to permit tanks to cross streams or lakes. It's done with water wings.

The water wings are big floats made from a solid, foam-type plastic. The floats are less than half the weight of balsa wood.

Floats are attached on each side and others in the front and rear of the tanks. The tank's motor provides power. Once a tank reaches shore, it can drop the floats in an instant.

Spy's Defection Blow To Red Setup In Japan

TOKYO, Friday, Feb. 5 (AP)—The defection to the United States of Russia's top spy in Japan, a protege of the executed Lavrenti Beria, appeared today to have dealt a major blow to Russia's espionage setup here.

"This is a great victory that may be decisive in Japan," an American source said. "It is the intelligence equivalent of a Midway or a Normandy (momentous battles of World War II)."

"The Japanese government and the Russians themselves would be surprised if they knew what this Army intelligence unit has on the whole Communist conspiracy in Japan."

The stunned Russian mission, which at first refused to believe Yuri A. Rastovorov had switched sides and charged U S. agents kidnaped him, quit talking about the case.

Telephone callers who inquired about Rastovorov heard only the click of the receiver as it was replaced.

"This is a great victory that may be decisive in Japan," an American source said. "It is the intelligence equivalent of a Midway or a Normandy (momentous battles of World War II)."

"The Japanese government and the Russians themselves would be surprised if they knew what this Army intelligence unit has on the whole Communist conspiracy in Japan."

The stunned Russian mission, which at first refused to believe Yuri A. Rastovorov had switched sides and charged U S. agents kidnaped him, quit talking about the case.

Telephone callers who inquired about Rastovorov heard only the click of the receiver as it was replaced.

Paradoxical Picture Of Expanding Religion, Shrinking Morals Sketched

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK, Feb. 4 (AP)—More religion. Less morality.

That's the paradoxical picture of the country today as set forth in a penetrating analysis featuring some leading theologians and philosophers.

"Religion is gaining ground," said Dr. Henry P. Van Dusen, president of Union Theological Seminary. "Morality is losing ground."

This conflicting condition, he said, is "one of the most surprising and overlooked facts in America today."

The just-concluded series, in which three other noted scholars took part, brought out some other remarkable points:

1. That true, sound religion welcomes the questioning of intellectual critics, knowing that religion which cannot stand questions becomes superstitution.

2. That the church has neglected "its healing function" for the body, in addition to the soul, as emphasized by Christ's work.

3. That religion, at first deeply hostile to scientific findings as in psychoanalysis, is discovering it can be "actually enriched" by such knowledge.

4. That religion is gaining more awareness of its timeless, symbolic character, and overcoming an old tendency to clash with science on a material or literal plane.

These and other aspects of contemporary religion were traced by the lecturers, who included:

Dr. David Everett Roberts, Union professor of philosophy of religion; Dr. O. Frederick Nolde, head of the World Council of Churches Commission on International Affairs; Dr. Paul Johannes Tillich, professor of philosophical theology.

Probably the most striking thesis came from Van Dusen, who sketched the odd phenomenon of expanding religion and shrinking morals.

Ever since before World War II, he said, religion has become "progressively stronger," while morals have become "increasingly weak."

To back his case, he pointed to this big array of evidence:

Church membership, in proportion to total population, is the highest in history. Since 1926, it has grown twice as fast as population. Church attendance also is at an all-time high.

Foreign visitors, here after an absence, are struck by the greater church vitality.

Religious books, and reading, exceeds anything in the past.

Youth are vastly more interested in religion, as shown by the growth of college religious courses, new campus worship activities and increased seminary enrollments.

"Churches possess a larger and wider allegiance in the American populace today than ever before," Van Dusen said.

On the other hand, he cited these signs of lowering morals:

Alcoholism has increased enormously.

Divorce has shot up. (From one out of six marriages in 1940 to one out of four now.)

Juvenile delinquency has multiplied (275,000 children called into court each year). Drug addiction has increased.

Dr. Alfred Kinsey's statistics show how traditional standards of sexual behavior have lapsed "both in conviction and in practice."

Growing uncritical acceptance of such "animalistic" premises as those of Kinsey's, untempered by internal spiritual truths of human life.

A widespread deadening of the "ethical conviction as to what is 'right' and what is 'wrong'"—words that have almost disappeared from the vocabulary of youth.

"Religion is, normally, the parent and sustainer of morals," Van Dusen said. "But thus far, the return to religion in our day has produced no corresponding moral fruitable. . . .

"Religion and morals are, by nature, too intimately involved to continue to move indefinitely in opposite directions.

"Either there will be a moral renewal to match the religious awakening, or the latter will fritter out into futility . . .

"And if that moral renewal comes, it may take an unexpected—and, at first thought, unwelcome form—something akin to puritanism. It would not surprise me if some such development appeared among the most sensitive of the younger generation."

But at present, Van Dusen said, a sort of "radical individualism of personal behavior prevails."

It stems, he said, from a false "romanticist illusion" that each life will naturally and automatically develop as it should.

This, he added, ignores the true nature of man as a creature of free choice, who "only as he holds in firm and difficult leash the impulses downward can he be genuinely free to move upward."

Van Dusen recalled Jesus' method of teaching, which consistently recognized that men and women inherently "know what is right," but must invoke self-discipline to do it.

Beck–Union Businessman

The executive council of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (AFL) meets in Miami Beach on February 15 to decide whether to go along with an AFL-CIO no-raiding agreement and a plan for a labor supreme court to decide jurisdictional disputes between AFL unions.

Dave Beck, president of the powerful International Brotherhood of Teamsters, the AFL's biggest union, wants even more members. Beck believes that all warehousemen and drivers as well as many miscellaneous workers, tens of thousands of them already belonging to CIO or other AFL unions, belong in the Teamsters.

On this ground Beck has opposed any over-all union agreement on jurisdictional matters. However, he has concluded five individual agreements with other AFL unions spelling out jurisdictional rights.

Dave Beck at 59 is the head of a union which has some 1,300,000 members and a net worth of about $31,340,000. He is an AFL vice president. Also, he is president of the board of regents of the University of Washington, has held public office in the State of Washington, and has been an official of fraternal and veterans' organizations.

On the West Coast he has long fought the left-wing Harry Bridges. He has insisted on the right of management to a fair profit. He emphasizes the sanctity of contract, as in a recent message to the Teamsters' membership: "I would a thousand times rather lose a local, or even the entire organization, than to violate our trust."

Beck, who left high school to drive a laundry truck, by 1923 had become president of the joint council of teamsters locals in the Northwest. By 1926 he was general organizer for the whole West Coast. In October 1952 he was elected president of the Teamsters, at an annual salary of $50,000, succeeding Daniel J. Tobin, who had headed the union since 1907.

Moving his activities to Washington, Beck is building an impressive headquarters in the Capitol area. His union gained about $5,000,000 in assets in the first year of Beck's incumbency.

Recently, Beck loaned $1,000,000 of union funds to the Fruehauf Trailer Company of Detroit, a leading employer in the trucking field. And on January 25, Beck offered New York truckers a $2,000,000 loan to set up an equipment pool.

The offer was to enable the truckers to perform the functions of the outlawed public loaders on the waterfront. At the same time Beck's union filed a suit calling for $51,000,000 in damages from the old International Longshoremen's Association, the New York Shipping Association, and 220 corporations and individuals. The move was a skirmish in Beck's campaign to take over loading on the New York docks from the old ILA.

Beck has teamed with trucking industry leaders in public relations and other industry activities. As for labor unity, Beck pays it at least lip service. On Labor Day 1953, he called on the CIO and the United Mine Workers to unite with the AFL "before another Labor Day passes."

Fuss About Gibraltar

"We want Gibraltar back," cry Spaniards, all the way from Generalissimo Franco down to university students. So still more of the anti-British demonstrations in Spain can be expected before Queen Elizabeth stops off at The Rock in May, on her way back to London from visiting distant points in her realm. The British government has rejected the Spanish request that Her Majesty pass up Gibraltar.

The English got "Gib" 250 years ago by an accident. An English-Dutch expedition had set out for the Mediterranean to land at Barcelona, found the project too dangerous, considered landing at Lisbon instead, gave that up also for the same reason. So the English commander, all dressed up with no place to go, decided to take Gibraltar, lightly defended by Spanish troops, rather than return empty-handed.

For a time the English thought so little of their new acquisition that they offered to trade it to Spain for Florida, then for the Mediterranean island of Minorca. It was not until later that the British found Gibraltar of the highest strategic importance in dominating the Atlantic entrance to the Mediterranean. But that was before the day of the long-range gun and heavy bombing plane.

Today Gibraltar, and any fleet stationed there, would probably be highly vulnerable to shelling from the Spanish mainland or from Spanish Morocco, and to bombing from the air; and no longer does a large U. S. insurance company advertise that it has "the strength of Gibraltar." The Rock has become little more than a symbol—of ancient British predominance and of Spanish pride.

Coinage Canards

Every once in awhile a rumor begins circulating to the effect that a certain type of coin that is not on the market any longer is actually worth its weight in gold if it is only turned in to the right person.

It was only a few years ago that rumor had it that a certain date penny was redeemable for a new automobile of a popular make. The company and its dealers were so swamped with queries about these pennies that it required a wave of denials in newspapers to finally squelch the story.

One of the most often misrepresented coins is the silver dollar. There are many Americans who believe any silver dollar is worth more than 100 cents and there are many more who will swear that those dollars minted previous to 1922, when the design was changed, are all collectors items. To illustrate the fallacy of this belief, several years ago the Denver mint circulated some five million 1921 silver dollars which, until then, had never been in circulation. Add this number to those already in use and it's obvious they will never be worth more than face value.

Another coin rumor which reappears from time to time concerns the "coin that was called in because it wouldn't stack."

Apparently this story was the result of publicity given to the new design of the $20 gold piece in 1907. The coin had a deep ridge around its circumference which may or may not have made it difficult to stack. However, there were so few minted that even banks couldn't accumulate enough of them to present any stacking problem. At any rate, there never was any government order calling in these "golden double eagles."

As long as there are coins there will be coin rumors. A new one may make its appearance any day.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Contact Dermatitis

Eczema of the hands is not only annoying but embarrassing. It is difficult to work when the skin itches and is irritated, more so when the outer layers are thickened, cracked, scaly, and studded with weeping blisters. In the past, the victim had reason to be discouraged because months were spent in trying to get well. Today, ACTH or cortisone offer temporary relief while tests are being done to determine the cause.

In tackling the problem, it is important to consider every object the victim touches or handles. This means a thorough search of exposures in the home, at work, in personal hygiene, and with hobbies and games. When improvement follows a vacation, obviously something in the office, shop, or home is responsible. If the rash comes and goes, this means the object is being contacted only periodically; the physician immediately suspects an uncommon food, cosmetic, or a procedure that is not part of the daily routine. When the culprit is eliminated the rash disappears.

A more difficult situation is presented when common causes are playing a role. Often the culprit is an object or subtance that is being handled every day such as a coin, ring, scissors, knitting needle, or knife handle. It can also be a plant in home or garden which has the same effect on the individual as does poison ivy or sumac on the population at large. Imagine how surprised a man becomes when he discovers, after spending a thousand dollars on doctor bills, that the irritant is the primrose his mother-in-law sent him some months previously.

Blisters and scaling may follow the use of certain fruits and vegetables including potatoes, onions, garlic, oranges, tomatoes, asparagus, and carrots. Paints, polishes, cleansers, gloves, handbags, shoulder straps, briefcase handles, and dog leashes enter the picture as well as electric razors and the plastic material in steering wheels, doorknobs, and telephone receivers. Fountain pens, pencils chalks, and crayons have been implicated; also toothpaste, mouth washes, lozenges, and rectal suppositories. These allergens usually are forgotten because we are inclined to think first of shaving lotions, hair tonics, antiperspirants, and other cosmetics.

Now and then the rash is due to a primary irritant and has nothing to do with allergy. A man who handles chemicals soon learns he must wear gloves to avoid abrasions of the skin. Some persons are misled because they do not know that an allergic rash need not develop at the site of contact. This explains why medicines or foods may be responsible. In addition, the eruption need not be confined to the hands; it often spreads to the folds of the elbow, the backs of the knees, the neck, and the face. Finding and eliminating the cause offers permanent relief but meanwhile something must be done to ease distress. Burning and itching may be so severe the sufferer is unable to sleep at night or concentrate during the day.

In the past, wet compresses were used frequently. Others applied various ointments including those containing vioform, zinc oxide, and calamine. More recently, hydro-ortisone (compound F) ointments have become popular. These products have a local effect upon the lesions without involving the system as occurs when the hormone is injected or taken in tablet form. In a recent series of cases, they proved of value in 20 out of 30 cases. While the effect is temporary, much needed relief is offered while an attempt is being made to find and eliminate the cause. The anti-histaminics also have been employed. The tablets and capsules influence the causative agent and the ointments counteract itching.

MIDDLE AGED DISORDER

R. T. writes: Is it unusual to have the gall bladder removed at age 23?

REPLY

HAIR REMOVAL

R. T. writes: Is it safe to have superfluous hair removed from the face during pregnancy?

REPLY

Yes, when the procedure is done properly.

KIDNEY DISEASE

M. S. writes: Is chronic nephritis curable?

REPLY

Not as a rule. But the disease may smolder for a lifetime without causing trouble.

A DO-NOTHING EYE

C. V. writes: What is meant by a lazy eye?

REPLY

In cross-eye the individual usually sees double and unless the condition is corrected, one eye does all the work and the other becomes lazy. In this way double vision changes to single vision because the inactive eye refuses to see. This situation is relieved by placing a patch over or instilling drops into the good eye to force the lazy eye to work.

Politics A Deadly Serious Business In Texas; Jockeying Already Under Way For 1956 National Conventions And Presidential Candidates

DALLAS—It's more than two years before the next national conventions meet to nominate the presidential candidates, but jockeying for position has already started in Texas where men are men and politics is a deadly serious business.

Behind the jockeying is the question of whether the Democrats nominate Adlai Stevenson or a liberal Democrat in 1956, and whether the Shivercrats and the Eisenhowercrats who bolted the Democratic party in 1952 are brought back into the fold with a big embrace and a kiss on both cheeks.

Also at stake to some extent is the political future of the most revered man in the state, ex-Speaker Sam Rayburn, who has served in Congress for 40 years and sponsored some of the most important New Deal legislation.

The 72-year-old Rayburn, his head as barren as a billiard ball but his political outlook as young as when he put across the Securities Exchange Commission and the Holding Corporation Act, has vowed he would never forgive the handsome young Governor Allan Shivers who, Sam says, double-crossed him at Chicago.

At Chicago, Governor Shivers told Sam he would not bolt to Eisenhower and then turned round and proceeded to do exactly that.

So the venerable Rayburn says he will never let Shivers back into the Democratic party.

Shivers Wants Back

Meanwhile, Shivers is making plenty of signs that he wants back. He has made several speeches, most of them in the North, tossing the olive branch in the direction of the Democratic National Committee, but his advances so far have not been reciprocated. Now, therefore, Shivers is getting tough.

Last week he threw out a hint that Sam Rayburn's congressional district might be redistricted. This means just exactly one thing—that Rayburn would have the fight of his life being re-elected, with an excellent chance of facing defeat.

Governor Shivers did not of course single out Sam Rayburn's district by name. He's far too smart for that. But every politician in Texas knew that he was laying down the gauntlet to "Mr. Sam," as he's called in these parts, that either Shivers gets back into the Democratic party or else Sam runs the risk of being thrown out of Congress.

For Sam's district is the second smallest in the U. S. A., and with the population of reactionary, Republican Dallas pushing north in the direction of Rayburn's district, any redistricting by the Texas legislature would mean giving that district about 96,000 new anti-Rayburn votes.

Once last year, the Texas legislature began talking as if it was going to redistrict, whereupon Lyndon Johnson, Sam's onetime disciple who has now maneuvered himself into being Senate minority leader, told Sam not to worry.

Lyndon indicated that he would talk to Herman Brown, of Brown and Root, one of the biggest contracting firms in the U. S., for whom Lyndon has been a glorified messenger boy in Washington and from whom he has received plenty of compaign contributions. Brown and Root just received a multi-million dollar contract to help build U. S. bases in Spain, so they can afford to help out the young senator who has helped them.

At any rate Frank Oltorf, the paid lobbyist for Brown and Root in Washington, flew out to Austin, contacted Lt. Gov. Ben Ramsay and told him Sam Rayburn's district was not to be touched. Since Oltorf had paid a generous part of Ben Ramsay's campaign expenses when he ran for lieutenant governor, Ramsay listened. Furthermore he promised that no redistricting bill would get out of committee for debate in the Texas legislature.

However, if Governor Shivers wants to get a redistricting bill out of committee in the March legislature that he talks about calling he won't have any real trouble doing so. And if he really wants to retaliate against Sam Rayburn that's what he will do.

So the betting is about even as to whether Rayburn will let the handsome young governor who ran out on him at Chicago come back into the Democratic fold.

Shivercrats Count On Johnson

Probably the answer will be spelled out in part by the debonair Senator Johnson. Lyndon's position, as usual, is against a fight. He wants Shivers back in the party for several reasons. One of them being that the two have always worked hand-in-hand. Johnson built up a smooth-running political machine when he was elected in 1948, turned it over to Shivers when he ran in 1950. That machine should have been for Adlai Stevenson in 1952, but it wasn't.

When Adlai entered Texas during the campaign, Lyndon Johnson got aboard his train before it entered Dallas and told Senator Fulbright of Arkansas, chief Senate adviser to Adlai, that he wasn't going to participate in the campaign.

"It will hurt my re-election chances," he explained.

"You — — —," exploded Fulbright, and proceeded to give Senator Johnson such a bawling out that Johnson stayed with the campaign train, and later did deliver one speech over his wife's radio station for Stevenson. After that he went up to Missouri to campaign for Stuart Symington, keeping as far away from Texas as possible

So Lyndon Johnson is now being counted on by the Shivercrats to soft-soap and beguile his old friend Sam Rayburn into forgiving Shivers and welcoming him back into the Democratic party.

Meanwhile the Stevenson Democrats are warning Sam that if he does Shivers will take over control of the Texas delegation in 1956 and repeat what he did at Chicago in 1952.

On The Line

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—(INS)—The passing scene: Two national magazines are engaged in a bitter wrangle over a ticklish topic: Your neck. U. S. News and World Report recently claimed this country can stop enemy atomic bombers. Air Force, the magazine of American airpower, retorts:

"It is morally wrong to tell America that she can be defended today when tomorrow millions of Americans may perish in an atomic holocaust.

"This breed of irresponsible reporting must be countered head-on and debunked. The public must not be lulled into a sense of false security by talk about fantastic new weapons which are neither fantastic nor available yet for combat."

Air Force says Radar isn't all it's cracked up to be; that in addition to many shortcomings indigenous to this electronic marvel it can be thrown out of kilter by enemy counter-measures. Those known counter-measures could also throw our "homing" missles out of line, too, and let the enemy's atomic bombers continue on unmolested. The Army's "Nike"—a rocket built to locate an enemy plane many miles away and destroy it—won't be on an operational basis for months to come. And never will Nike battalions be able to rush from one big city to another, ahead of an enemy air attack.

The worst fear Air Force has, apparently, is that the Russians will come up with an intercontinental ballistic missle, with an A-bomb or H-bomb warhead. There is no known defense against such a weapon, just as there was no defense against Hitler's V-2.

Sweet dreams.

Wonder why someone in the UN doesn't bring up the question of actual Russian participation in UN's defense of South Korea? Gen. Mark W. Clark, in the current Collier's, writes:

"Ever since MIGs first appeared in North Korean skies in November, 1950, there has been widespread speculation whether Soviet pilots were at the controls. I can say categorically that the UN command possesses adequate information to show that Russian pilots—sometimes in considerable numbers—in fact did engage our jets in combat.

"The evidence includes our pilots' reports of intercepted exchanges in Rusisan on the MIGs' intercom system, and the testimony of returned UN war prisoners that they had talked with Russian combat pilots while in North Korean prison camps."

Harry A. Bruno, the man who introduced sky-writing to the American public, has been named president and a director of the newly incorporated public relations firm that bears his name. Bruno's great success in business dates from that introduction.

Bruno was doing publicity in 1924 for a British ace of World War I, Maj. Jack Savage, who brought the first sky-writing equipment to the U. S. Their target was testy, free-wheeling George Washington Hill, head of the American Tobacco Company.

With British Capt. Cyril Turner at the controls Bruno and Savage arranged a special showing of the device for Hill. Turner, high over Times Square, wrote out "Hello, U. S. A."

"Interesting," Hill muttered, "but it won't sell cigarets."

Bruno had another idea. He sent the plane back into the air with instructions to spell out the phone number of the Vanderbilt Hotel. He had invited Hill to the Vanderbilt to await the results.

For three hours the Vanderbilt's switchboard was lighted like a Christmas tree. An appeal went out for extra operators. And Hill wrote a contract with the Skywriting Corporation of America for a million dollars worth of this celestial doodling.

This is the 50th anniversary of the invention of the tea bag, one of the few great boons still unclaimed by Russian science. All started in New York at the wholesale tea house of Thomas Sullivan. He used to give samples to prospective buyers, but classed up the gift by putting the tea in little silk bags. Someone, as a prank, dropped one of the bags into a cup of hot water.

Silk has long since given way to cheesecloth and gauze. Each bag now holds a blend of between 20 and 50 of the world's most accepted teas.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — What is sauce for the goose evidently isn't sauce for the gander after all. Democrats in the Senate who didn't object but voted to confirm Martin Durkin as secretary of labor a year ago, even though he retained his ties with the International Plumbers' Union, are now making quite a fuss over the fact that Albert C. Beeson, nominated for membership on the National Labor Relations Board, may some day derive a pension from his former employer.

Mr. Beeson's company has stated flatly that he has no contract or agreement that provides for his return to the company whenever he terminates his service on the labor board, but there are members of the Senate who think an eventual pension raises "doubts" about his impartiality.

Erecting A Barrier

Everybody knows that in any case involving a former employer the member of the labor board affected usually would disqualify himself from sitting in that particular proceeding. But to argue that a commitment to receive a pension some day from a company makes a man so prejudiced on the side of management that he can never be fair in hearing any cases of management and labor is to erect a barrier which was conveniently overlooked last year by the same Democrats who are objecting now to the confirmation of Mr. Beeson.

Mr. Durkin became secretary of labor in the Eisenhower cabinet not withstanding an agreement in writing which provided for his resumption of the post of presidency of the union whenever his service in the government would be terminated. Incidentally, Mr. Durkin, as secretary of labor, was to assume a post that in many respects is just as much a quasi-judicial office as that of any member of the labor board. For the secretary of labor has authority to determine minimum wages to be paid under government contracts under the Walsh-Healy Act and the Davis-Bacon Law.

When Mr. Durkin went before the Senate Labor Committee last year, he got a different reception than Mr. Beeson is getting today. Here is an extract from the official testimony on January 16, 1953, just before the committee voted unanimously to recommend confirmation to the Senate.

"Mr. Durkin: . . . If I am appointed to the position of secretary of labor, I have already made arrangements to leave my post as general president of the United Association (plumbers' union) without any ties whatever to the union other than being a member, without any salary, and without any compensation for expenses or any moneys of any type. . .

"Senator Taft: And you will resign your position as president of the United Association, you said? I think you said you would leave your post. . .

"Mr. Durkin: I have taken a leave of absence with no authority to transact any of the affairs. I may return at some later date, and, of course, that is entirely —

'Senator Taft: You may return? Is there an agreement that you will return if necessary?

"Mr. Durkin: Oh, no; no agreement.

"Senator Taft: You mean you may; you are eligible to return, of course?

"Mr. Durkin: As a member, I am eligible to return."

At a press conference held in New York at the Eisenhower headquarters on December 5, 1952, the question was asked of Mr. Durkin:

"Are you now on technical leave of absence?"

"I will go on complete severance. I would go back as president, just as I am now."

Had Leave Of Absence

In the 1953 "Directory of Labor Unions," issued by the U. S. Department of Labor, a footnote to the plumber's union listing states that Mr. Durkin "was granted leave of absence not to exceed four years while serving in his post as secretary of the U. S. Department of Labor."

Mr. Durkin, while in office, was influential enough to block a prospective appointment to the National Labor Relations Board, even though the senators from the state in question both endorsed him. The labor unions objected, and that was enough to enable Mr. Durkin to veto the appointment.

So, when a labor-union executive gets "leave of absence" from his position as a top union officer to enter the government, no objections are made by the radicals and so-called "liberals" in the Senate. Yet, when a man has absolutely no contract or agreement to return to his former employer but merely will derive a pension some day when he reaches an advanced age, these same radicals and "liberals" argue that he cannot possibly be impartial and must of necessity be biased in favor of management. Apparently it's all right for a former union official to come into the government and retain connections, but not so for a management man. That's an odd conception of "impartiality."

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Lawyers And The Press

For quite a bit, judges and lawyers have been quarreling over the right of the people to know what is going on about them, particularly as regards criminals. Louis Waldman is chairman of a committee of the New York State Bar Association which has issued a recommendation to gag the press on pre-trial reporting that could be interpreted to mean that the press should be silent until a case has reached the United States Supreme Court, four or five years away. What a wonderful thing that would have been for the Rosenbergs!

Waldman cited an example in a speech he delivered presenting his report which completely shows the weakness of his thinking. Here it is:

"Within the last month a young woman student at a college close by New York City was viciously and brutally attacked. Two young men, one 16 and the other 21, were apprehended that very night by the police and placed under arrest for this atrocious crime. The police, in announcing the arrest of these youths, then proceeded to report that they had made a full confession admitting the assault and the press naturally carried this alleged confession as a prominent part of the story."

Waldman does not deny the rape, the confession, the guilt or anything about the case. He only says that Americans get emotional when their daughters or their neighbors' daughters get raped by hoodlums. He objects to the publication of such news because the rapist thereupon faces an irate public. Does he wish the fathers of the community to form a reception committee for the rapists and present the beasts with bouquets of roses?

Now along comes another lawyer, Edwin M. Otterbourg, president of the New York County Lawyers' Association, who has this to say:

"But the one great industry, the important fourth estate, has not yet adopted any enforceable code of ethics. To the contrary, each newspaper thinks it can be its own judge and jury as to what it is right and wrong to do with respect to the reporting of litigations.

"It seems that in some fields, rights which have been given by law are being so abused that the time may come when the people who make the laws abridge these rights."

No newspaper instructs a reporter to commit a murder so that more newspapers will be sold. The murder is committed by the murderer, the rape by the rapist, the mugging by the mugger, the treachery by the traitor.

When the deed is done, there are four parties at interest, if we use a murder as an example:

1. The murdered person;

2. Those who are deprived of the life, the company, and sometimes the support of the murdered person;

3. The community which is entitled to peace and order and which pays heavily in taxes to see to it that murders do not take place;

4. The murderer, usually a person without whom the community can well exist.

While it is true that the murderer is entitled to a fair trial, it is also true that the murdered person is entitled to a fair trial, and it is also true that the community is justified in demanding that the malefactor be punished. The assumption that because a man has kidnaped a child, murdered the little boy, taken ransom money from his parents, broken their hearts and probably their lives, robbed a nation of parents of their peace of mind—the assumption that after a moron ha. done that, all human emotions should be repressed in his interest is arrant nonsense.

True, newspaper reporting makes it tough on lawyers whose interest is to get their clients off, to have a sentence reduced from first-degree murder to manslaughter, to have him imprisoned instead of executed, to get him a parole or a reprieve or a pardon. But that is not the public interest.

It must be admitted that some newspapers emphasize the sensational rather than the important, that in some the news is slanted by overemphasis or even distortion. But in the United States, there is such a variety of newspapers, radio and television reporting and news weeklies that the reader can select for himslf that which he believes to be true. No one forces him to accept any one medium. No one deprives him of a different presentation. A free press is one which can be different and diverse in freedom.

Beck–Union Businessman

The executive council of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (AFL) meets in Miami Beach on February 15 to decide whether to go along with an AFL-CIO no-raiding agreement and a plan for a labor supreme court to decide jurisdictional disputes between AFL unions.

Dave Beck, president of the powerful International Brotherhood of Teamsters, the AFL's biggest union, wants even more members. Beck believes that all warehousemen and drivers as well as many miscellaneous workers, tens of thousands of them already belonging to CIO or other AFL unions, belong in the Teamsters.

On this ground Beck has opposed any over-all union agreement on jurisdictional matters. However, he has concluded five individual agreements with other AFL unions spelling out jurisdictional rights.

Dave Beck at 59 is the head of a union which has some 1,300,000 members and a net worth of about $31,340,000. He is an AFL vice president. Also, he is president of the board of regents of the University of Washington, has held public office in the State of Washington, and has been an official of fraternal and veterans' organizations.

On the West Coast he has long fought the left-wing Harry Bridges. He has insisted on the right of management to a fair profit. He emphasizes the sanctity of contract, as in a recent message to the Teamsters' membership: "I would a thousand times rather lose a local, or even the entire organization, than to violate our trust."

Beck, who left high school to drive a laundry truck, by 1923 had become president of the joint council of teamsters locals in the Northwest. By 1926 he was general organizer for the whole West Coast. In October 1952 he was elected president of the Teamsters, at an annual salary of $50,000, succeeding Daniel J. Tobin, who had headed the union since 1907.

Moving his activities to Washington, Beck is building an impressive headquarters in the Capitol area. His union gained about $5,000,000 in assets in the first year of Beck's incumbency.

Recently, Beck loaned $1,000,000 of union funds to the Fruehauf Trailer Company of Detroit, a leading employer in the trucking field. And on January 25, Beck offered New York truckers a $2,000,000 loan to set up an equipment pool.

The offer was to enable the truckers to perform the functions of the outlawed public loaders on the waterfront. At the same time Beck's union filed a suit calling for $51,000,000 in damages from the old International Longshoremen's Association, the New York Shipping Association, and 220 corporations and individuals. The move was a skirmish in Beck's campaign to take over loading on the New York docks from the old ILA.

Beck has teamed with trucking industry leaders in public relations and other industry activities. As for labor unity, Beck pays it at least lip service. On Labor Day 1953, he called on the CIO and the United Mine Workers to unite with the AFL "before another Labor Day passes."

Fuss About Gibraltar

"We want Gibraltar back," cry Spaniards, all the way from Generalissimo Franco down to university students. So still more of the anti-British demonstrations in Spain can be expected before Queen Elizabeth stops off at The Rock in May, on her way back to London from visiting distant points in her realm. The British government has rejected the Spanish request that Her Majesty pass up Gibraltar.

The English got "Gib" 250 years ago by an accident. An English-Dutch expedition had set out for the Mediterranean to land at Barcelona, found the project too dangerous, considered landing at Lisbon instead, gave that up also for the same reason. So the English commander, all dressed up with no place to go, decided to take Gibraltar, lightly defended by Spanish troops, rather than return empty-handed.

For a time the English thought so little of their new acquisition that they offered to trade it to Spain for Florida, then for the Mediterranean island of Minorca. It was not until later that the British found Gibraltar of the highest strategic importance in dominating the Atlantic entrance to the Mediterranean. But that was before the day of the long-range gun and heavy bombing plane.

Today Gibraltar, and any fleet stationed there, would probably be highly vulnerable to shelling from the Spanish mainland or from Spanish Morocco, and to bombing from the air; and no longer does a large U. S. insurance company advertise that it has "the strength of Gibraltar." The Rock has become little more than a symbol—of ancient British predominance and of Spanish pride.

Coinage Canards

Every once in awhile a rumor begins circulating to the effect that a certain type of coin that is not on the market any longer is actually worth its weight in gold if it is only turned in to the right person.

It was only a few years ago that rumor had it that a certain date penny was redeemable for a new automobile of a popular make. The company and its dealers were so swamped with queries about these pennies that it required a wave of denials in newspapers to finally squelch the story.

One of the most often misrepresented coins is the silver dollar. There are many Americans who believe any silver dollar is worth more than 100 cents and there are many more who will swear that those dollars minted previous to 1922, when the design was changed, are all collectors items. To illustrate the fallacy of this belief, several years ago the Denver mint circulated some five million 1921 silver dollars which, until then, had never been in circulation. Add this number to those already in use and it's obvious they will never be worth more than face value.

Another coin rumor which reappears from time to time concerns the "coin that was called in because it wouldn't stack."

Apparently this story was the result of publicity given to the new design of the $20 gold piece in 1907. The coin had a deep ridge around its circumference which may or may not have made it difficult to stack. However, there were so few minted that even banks couldn't accumulate enough of them to present any stacking problem. At any rate, there never was any government order calling in these "golden double eagles."

As long as there are coins there will be coin rumors. A new one may make its appearance any day.

How To Keep Well

Contact Dermatitis

Eczema of the hands is not only annoying but embarrassing. It is difficult to work when the skin itches and is irritated, more so when the outer layers are thickened, cracked, scaly, and studded with weeping blisters. In the past, the victim had reason to be discouraged because months were spent in trying to get well. Today, ACTH or cortisone offer temporary relief while tests are being done to determine the cause.

In tackling the problem, it is important to consider every object the victim touches or handles. This means a thorough search of exposures in the home, at work, in personal hygiene, and with hobbies and games. When improvement follows a vacation, obviously something in the office, shop, or home is responsible. If the rash comes and goes, this means the object is being contacted only periodically; the physician immediately suspects an uncommon food, cosmetic, or a procedure that is not part of the daily routine. When the culprit is eliminated the rash disappears.

A more difficult situation is presented when common causes are playing a role. Often the culprit is an object or subtance that is being handled every day such as a coin, ring, scissors, knitting needle, or knife handle. It can also be a plant in home or garden which has the same effect on the individual as does poison ivy or sumac on the population at large. Imagine how surprised a man becomes when he discovers, after spending a thousand dollars on doctor bills, that the irritant is the primrose his mother-in-law sent him some months previously.

Blisters and scaling may follow the use of certain fruits and vegetables including potatoes, onions, garlic, oranges, tomatoes, asparagus, and carrots. Paints, polishes, cleansers, gloves, handbags, shoulder straps, briefcase handles, and dog leashes enter the picture as well as electric razors and the plastic material in steering wheels, doorknobs, and telephone receivers. Fountain pens, pencils chalks, and crayons have been implicated; also toothpaste, mouth washes, lozenges, and rectal suppositories. These allergens usually are forgotten because we are inclined to think first of shaving lotions, hair tonics, antiperspirants, and other cosmetics.

Now and then the rash is due to a primary irritant and has nothing to do with allergy. A man who handles chemicals soon learns he must wear gloves to avoid abrasions of the skin. Some persons are misled because they do not know that an allergic rash need not develop at the site of contact. This explains why medicines or foods may be responsible. In addition, the eruption need not be confined to the hands; it often spreads to the folds of the elbow, the backs of the knees, the neck, and the face. Finding and eliminating the cause offers permanent relief but meanwhile something must be done to ease distress. Burning and itching may be so severe the sufferer is unable to sleep at night or concentrate during the day.

In the past, wet compresses were used frequently. Others applied various ointments including those containing vioform, zinc oxide, and calamine. More recently, hydro-ortisone (compound F) ointments have become popular. These products have a local effect upon the lesions without involving the system as occurs when the hormone is injected or taken in tablet form. In a recent series of cases, they proved of value in 20 out of 30 cases. While the effect is temporary, much needed relief is offered while an attempt is being made to find and eliminate the cause. The anti-histaminics also have been employed. The tablets and capsules influence the causative agent and the ointments counteract itching.

In cross-eye the individual usually sees double and unless the condition is corrected, one eye does all the work and the other becomes lazy. In this way double vision changes to single vision because the inactive eye refuses to see. This situation is relieved by placing a patch over or instilling drops into the good eye to force the lazy eye to work.

Politics A Deadly Serious Business In Texas; Jockeying Already Under Way For 1956 National Conventions And Presidential Candidates

DALLAS—It's more than two years before the next national conventions meet to nominate the presidential candidates, but jockeying for position has already started in Texas where men are men and politics is a deadly serious business.

Behind the jockeying is the question of whether the Democrats nominate Adlai Stevenson or a liberal Democrat in 1956, and whether the Shivercrats and the Eisenhowercrats who bolted the Democratic party in 1952 are brought back into the fold with a big embrace and a kiss on both cheeks.

Also at stake to some extent is the political future of the most revered man in the state, ex-Speaker Sam Rayburn, who has served in Congress for 40 years and sponsored some of the most important New Deal legislation.

The 72-year-old Rayburn, his head as barren as a billiard ball but his political outlook as young as when he put across the Securities Exchange Commission and the Holding Corporation Act, has vowed he would never forgive the handsome young Governor Allan Shivers who, Sam says, double-crossed him at Chicago.

At Chicago, Governor Shivers told Sam he would not bolt to Eisenhower and then turned round and proceeded to do exactly that.

So the venerable Rayburn says he will never let Shivers back into the Democratic party.

Shivers Wants Back

Meanwhile, Shivers is making plenty of signs that he wants back. He has made several speeches, most of them in the North, tossing the olive branch in the direction of the Democratic National Committee, but his advances so far have not been reciprocated. Now, therefore, Shivers is getting tough.

Last week he threw out a hint that Sam Rayburn's congressional district might be redistricted. This means just exactly one thing—that Rayburn would have the fight of his life being re-elected, with an excellent chance of facing defeat.

Governor Shivers did not of course single out Sam Rayburn's district by name. He's far too smart for that. But every politician in Texas knew that he was laying down the gauntlet to "Mr. Sam," as he's called in these parts, that either Shivers gets back into the Democratic party or else Sam runs the risk of being thrown out of Congress.

For Sam's district is the second smallest in the U. S. A., and with the population of reactionary, Republican Dallas pushing north in the direction of Rayburn's district, any redistricting by the Texas legislature would mean giving that district about 96,000 new anti-Rayburn votes.

Once last year, the Texas legislature began talking as if it was going to redistrict, whereupon Lyndon Johnson, Sam's onetime disciple who has now maneuvered himself into being Senate minority leader, told Sam not to worry.

Lyndon indicated that he would talk to Herman Brown, of Brown and Root, one of the biggest contracting firms in the U. S., for whom Lyndon has been a glorified messenger boy in Washington and from whom he has received plenty of compaign contributions. Brown and Root just received a multi-million dollar contract to help build U. S. bases in Spain, so they can afford to help out the young senator who has helped them.

At any rate Frank Oltorf, the paid lobbyist for Brown and Root in Washington, flew out to Austin, contacted Lt. Gov. Ben Ramsay and told him Sam Rayburn's district was not to be touched. Since Oltorf had paid a generous part of Ben Ramsay's campaign expenses when he ran for lieutenant governor, Ramsay listened. Furthermore he promised that no redistricting bill would get out of committee for debate in the Texas legislature.

However, if Governor Shivers wants to get a redistricting bill out of committee in the March legislature that he talks about calling he won't have any real trouble doing so. And if he really wants to retaliate against Sam Rayburn that's what he will do.

So the betting is about even as to whether Rayburn will let the handsome young governor who ran out on him at Chicago come back into the Democratic fold.

Shivercrats Count On Johnson

Probably the answer will be spelled out in part by the debonair Senator Johnson. Lyndon's position, as usual, is against a fight. He wants Shivers back in the party for several reasons. One of them being that the two have always worked hand-in-hand. Johnson built up a smooth-running political machine when he was elected in 1948, turned it over to Shivers when he ran in 1950. That machine should have been for Adlai Stevenson in 1952, but it wasn't.

When Adlai entered Texas during the campaign, Lyndon Johnson got aboard his train before it entered Dallas and told Senator Fulbright of Arkansas, chief Senate adviser to Adlai, that he wasn't going to participate in the campaign.

"It will hurt my re-election chances," he explained.

"You — — —," exploded Fulbright, and proceeded to give Senator Johnson such a bawling out that Johnson stayed with the campaign train, and later did deliver one speech over his wife's radio station for Stevenson. After that he went up to Missouri to campaign for Stuart Symington, keeping as far away from Texas as possible

So Lyndon Johnson is now being counted on by the Shivercrats to soft-soap and beguile his old friend Sam Rayburn into forgiving Shivers and welcoming him back into the Democratic party.

Meanwhile the Stevenson Democrats are warning Sam that if he does Shivers will take over control of the Texas delegation in 1956 and repeat what he did at Chicago in 1952.

On The Line

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—(INS)—The passing scene: Two national magazines are engaged in a bitter wrangle over a ticklish topic: Your neck. U. S. News and World Report recently claimed this country can stop enemy atomic bombers. Air Force, the magazine of American airpower, retorts:

"It is morally wrong to tell America that she can be defended today when tomorrow millions of Americans may perish in an atomic holocaust.

"This breed of irresponsible reporting must be countered head-on and debunked. The public must not be lulled into a sense of false security by talk about fantastic new weapons which are neither fantastic nor available yet for combat."

Air Force says Radar isn't all it's cracked up to be; that in addition to many shortcomings indigenous to this electronic marvel it can be thrown out of kilter by enemy counter-measures. Those known counter-measures could also throw our "homing" missles out of line, too, and let the enemy's atomic bombers continue on unmolested. The Army's "Nike"—a rocket built to locate an enemy plane many miles away and destroy it—won't be on an operational basis for months to come. And never will Nike battalions be able to rush from one big city to another, ahead of an enemy air attack.

The worst fear Air Force has, apparently, is that the Russians will come up with an intercontinental ballistic missle, with an A-bomb or H-bomb warhead. There is no known defense against such a weapon, just as there was no defense against Hitler's V-2.

Sweet dreams.

Wonder why someone in the UN doesn't bring up the question of actual Russian participation in UN's defense of South Korea? Gen. Mark W. Clark, in the current Collier's, writes:

"Ever since MIGs first appeared in North Korean skies in November, 1950, there has been widespread speculation whether Soviet pilots were at the controls. I can say categorically that the UN command possesses adequate information to show that Russian pilots—sometimes in considerable numbers—in fact did engage our jets in combat.

"The evidence includes our pilots' reports of intercepted exchanges in Rusisan on the MIGs' intercom system, and the testimony of returned UN war prisoners that they had talked with Russian combat pilots while in North Korean prison camps."

Harry A. Bruno, the man who introduced sky-writing to the American public, has been named president and a director of the newly incorporated public relations firm that bears his name. Bruno's great success in business dates from that introduction.

Bruno was doing publicity in 1924 for a British ace of World War I, Maj. Jack Savage, who brought the first sky-writing equipment to the U. S. Their target was testy, free-wheeling George Washington Hill, head of the American Tobacco Company.

With British Capt. Cyril Turner at the controls Bruno and Savage arranged a special showing of the device for Hill. Turner, high over Times Square, wrote out "Hello, U. S. A."

"Interesting," Hill muttered, "but it won't sell cigarets."

Bruno had another idea. He sent the plane back into the air with instructions to spell out the phone number of the Vanderbilt Hotel. He had invited Hill to the Vanderbilt to await the results.

For three hours the Vanderbilt's switchboard was lighted like a Christmas tree. An appeal went out for extra operators. And Hill wrote a contract with the Skywriting Corporation of America for a million dollars worth of this celestial doodling.

This is the 50th anniversary of the invention of the tea bag, one of the few great boons still unclaimed by Russian science. All started in New York at the wholesale tea house of Thomas Sullivan. He used to give samples to prospective buyers, but classed up the gift by putting the tea in little silk bags. Someone, as a prank, dropped one of the bags into a cup of hot water.

Silk has long since given way to cheesecloth and gauze. Each bag now holds a blend of between 20 and 50 of the world's most accepted teas.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — What is sauce for the goose evidently isn't sauce for the gander after all. Democrats in the Senate who didn't object but voted to confirm Martin Durkin as secretary of labor a year ago, even though he retained his ties with the International Plumbers' Union, are now making quite a fuss over the fact that Albert C. Beeson, nominated for membership on the National Labor Relations Board, may some day derive a pension from his former employer.

Mr. Beeson's company has stated flatly that he has no contract or agreement that provides for his return to the company whenever he terminates his service on the labor board, but there are members of the Senate who think an eventual pension raises "doubts" about his impartiality.

Erecting A Barrier

Everybody knows that in any case involving a former employer the member of the labor board affected usually would disqualify himself from sitting in that particular proceeding. But to argue that a commitment to receive a pension some day from a company makes a man so prejudiced on the side of management that he can never be fair in hearing any cases of management and labor is to erect a barrier which was conveniently overlooked last year by the same Democrats who are objecting now to the confirmation of Mr. Beeson.

Mr. Durkin became secretary of labor in the Eisenhower cabinet not withstanding an agreement in writing which provided for his resumption of the post of presidency of the union whenever his service in the government would be terminated. Incidentally, Mr. Durkin, as secretary of labor, was to assume a post that in many respects is just as much a quasi-judicial office as that of any member of the labor board. For the secretary of labor has authority to determine minimum wages to be paid under government contracts under the Walsh-Healy Act and the Davis-Bacon Law.

When Mr. Durkin went before the Senate Labor Committee last year, he got a different reception than Mr. Beeson is getting today. Here is an extract from the official testimony on January 16, 1953, just before the committee voted unanimously to recommend confirmation to the Senate.

"Mr. Durkin: . . . If I am appointed to the position of secretary of labor, I have already made arrangements to leave my post as general president of the United Association (plumbers' union) without any ties whatever to the union other than being a member, without any salary, and without any compensation for expenses or any moneys of any type. . .

"Senator Taft: And you will resign your position as president of the United Association, you said? I think you said you would leave your post. . .

"Mr. Durkin: I have taken a leave of absence with no authority to transact any of the affairs. I may return at some later date, and, of course, that is entirely —

'Senator Taft: You may return? Is there an agreement that you will return if necessary?

"Mr. Durkin: Oh, no; no agreement.

"Senator Taft: You mean you may; you are eligible to return, of course?

"Mr. Durkin: As a member, I am eligible to return."

At a press conference held in New York at the Eisenhower headquarters on December 5, 1952, the question was asked of Mr. Durkin:

"Are you now on technical leave of absence?"

"I will go on complete severance. I would go back as president, just as I am now."

Had Leave Of Absence

In the 1953 "Directory of Labor Unions," issued by the U. S. Department of Labor, a footnote to the plumber's union listing states that Mr. Durkin "was granted leave of absence not to exceed four years while serving in his post as secretary of the U. S. Department of Labor."

Mr. Durkin, while in office, was influential enough to block a prospective appointment to the National Labor Relations Board, even though the senators from the state in question both endorsed him. The labor unions objected, and that was enough to enable Mr. Durkin to veto the appointment.

So, when a labor-union executive gets "leave of absence" from his position as a top union officer to enter the government, no objections are made by the radicals and so-called "liberals" in the Senate. Yet, when a man has absolutely no contract or agreement to return to his former employer but merely will derive a pension some day when he reaches an advanced age, these same radicals and "liberals" argue that he cannot possibly be impartial and must of necessity be biased in favor of management. Apparently it's all right for a former union official to come into the government and retain connections, but not so for a management man. That's an odd conception of "impartiality."

These Days

Lawyers And The Press

For quite a bit, judges and lawyers have been quarreling over the right of the people to know what is going on about them, particularly as regards criminals. Louis Waldman is chairman of a committee of the New York State Bar Association which has issued a recommendation to gag the press on pre-trial reporting that could be interpreted to mean that the press should be silent until a case has reached the United States Supreme Court four or five years away. What a wonderful thing that would have been for the Rosenbergs!

Waldman cited an example in a speech he delivered presenting his report which completely shows the weakness of his thinking. Here it is:

"Within the last month a young woman student at a college close by New York City was viciously and brutally attacked. Two young men, one 16 and the other 21, were apprehended that very night by the police and placed under arrest for this atrocious crime. The police, in announcing the arrest of these youths, then proceeded to report that they had made a full confession admitting the assault and the press naturally carried this alleged confession as a prominent part of the story."

Waldman does not deny the rape, the confession, the guilt or anything about the case. He only says that Americans get emotional when their daughters or their neighbors' daughters get raped by hoodlums. He objects to the publication of such news because the rapist thereupon faces an irate public. Does he wish the fathers of the community to form a reception committee for the rapists and present the beasts with bouquets of roses?

Now along comes another lawyer, Edwin M. Otterbourg, president of the New York County Lawyers' Association, who has this to say:

"But the one great industry, the important fourth estate, has not yet adopted any enforceable code of ethics. To the contrary, each newspaper thinks it can be its own judge and jury as to what it is right and wrong to do with respect to the reporting of litigations.

"It seems that in some fields, rights which have been given by law are being so abused that the time may come when the people who make the laws abridge these rights."

No newspaper instructs a reporter to commit a murder so that more newspapers will be sold. The murder is committed by the murderer, the rape by the rapist, the mugging by the mugger, the treachery by the traitor.

When the deed is done, there are four parties at interest, if we use a murder as an example:

1. The murdered person;

2. Those who are deprived of the life, the company, and sometimes the support of the murdered person;

3. The community which is entitled to peace and order and which pays heavily in taxes to see to it that murders do not take place;

4. The murderer, usually a person without whom the community can well exist.

While it is true that the murderer is entitled to a fair trial, it is also true that the murdered person is entitled to a fair trial, and it is also true that the community is justified in demanding that the malefactor be punished. The assumption that because a man has kidnaped a child, murdered the little boy, taken ransom money from his parents, broken their hearts and probably their lives, robbed a nation of parents of their peace of mind—the assumption that after a moron has done that, all human emotions should be repressed in his interest is arrant nonsense.

True, newspaper reporting makes it tough on lawyers whose interest is to get their clients off, to have a sentence reduced from first-degree murder to manslaughter, to have him imprisoned instead of executed, to get him a parole or a reprieve or a pardon. But that is not the public interest.

It must be admitted that some newspapers emphasize the sensational rather than the important, that in some the news is slanted by overemphasis or even distortion. But in the United States, there is such a variety of newspapers, radio and television reporting and news weeklies that the reader can select for himslf that which he believes to be true. No one forces him to accept any one medium. No one deprives him of a different presentation. A free press is one which can be different and diverse in freedom.

Ex-Annapolis Patrolman Testifies At His Trial He Struck Negro Only When Attacked

BALTIMORE, Feb. 4 (AP)—Former Annapolis City Patrolman Henry W. Trott Jr. told a federal court jury today he hit a drunken Negro prisoner only once, and only after the prisoner made a grab at him.

Trott is accused of repeatedly striking, kicking and stamping Elmore Roberts after Roberts was arrested Aug. 7, 1953.

An admittedly hostile witness testified that Trott told Roberts: "We generally kill niggers like you."

Trott is being tried on a 90-year-old federal statute forbidding law officers to deprive any person of his rights and privileges under the U. S. Constitution by reason of that person's color or race. The penalty is a maximum fine of $1,000, one year's imprisonment, or both.

Judge W. Calvin Chesnut remarked at the close of the day's session that it was the first case in his memory to be tried in district court here under the statute.

He said under the circumstances he did not want the case to go to the jury without full argument and explanation of the law involved. Accordingly, he held the case over until 10 a.m. Monday.

Both Roberts and City Police Cpl. Joseph A. Farrell testified that Roberts was struck several times, knocked to the floor and kicked and stamped upon after his arrest for drunkenness. Both denied that Roberts gave any provocation for such treatment.

Farrell, who said Trott told the Negro: "We generally kill niggers like you," added that at no time did Roberts say anything except to plead not to be hit.

Farrell was asked:

"Are you a friend of Henry Trott's?"

"No," he replied.

"Do you like him?"

"There is a mutual dislike between us."

Trott, on the stand in his own defense, said Roberts was arrested after trying to prevent other city officers from arresting his wife and that on the way to the police station the prisoner threatened:

"I'm going to kill you and all the rest of the policemen in this town."

Trott said Roberts grabbed him after being ordered into the cell block at the police station and that he struck Roberts only after warning the Negro to let go. He denied he kicked or stamped the prisoner.

McKeldin, Aides And SRC Discuss Road Legislation

BALTIMORE, Feb. 4 (AP) — Gov. McKeldin and his Highway Advisory Council met with the State Roads Commission in their twice-monthly meeting today and talked about roads legislation which the administration will seek during the General Assembly session now in progress at Annapolis.

Joseph D. Buscher, special assistant attorney general assigned to the roads commission, was directed to draw up the bills and turn them over to legislative leaders early next week.

No announcement was made today about the points discussed.

Commission members have said previously they would seek a revision of the law on toll roads. As it stands now, the commission cannot build a toll highway unless it would bring in enough revenue to finance the entire project.

Traffic engineers have decided there is no road Maryland could build that would meet this requirement.

There are routes, however, which could easily be converted into toll roads and would produce enough revenue to pay back at least part of their cost, the experts say. The commission would like to have the law changed to give it this power.

Some of the possibilities for toll roads are the Washington National Pike from Washington to Frederick, the Washington-Annapolis Expressway and its connection to the Chesapeake Bay Bridge, and the Eastern Shore Expressway from the bay bridge northeastward to the Delaware line at Warwick.

Bribe Charge Against Policeman Dismissed

BALTIMORE, Feb. 4 (AP) — The grand jury today dismissed a bribery charge accusing motorcycle policeman George N. Glick of accepting $10 from a motorist he arrested on a speeding charge.

Glick was accused of receiving the money Jan. 20 and had been ordered held for grand jury action by Magistrate William F. Laukaitis.

Under grand jury secrecy, there was no disclosure of testimony which prompted the dismissal of charges. The action was noted by a stamp on the face of the Police Court charge which read: "Dismissed, Feb. 4, 1954."

About 45 per cent of Rhode Island's labor force is employed in manufacturing as compared with 24 per cent of the United States as a whole.

Hagerstown Pushes Lagging CD Program

HAGERSTOWN, Feb. 4 (AP) — Hagerstown, criticized last fall because its sirens weren't even installed during a statewide alert, is having another try at an active Civil Defense program.

Five air raid sirens, delivered here a year ago last December, are still in their crates at the city equipment building and there are no signs designating air raid shelters.

But a new city administration under Mayor Winslow F. Burhans has appointed Fire Chief John W. Hall as city Civil Defense director. Hall intends to build a staff to arouse public interest in Civil Defense.

The local movement has been sparked by the American Legion.

As the first step toward activating the program, an advisory group of local businessmen has been named to give advice on broad policies to be followed.

Campaign Success

BALTIMORE, Feb. 4 (AP) — The Maryland Traffic Safety Commission said today its campaign over the Christmas-New Year holidays urging drivers to take coffee for that "one for the road" was a success.

The Commission said the campaign "indisputably" contributed to the decline in highway deaths from 21 for the 1952-1953 holidays to 13 for the holidays just passed.

The Commission also noted that highway injuries were down from 384 the previous year to 286, a decline of 25 per cent.

Even if you can't get into the surf, get into your swim suit and give your figure its due!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

With spirits becalmed to an utterly listless state, what is one to do? Acknowledge being caught in the winter doldrums and wait patiently, muttering, "This too will pass?"

I say don't sit down — take action instead! Wherever you may be, give yourself the benefits of a winter vacation.

Since you can't romp on the beach or fight the surf at this time of year except in the winter playgrounds get into your swim suit anyway — and give yourself a daily workout at home that will limber your figure and taper unwanted bulges into the gentle curves of beauty.

Here's how:

Body Beautification

1. Lie on your left side on the floor with arms straight up overhead. Do twenty straight-leg scissors kicks. Turn on your right side and do twenty more.

2. Now, in the same position, roll over and over to one end of the room and back again. Roll and roll and roll!

3. Next bring your knees up to your chest. Keeping your feet and legs together, describe ten circles to the left as you straighten your legs and bring them to the floor. Do it again, describing ten circles to the right as you straighten and lower your legs.

4. Bring knees up to your chest again, elbows bent so hands are on shoulders. Keep your back flat on the floor and roll knees from side to side touching them to the floor with each roll—twenty times.

5. Still on the floor, knees up to chest, clasp hands around your knees and rock back and forth, rolling from shoulder to hips. Rock and rock and rock!

Bosom Benefit

6. Now stand up and finish with this bosom benefit: Place arms straight out at sides at shoulder level. Then cross them, left over right above your chest. Finish the swing by uncrossing them and throwing arms back as far as they will go. Next cross them right over left and again back. Twenty rapid swings!

These fairly easy routines will give your body a complete energizing workout to renew your verve, step up your circulation and bring your figure into more attractive, balanced proportions, regardless of your problems. What more could you expect even of all the exercise you might get on any winter playground in the deep, warm southland?

Tomorrow: Midwinter pick-up for jaded appetites!

Two Men Return To Courtroom Two Days Later

Two local men paroled Wednesday in Allegany County Circuit Court on habitual drunkard charges will be back in the same courtroom at 10 o'clock this morning as parole violators.

Police Wednesday night arrested Luther Huff and Eugene Oldaker who were given suspended sentences of six months in the House of Correction by Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris.

Both denied drunk accusations at separate hearings yesterday in Police Court before Magistrate Donald W. Mason.

The prisoners were ordered held for Judge Harris. Huff also drew a five-day term in default of $5 fine.

Harris had advised Huff to contact Alcoholics Anonymous. He paroled both men for two years on condition they abstain from the use of alcoholic beverages.

Huff, who pleaded not guilty at Wednesday's trial and said he was asleep in the Blue Ridge Bus Terminal, was picked up at the same location with two other men. A half gallon bottle of wine was confiscated.

Even if you can't get into the surf, get into your swim suit and give your figure its due!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

With spirits becalmed to an utterly listless state, what is one to do? Acknowledge being caught in the winter doldrums and wait patiently, muttering, "This too will pass?"

I say don't sit down — take action instead! Wherever you may be, give yourself the benefits of a winter vacation.

Since you can't romp on the beach or fight the surf at this time of year except in the winter playgrounds get into your swim suit anyway — and give yourself a daily workout at home that will limber your figure and taper unwanted bulges into the gentle curves of beauty.

Here's how:

Body Beautification

1. Lie on your left side on the floor with arms straight up overhead. Do twenty straight-leg scissors kicks. Turn on your right side and do twenty more.

2. Now, in the same position, roll over and over to one end of the room and back again. Roll and roll and roll!

3. Next bring your knees up to your chest. Keeping your feet and legs together, describe ten circles to the left as you straighten your legs and bring them to the floor. Do it again, describing ten circles to the right as you straighten and lower your legs.

4. Bring knees up to your chest again, elbows bent so hands are on shoulders. Keep your back flat on the floor and roll knees from side to side touching them to the floor with each roll—twenty times.

5. Still on the floor, knees up to chest, clasp hands around your knees and rock back and forth, rolling from shoulder to hips. Rock and rock and rock!

Bosom Benefit

6. Now stand up and finish with this bosom benefit: Place arms straight out at sides at shoulder level. Then cross them, left over right above your chest. Finish the swing by uncrossing them and throwing arms back as far as they will go. Next cross them right over left and again back. Twenty rapid swings!

These fairly easy routines will give your body a complete energizing workout to renew your verve, step up your circulation and bring your figure into more attractive, balanced proportions, regardless of your problems. What more could you expect even of all the exercise you might get on any winter playground in the deep, warm southland?

Tomorrow: Midwinter pick-up for jaded appetites!

Two Men Return To Courtroom Two Days Later

Two local men paroled Wednesday in Allegany County Circuit Court on habitual drunkard charges will be back in the same courtroom at 10 o'clock this morning as parole violators.

Police Wednesday night arrested Luther Huff and Eugene Oldaker who were given suspended sentences of six months in the House of Correction by Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris.

Both denied drunk accusations at separate hearings yesterday in Police Court before Magistrate Donald W. Mason.

The prisoners were ordered held for Judge Harris. Huff also drew a five-day term in default of $5 fine.

Harris had advised Huff to contact Alcoholics Anonymous. He paroled both men for two years on condition they abstain from the use of alcoholic beverages.

Huff, who pleaded not guilty at Wednesday's trial and said he was asleep in the Blue Ridge Bus Terminal, was picked up at the same location with two other men. A half gallon bottle of wine was confiscated.

Later officers found Oldaker "doubled up" with a half-pint bottle of wine in his possession.

J. King.

Chairmen of the program were Mrs. Lee Alexander and Mrs. James Kelly.

The attendance award was won by the home room taught by Miss Martha Payne. Refreshments were served by the Fourth Grade Mothers.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 4 (INS)—I read Morris (Kayo) Lipsius' drama-packed, true life thriller, "I Put the Finger on Waxey Gordon," on an airplane trip, and it held me so completely engrossed that we had landed before I was conscious that we were home.

Interesting to me is the news that Lindsley Parsons has bought this magazine expose of how an ex-con lead federal officers to one of the most notorious racketeers of our time. He'll make it for Allied Artists with Mark Stevens as the star. Mark told me, when I interviewed him, that he was glad he was free of movie contracts so he could pick and choose his own vehicles. Well, this one should be to his liking.

Before we get off the subject of Lipsius, he's been living under an assumed name and hidin, out from possible mob violence ever since the article was printed. Only the FBI knows his whereabouts—one of their top secrets.

Jeanne Crain's test for "Helen of Troy" turned out so well that Jack Warner has sent it to Rome for Director Robert Wise to see. So far, Wise hasn't come up with a European actress to play the beauteous lady who won so many masculine hearts.

Jeanne says she would love to play Helen and she has plenty of time before she starts "Gentlemen Marry Brunettes" for Dick and Mary Sale in Paris. Jeanne has another assignment to make a picture in Italy, but this time she'll take all four children.

Clark Gable's leave-taking of MGM after 23 years is typical. When the cameras turned for the final scene on "Betrayed," the King got in his car parked outside the sound stage, then with a wave of the hand and a kiss blown in the direction of his old pal the gateman, Gable left the lot that has been his home for almost a quarter of a century.

There were no dramatics, no speeches, no plaques presented to the star who has been as well liked by his co-workers and the crews of his films as he was by the boys in the front offices who count the money.

Next week, Clark leaves for Arizona (methinks there's a new femme attraction the e) but he'll be back in his lawyers office March 3 to sign the papers officially ending his long contract with MGM.

Over-eage columnists who printed that Vittorio Gassman and Shelley Winters were being "ardent" in their love scenes in "Mambo" really jumped the gun.

A cable just received from Rome reveals that Vittorio doesn't wind up his appearance in "Hamlet" in Milan until today and then he goes immediately to Venice to catch up with the "Mambo" company.

Whether or not Shelley has sufficiently recovered from her nervous breakdown to be back in the picture, I don't know. But the battling Gassmans have not yet met face to face since she called Gassman everything in the book in headlines!

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Andy Russell hasn't wasted any time finding a new love. His big romance in Mexico City is Ariadna Skipsey, sister of inda Christian. Ariadna is divorced from Charles Skipsey, wealthy liquor distributor, and Andy has just been divorced by Della Russell.

Irene Dune bought four Don Loper dresses for her Brazilian trip. Lorena (Mrs. Louis B.) Mayer also added several Lopers. I'm trying to stay away until I get my Christmas bills paid — because I always go Loper crazy.

Don Defore, back from touring for the March of Dimes, has a bad case of laryngitis, but he received good care in his home town in Iowa.

Guy Madison wonders how his western fans will take the news that he is becoming a golfer and has joined the Lakeside Country Club. I don't think a little thing like that's going to make any difference.

The kitchen in the Fox and Hounds restaurant was closed when Fred MacMurray and June Haver came in, but the chef went to work and whipped up a dinner for them at 1 a. m.

Three Israel Natives To Present Program

Three artists, all of whom are natives of Israel, will be featured on the fourth program arranged by the Jewish Cultural Committee of Cumberland, to be presented at 8 p. m. Sunday at the Fort Cumberland Hotel.

The trio will include Dinah Peskin, Aviva Hallaban and Ziggy Lichtbau and their presentations will include singing, dancing and dramatizations.

Miss Peskin, who has the distinction of being the youngest member of Israel's national theatre, Habimah, was starred in the film, "The Faithful City."

Miss Hallaban, who is a fourth generation Israeli, attended the Hebrew University where she majored in English. She began her musical education at the age of ten years and in 1946 began to study voice with Rosa Pauli, formerly of the Metropolitan Opera. She has appeared on the concert stage numerous times since her arrival in America.

Lichtbau was born in Vienna and began his musical career with the study of the piano. He began playing the accordion as a hobby when 16 years of age and developed the hobby into a profession.

City Water Supply Lessens As Area Dry Spell Continues

Users of Cumberland's city water may be called upon for strict conservation of the supply in the event the six-month dry spell continues.

This was revealed yesterday by William J. Edwards, commissioner of water and electric light, who added that department officials are not unduly alarmed about the situation.

"One good rain would do it," he said. Three inches of rain over a period of a couple of days will fill both lakes, he predicted.

January was the sixth straight month during which Cumberland experienced below normal rainfall.

Incidentally, a reprieve may be in store for the city — the Weather Bureau in Baltimore reporting the 30-day outlook for the Cumberland area indicated the possibility of "slightly more than the normal amount of precipitation."

Normal precipitation in this area is about 2⅛ inches. The Weather Bureau said about 2½ inches can be expected.

For the last three weeks all city water has been coming from Lake Gordon. The use of Lake Koon's supply was stopped when the level dropped to 38 feet six inches.

Pennsylvania authorities stop the use of Lake Koon when its level drops to 42 feet below the spillway.

Rain and snow of the past three weeks failed to increase the amount of water in the upper and larger lake. It is still around 38 feet.

The water level in Lake Gordon has been steadily falling, Commissioner Edwards reported, adding while Lake Koon was feeding the lower lake, the crest stayed at the level of the dam. Since Lake Koon has been cut off, Lake Gordon has been steadily falling.

During the six months ending January 30, the precipitation in Cumberland was 6.06 inches below the normal for that period of the year.

Lake Koon holds 2,300,000,000 gallons when full, and Lake Gordon, 1,330,000,000 gallons. Lake Koon covers 258 acres and Gordon, 133 acres.

In the municipal supply watershed in Pennsylvania, Bedford and Everett have had to curtail the use of water.

Three Israel Natives To Present Program

Three artists, all of whom are natives of Israel, will be featured on the fourth program arranged by the Jewish Cultural Committee of Cumberland, to be presented at 8 p. m. Sunday at the Fort Cumberland Hotel.

The trio will include Dinah Peskin, Aviva Hallaban and Ziggy Lichtbau and their presentations will include singing, dancing and dramatizations.

Miss Peskin, who has the distinction of being the youngest member of Israel's national theatre, Habimah, was starred in the film, "The Faithful City."

Miss Hallaban, who is a fourth generation Israeli, attended the Hebrew University where she majored in English. She began her musical education at the age of ten years and in 1946 began to study voice with Rosa Pauli, formerly of the Metropolitan Opera. She has appeared on the concert stage numerous times since her arrival in America.

Lichtbau was born in Vienna and began his musical career with the study of the piano. He began playing the accordion as a hobby when 16 years of age and developed the hobby into a profession.

City Water Supply Lessens As Area Dry Spell Continues

Users of Cumberland's city water may be called upon for strict conservation of the supply in the event the six-month dry spell continues.

This was revealed yesterday by William J. Edwards, commissioner of water and electric light, who added that department officials are not unduly alarmed about the situation.

"One good rain would do it," he said. Three inches of rain over a period of a couple of days will fill both lakes, he predicted.

January was the sixth straight month during which Cumberland experienced below normal rainfall.

Incidentally, a reprieve may be in store for the city — the Weather Bureau in Baltimore reporting the 30-day outlook for the Cumberland area indicated the possibility of "slightly more than the normal amount of precipitation."

Normal precipitation in this area is about 2¼ inches. The Weather Bureau said about 2½ inches can be expected.

For the last three weeks all city water has been coming from Lake Gordon. The use of Lake Koon's supply was stopped when the level dropped to 38 feet six inches.

Pennsylvania authorities stop the use of Lake Koon when its level drops to 42 feet below the spillway.

Rain and snow of the past three weeks failed to increase the amount of water in the upper and larger lake. It is still around 38 feet.

The water level in Lake Gordon has been steadily falling, Commissioner Edwards reported, adding while Lake Koon was feeding the lower lake, the crest stayed at the level of the dam. Since Lake Koon has been cut off, Lake Gordon has been steadily falling.

During the six months ending January 30, the precipitation in Cumberland was 6.06 inches below the normal for that period of the year.

Lake Koon holds 2,300,000,000 gallons when full, and Lake Gordon. 1,330,000,000 gallons. Lake Koon covers 258 acres and Gordon, 133 acres.

In the municipal supply watershed in Pennsylvania, Bedford and Everett have had to curtail the use of water.

Westernport Council Plans Town Election

Clerks And Judges To Be Named Feb. 17

WESTERNPORT — Election officials to serve at the municipal election of the Town of Westernport Monday, May 24, will be appointed at the next meeting of Mayor Okey E. Michael and the Commissioners of Westernport on February 17.

An application for one of the clerks of the election received from Mrs. Margaret Kelley Daniels who has served several times was read at the meeting of the Mayor and Council Wednesday evening.

The Board of Election Supervisors of Allegany County was given permission to hold registrations for new voters in the City Building on April 14 from 1 to 4 p. m. and 6 to 9 p. m. and on May 26, 27, 28 and 29, from 1 to 5 p. m. and 6 to 8 p. m.

William Grove, requested that a sewer be extended 60 feet to take care of draining water from his property on Poplar Street. Council told him the complaint would be investigated this week.

It was ordered that Glace and Glace, consulting engineers, of Harrisburg, Pa., continue with the study of the town's water system with the approval of the town attorney, Horace P. Whitworth Sr. They will furnish a detailed report with recommendations. They have completed a preliminary survey.

It was ordered that Roosevelt Street near Charles Riley's home be repaired with temporary material until a more permanent job can be done.

Mayor Michael reported that $250.05 was paid on principal and interest of the parking lot loan last month.

Murphy Company Wins Court Suit

A Mineral County Circuit Court jury at Keyser Wednesday returned a judgment for the G. C. Murphy Company in the civil case of Lelia Wendell against the company.

The case had attracted considerable attention and was previously tried in 1951. It was appealed to the Supreme Court of West Virginia and ordered for retrial in Mineral County.

Mrs. Wendell claimed she suffered injuries in a fall in the company's Keyser store. George Ellifritz served as foreman of the jury.

Area Poultry Growers Take Loss As Low Prices Continue

A low-priced market is squeezing poultry growers in the South Branch area and in the Delmarva Peninsula.

Since Christmas, raisers have been taking a one to two-cent loss on each pound they have been marketing.

An official of the Rockingham Poultry Company in Moorefield said yesterday that the price per pound has been running 20 and 21 cents.

To break even, he said, the grower must get 22 to 23 cents a pound for live birds. To make a sensible profit and run a business-like operation he should get 25 cents a pound.

Today's prices at the large Moorefield processing plant will be 20-21 cents a pound for live fowl. Rockingham is selling at 38 cents a pound in the Pittsburgh, Washington and Baltimore markets.

Currently the firm is processing 20,000 chickens a day, bringing its marketing to a 100,000 a week, or 5,200,000 chickens a year.

Most of the growers operate under a contract plan with feed companies, whereby they are furnished peeps, feed, medicine and fuel allowance, for a share of the profit.

Wednesday 15 representatives from the Eastern Shore and Delaware poultry raising section met in Washington with Senators Williams and Frear of Delaware and officials of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

They were told the price situation on the Eastern Shore is being studied to see if government emergency aid is needed.

Market sources on the Shore said many growers have been losing money. Low prices have persisted since last Thanksgiving. For instance, the prices this week have ranged from 18-24 cents a pound.

A report by the Northeastern Poultry Producers Council said there probably would be no easing of the situation for another month, when fewer chickens will be going to market.

The meeting in Washington Wednesday was sponsored by the Delmarva Chicken Festival. A spokesman said the group was told the shore situation was being studied to determine what measures would be most beneficial.

Since Christmas, raisers have been taking a one to two-cent loss on each pound they have been marketing.

An official of the Rockingham Poultry Company in Moorefield said yesterday that the price per pound has been running 20 and 21 cents.

To break even, he said, the grower must get 22 to 23 cents a pound for live birds. To make a sensible profit and run a business-like operation he should get 25 cents a pound.

Today's prices at the large Moorefield processing plant will be 20-21 cents a pound for live fowl. Rockingham is selling at 38 cents a pound in the Pittsburgh, Washington and Baltimore markets.

Currently the firm is processing 20,000 chickens a day, bringing its marketing to a 100,000 a week, or 5,200,000 chickens a year.

Most of the growers operate under a contract plan with feed companies, whereby they are furnished peeps, feed, medicine and fuel allowance, for a share of the profit.

Wednesday 15 representatives from the Eastern Shore and Delaware poultry raising section met in Washington with Senators Williams and Frear of Delaware and officials of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

They were told the price situation on the Eastern Shore is being studied to see if government emergency aid is needed.

Market sources on the Shore said many growers have been losing money. Low prices have persisted since last Thanksgiving. For instance, the prices this week have ranged from 18-24 cents a pound.

A report by the Northeastern Poultry Producers Council said there probably would be no easing of the situation for another month, when fewer chickens will be going to market.

The meeting in Washington Wednesday was sponsored by the Delmarva Chicken Festival. A spokesman said the group was told the shore situation was being studied to determine what measures would be most beneficial.

W. Va. Republican Executive Committee Is Reorganized At Tumultous Session

J. Offutt Lakin, Of Charleston, Succeeds Spencer K. Creel As Chairman

By HERB LITTLE

CHARLESTON, Feb. 4 (AP)—Spencer K. Creel reluctantly resigned as Republican state chairman today at one of the most tumultous committee meetings the party ever held in West Virginia.

He acted only after shouted demands from the floor that he resign. A roll call vote on the question of his ouster was pending at the time.

A minority of the committee, opposing the leadership of Republican National Committeeman Walter S. Hallanan, fought an inch-by-inch delaying movement against reorganization of the state committee.

The minority group on its only tabulated voting test of strength, was able to muster only 14 votes against 51 for the Hallanan faction.

A bitter personal feud between Hallanan and Rush D. Holt of Weston, who made the selection of Creel as the GOP nominee for governor in 1952, had led up to the meeting today.

With Creel out of the picture, tempers subsided and J. Offutt Lakin, Charleston advertising man, was elected without opposition as the new state chairman.

Lakin had been vice chairman of the committee and is also a former city manager of Charleston.

Others who had been mentioned for the chairmanship include D. Boone Dawson, a former mayor of Charleston and the Republican nominee for governor in 1940 and again in 1944; Myron R. (Rusty) Renick, Fayetteville attorney and former national vice-commander of the American Legion; and Robert H. C. Kay.

However, after Creel resigned, Lakin moved up to the chairmanship without opposition on the floor.

Other subjects voted upon were Education, Culture, Fine Arts, International Relations, Legislation, Home Finance and Economic Security, Gerontology and National Resources.

W. Va. Republican Executive Committee Is Reorganized At Tumultous Session

J. Offutt Lakin, Of Charleston, Succeeds Spencer K. Creel As Chairman

By HERB LITTLE

CHARLESTON, Feb. 4 (AP)—Spencer K. Creel reluctantly resigned as Republican state chairman today at one of the most tumultous committee meetings the party ever held in West Virginia.

He acted only after shouted demands from the floor that he resign. A roll call vote on the question of his ouster was pending at the time.

A minority of the committee, opposing the leadership of Republican National Committeeman Walter S. Hallanan, fought an inch-by-inch delaying movement against reorganization of the state committee.

The minority group on its only tabulated voting test of strength, was able to muster only 14 votes against 51 for the Hallanan faction.

A bitter personal feud between Hallanan and Rush D. Holt of Weston, who made the selection of Creel as the GOP nominee for governor in 1952, had led up to the meeting today.

With Creel out of the picture, tempers subsided and J. Offutt Lakin, Charleston advertising man, was elected without opposition as the new state chairman.

Lakin had been vice chairman of the committee and is also a former city manager of Charleston.

Others who had been mentioned for the chairmanship include D. Boone Dawson, a former mayor of Charleston and the Republican nominee for governor in 1940 and again in 1944; Myron R. (Rusty) Renick, Fayetteville attorney and former national vice-commander of the American Legion; and Robert H. C. Kay.

However, after Creel resigned, Lakin moved up to the chairmanship without opposition on the floor.

Moorefield Woman's Club Studies Bookmobile System

MOOREFIELD—Miss Edna Prunty of the staff of the West Virginia Library Commission, visited the Moorefield Woman's Club Monday evening and, with the aid of William Clarke and Joseph Schriver, presented two movies showing the work of Bookmobiles.

The Library Commission is dividing the state into regions and Hardy County comes in the 13th region. Miss Prunty explained how groups, organizations and individuals could obtain books from the Library Commission on a lending basis.

Mrs. Courtney Pratt gave a brief review of the General Federation Club Woman, emphasing two articles: the first, Allied Youth Group Combats Alcoholism, and the second, a poll of the club as to topics preferred for future GFWC programs. The local club selected Family Life, Youth Conservation, Community Responsibility and Citizenship, National Defense, Health (including mental health) and National Heritage as the ones they would prefer to study. Other subjects voted upon were Education, Culture, Fine Arts, International Relations, Legislation, Home Finance and Economic Security, Gerontology and National Resources.

The club meeting was held at the home of Mrs. M. H. Maxwell with Mrs. C. B. Bishoff, presiding. It was announced that the food sale, sponsored by the club, resulted in $145.25 for the March of Dimes campaign and the card party at the Library building, Friday night, $33.

Mrs. Paul Harper has made arrangements for the annual Art contest to be held among art students at the local school.

There was some discussion of the proposed organization of a Girl Scout Troop and whether or not it would be better to concentrate upon assisting the already organized 4-H clubs.

Co-hostesses with Mrs. Maxwell were Miss Edna Bauserman and Mrs. Paul Sutton.

Snyder Elected President Of Celanese Union

Lewis Is Renamed To Vice Presidency

Earl Snyder, 46, has been elected president of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America (CIO).

A former president, Snyder was elected to the post after defeating Playford Aldridge, a four-time president, in a run-off election which ended Wednesday.

The ballot count was not announced by the election committee, headed by George Lyons, but officials said Snyder won by a "considerable majority."

Snyder works in Department 9 of the Cellulose Acetate department at the Amcelle plant. A widower, he lives at 140 Independence Street with his two daughters.

He was elected president in 1950 and was a strong contender in each succeeding election.

The second post at stake in the run-off, the vice presidency, was won by Irvin Lewis, the incumbent, who defeated Thomas Powers "by a comfortable margin."

Other officers elected in the regular voting are Melvin Harris, business manager; Charles E. "Buck" Jones, recording secretary; James Boyland, Vito Dormio, Lindley Dye, Ira McBride and John Powell, members of the executive board; Russell Clites, James McGann, Carl Sherman, Earl Walker and Robert Jones, members of the board of trustees. The latter was a write-in selection.

Novel Securities

Now the question probably arises, "How can anyone get rich on an installment plan of investment?"

The answer is: "You can't get rich." This investment plan is not a get-rich scheme. It is exactly what it is said to be—a chance to use a limited capital, regularly, over a period of time to accumulate securities and, perhaps, to increase holdings by the possible increased value of stocks owned.

It is simply a convenience offered to those of moderate income to help them save money regularly and systematically, and also to have the possibilities of common stock ownership and dividends.

The plan is simple and sound.

All that is necessary is to enter into an agreement with any member broker to save as little as $40 at a time; more if desired.

This $40 installment payment can be made each month, or if that is a little too steep, it can be made on a quarterly basis.

In other words, $40 each three months—that's $160 a year— will put the average individual in the common stock market.

There is no interest to pay. There are no carrying charges or extra fees for the plan.

What actually happens may be followed from this example:

Suppose you want to invest $50 each three months in common stocks and you sign such an agreement with the broker. The brokerage house turns your money over to an "odd-lot" Stock Exchange member, designated to handle the plan.

The stocks you have indicated you wish to buy will be purchased at the market quotation the next day, and credited to your account. Suppose your stock opens at $18 per share. Your payment of $50 buys you 2.6206 shares. Or if the stock is one that is quoted, say at $180, your payment will buy .2621 of a share. In either case, the transaction gives you actual ownership of that much common stock.

The firm keeps all accounts, sends out statements, pays dividends or uses them to buy more stock as you might designate.

It is possible to quit the plan at any time.

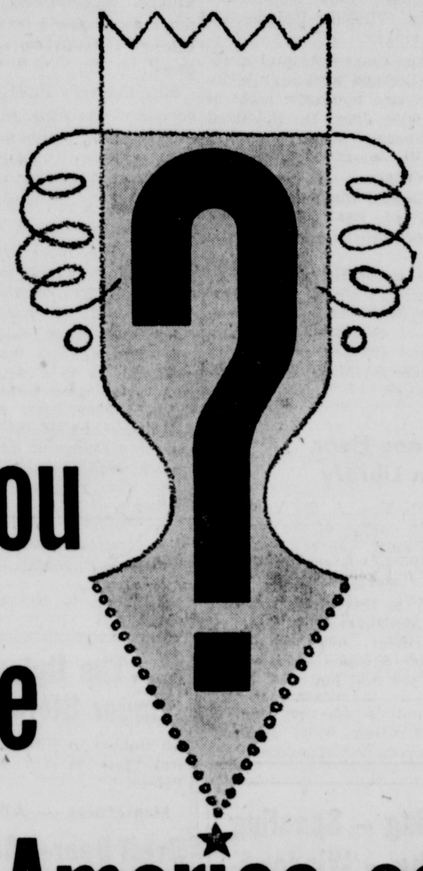

If a contract is cancelled by the purchaser, he gets his stock certificates, or the cash value, whichever he prefers.

Under the plan it is possible to invest in more than one stock at a time, so that diversified ownership is attained.

It is also possible to order your stocks, including fraction shares, sold any time you wish to take a profit. It is also possible, under the plan, to increase the amount of installments from $40 to any even amount up to $999.

Cumberland Fails To Ask Officially For Transfer Of Races

Rinehart Says Letter Must Go To Commission

No Action Is Taken On Marlboro Shift; Laurel Makes Offer

BALTIMORE, Feb. 4 (AP) — The State Racing Commission today turned down Pimlico, withheld a decision on Laurel and took no action on Cumberland, Bel Air and Ocean Downs—all trying to juggle dates already set by the commission.

D. Eldred Rinehart, chairman, said the commission at an all-day closed session, unanimously rejected a request by Pimlico for minor changes in the Baltimore oval's 1954 racing schedule.

Laurel asked to open its spring meeting one racing day earlier, on Saturday, March 20, instead of Monday, March 22, and to make Nov. 3 a dark day in the fall meeting.

Rinehart said a decision was put off until tomorrow.

He added, however, that a shift in Maryland's racing schedule may still be made by the possible relocation of Cumberland's 10-day program.

Cumberland, facing competition from Charles Town, W. Va., during its Aug. 4-14 meeting, has indicated it would like to hold its racing at Marlboro.

Must Send Letter

Cumberland, however, has not yet officially asked that its meet be transferred and until such a letter is forthcoming there will be no commission action, Rinehart said.

Laurel got into the Cumberland picture at today's meeting with a surprise offer to take the Western Maryland track's meeting.

John D. Schapiro, Laurel president, informed the commission he would be glad to open his track for the short August meeting to accommodate Cumberland.

Rinehart said the offer was turned over to the attorney general's office to determine whether the commission has authority to transfer a half-mile track meeting to a major plant.

He said he personally did not think it was within the commission's legal power to make such a move.

Bel Air Wants August

The commission also had a letter from G. Ray Bryson, requesting August dates for his Bel Air track in place of the Sept. 29-Oct. 9 meeting now assigned.

The request was contingent upon transfer of the Cumberland meet to a different time, and no action was taken at this time.

Ocean Downs, unhappy because its assigned dates would force it to compete with Delaware racing at Rosecroft and Brandywine, made no request at the meeting and the commission took no action on its own.

Pimlico, represented by General Manager John D. Jackson, had asked permission to run its spring meet from May 7-31 with dark days on May 11 and May 18, both Tuesdays. It also asked fall dates from Nov. 5-20, with November 14 dark.

ACCEPTS OFFER — Paul (Baer) Bryant, football coach at the University of Kentucky, yesterday wired acceptance of an offer to become athletic director and head coach of Texas A. & M. College under a six-year contract at $15,000 a year.

Federal Judge Dismisses Suit Against I. B. C.

Anti-Trust Action KO'd In 40 Minutes

NEW YORK, Feb. 4 (AP)—A federal judge knocked out today a government civil anti-trust suit against the International Boxing Club of New York and Illinois, promoters of virtually all championship fights in the United States in recent years.

The official kayo came after 40 minutes of argument in the first court round.

Judge Gregory F. Noonan said he was following a principle used by the U. S. Supreme Court last fall in tossing out an anti-trust action against organized baseball.

Accused Of Monopoly

The suit had accused the club of conspiring to monopolize championship bouts in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

The suit also named James D. Norris of New York and Arthur M. Wirtz of Chicago, owners of IBC, and the Madison Square Garden Corp., of New York.

When the action was brought in March, 1952, both Norris and Wirtz contended their business was "strictly legal."

"I feel the principle in this case is the same as that decided in the Supreme Court (in the baseball case) and I will follow Judge (John C.) Knox's ruling in the Shubert case," Judge Noonan ruled.

Judge Knox had ruled that the Shubert's legitimate theaters were in the entertainment field and not subject to anti-trust laws. The Supreme Court had used similar reasoning in the baseball case.

Not Covered By Act

"The Supreme Court laid down a broad principle which I say takes all professional sports out of the anti-trust act," Judge Noonan declared.

The government suit also had contended the club conspired to exclude competitors from radio, TV and movie rights.

Beall-Bruce At Frostburg Heads Cage Card Tonight

Valley At Fort Hill, AHS Hosts Mt. Savage, Lions At Moorefield

Coach "Ebbie" Finzel's Beall High "giant killers" and Augie Eichhorn's Bruce High Bulldogs will share the basketball spotlight tonight when they tangle at Frostburg as the W.M.I. League resumes action after being idle since the close of the first half of the schedule on January 22.

To remain tied with Allegany High for first place, Bruce must win tonight as the Campers figure to take Mt. Savage High's last place team into camp at Campobello. Both Bruce and AHS have 4-1 records in the six-school county circuit.

Bruce Won Opener

Bruce walloped Beall in Westernport, 72-49, in the opening game of the series but in view of the fact that the Mountain City aggregation handed Allegany its only defeat of the season on the Beall court (64-58 in overtime) and Piedmont was spilled on the same floor (62-52) after having whipped the Frostburg outfit, 6-45, at Piedmont, the Bulldogs could be muzzled also. That Beall blows hot and cold is shown in the Ridgeley series in which the Finzelman won at Ridgeley, 53-43 and lost at home, 55-52.

The Mountaineers have bagged 9 out of 13 games while Bruce, beaten in two close ones (Allegany 47-46 and Piedmont 69-52) has a 12-2 record. Like Beall, Bruce has split even with Piedmont.

Joe Stanislawszyk and Eddie Diehl will work the Valley High at Fort Hill game tonight. The Sentinels, defeated by Valley, 51-45, before Richard Waddell, Coney's high scorer was injured, figure to take the Black Knights and thus break a four-game losing streak. The Waddell-less visitors have dropped six in a row.

Allegany, victorious in 14 of 15 games will be gunning for its 7th straight when it faces Mt. Savage at Campobello tonight. Bill Hahn and "Tack" Clark will officiate.

LaSalle shoots for win No. 12 tonight when the Explorers invade Garrett County to play Northern High in a return game. The locals hold a 70-41 decision over Coach Lilburn Brown's quint. The game will be LaSalle's 16th of the campaign. The North Centre Street cagers have won 11 and lost 4.

Jackets Test Piedmont

Piedmont, undefeated in nine P.V.C. starts, is expected to have its hands full keeping that record going when it collides with Johnny Paugh's Moorefield Yellow Jackets at Moorefield. The Lions had a tough time beating the Jackets at Piedmont, 51-47, and the Hardy countians, in the conference runner-up spot, should be just as tough, if not tougher, at home.

Bob Hartman's Franklin Panthers put a 7-game winning streak on the line when they tackle Petersburg's Vikings at Franklin tonight. The Pendleton countians dropped a 61-53 decision at Petersburg and they'll be out to avenge that setback. Franklin is 8-2 in the P.V.C. and is still in the running for the title. In other P.V.C. tests Ridgeley is at Romney, West Virginia School for the Deaf at Wardensville and Mathias at Capon Bridge.

Other Friday night contests include Southern of Oakland at Bayard, Circleville at Thomas, Alumni-Faculty at Hyndman High, Hagerstown at Westminster and Frederick at Martinsburg.

Baseball Briefs

CLEVELAND, Feb. 4 (AP) — Outfielder Bob Kennedy signed his 1954 contract with the Cleveland Indians today. Terms, as usual were not disclosed, but it's a safe assumption the husky Irishman took a cut.

Kennedy, 33, averaged only .236 with 22 runs batted in during 101 games last season. He appeared in many of those contests only as a pitch hitter.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 4 (AP) — The Cincinnati Redlegs today boosted to 40 the number of players under contract for the 1954 season.

Shortstop Roy McMillan and pitchers Jack Crimian and Tom Acker were the latest to come to terms, General Manager Gabe Paul said.

DETROIT, Feb. 4 (AP)—The Cleveland Indians signed Dick Hogg, 18-year-old Detroit high school left-handed pitcher to a $4,000 bonus contract, Cleveland scout Nap Ross said today.

Hogg will report to the Cleveland training camp at Daytona Beach, Fla. next month for assignment to a Class C or D farm club.

CHICAGO, Feb. 4 (AP) — Warren Hacker, the Chicago Cubs' hard luck pitcher last season, today signed his 1954 contract. He was the 32nd Cub to accept terms, leaving seven unsigned.

Hacker had a 12-19 record in 1953 and a 15-9 record in 1952.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 4 (AP)—Outfielder Dave Philley has returned three unsigned contracts to the Philadelphia Athletics, and the Philadelphia Phillies have received two rejects from pitcher Jim Konstanty.

The only bright news on the Philadelphia baseball scene was a telephone call from first baseman Edddie Waitkus that he was satisfied with the second contract Phillies Owner Bob Carpenter mailed him.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 4 (AP)—Pitchers Bob Hall and Vernon Law returned signed contracts to the Pittsburgh Pirates today, making a total of 21 Pirates under contract for the 1954 season.

Hall won 3 games and lost 12 for the Pirates last year. Law was in the armed forces. During his last season with the Pirates in 1951 he chalked up a 6-9 record.

Cumberland Fails To Ask Officially For Transfer Of Races

Rinehart Says Letter Must Go To Commission

No Action Is Taken On Marlboro Shift; Laurel Makes Offer

BALTIMORE, Feb. 4 (AP) — The State Racing Commission today turned down Pimlico, withheld a decision on Laurel and took no action on Cumberland, Bel Air and Ocean Downs—all trying to juggle dates already set by the commission.

D. Eldred Rinehart, chairman, said the commission at an all-day closed session, unanimously rejected a request by Pimlico for minor changes in the Baltimore oval's 1954 racing schedule.

Laurel asked to open its spring meeting one racing day earlier, on Saturday, March 20, instead of Monday, March 22, and to make Nov. 3 a dark day in the fall meeting.

Rinehart said a decision was put off until tomorrow.

He added, however, that a shift in Maryland's racing schedule may still be made by the possible relocation of Cumberland's 10-day program.

Cumberland, facing competition from Charles Town, W. Va., during its Aug. 4-14 meeting, has indicated it would like to hold its racing at Marlboro.

Must Send Letter

Cumberland, however, has not yet officially asked that its meet be transferred and until such a letter is forthcoming there will be no commission action, Rinehart said.

Laurel got into the Cumberland picture at today's meeting with a surprise offer to take the Western Maryland track's meeting.

John D. Schapiro, Laurel president, informed the commission he would be glad to open his track for the short August meeting to accommodate Cumberland.

Rinehart said the offer was turned over to the attorney general's office to determine whether the commission has authority to transfer a half-mile track meeting to a major plant.

He said he personally did not think it was within the commission's legal power to make such a move.

Bel Air Wants August

The commission also had a letter from G. Ray Bryson, requesting August dates for his Bel Air track in place of the Sept. 29-Oct. 9 meeting now assigned.

The request was contingent upon transfer of the Cumberland meet to a different time, and no action was taken at this time.

Ocean Downs, unhappy because its assigned dates would force it to compete with Delaware racing at Rosecroft and Brandywine, made no request at the meeting and the commission took no action on its own.

Pimlico, represented by General Manager John D. Jackson, had asked permission to run its spring meet from May 7-31 with dark days on May 11 and May 18, both Tuesdays. It also asked fall dates from Nov. 5-20, with November 14 dark.

ACCEPTS OFFER — Paul (Baer) Bryant, football coach at the University of Kentucky, yesterday wired acceptance of an offer to become athletic director and head coach of Texas A. & M. College under a six-year contract at $15,000 a year.

Maisel To Scout For Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Feb. 4 (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles of the American League today signed 64-year-old Fritz Maisel, once a terror on the base paths, as full-time scout.

Maisel joined the New York Yankees late in 1913 and was with them for five years. He stole 74 bases for the Yanks one season.

The fleet-footed third baseman and outfielder joined the Baltimore Orioles after leaving the Yankees and led the team that won seven pennants in a row.

Fritz retired in 1951. For 28 years before that he held Baltimore County positions with the Circuit Court and the fire department.

Actually, Maisel never really left baseball. He attended spring practice with the Orioles each year as coach and was on the team's board of directors.

Federal Judge Dismisses Suit Against I. B. C.

Anti-Trust Action KO'd In 40 Minutes

NEW YORK, Feb. 4 (AP)—A federal judge knocked out today a government civil anti-trust suit against the International Boxing Club of New York and Illinois, promoters of virtually all championship fights in the United States in recent years.

The official kayo came after 40 minutes of argument in the first court round.

Judge Gregory F. Noonan said he was following a principle used by the U. S. Supreme Court last fall in tossing out an anti-trust action against organized baseball.

Accused Of Monopoly

The suit had accused the club of conspiring to monopolize championship bouts in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

The suit also named James D. Norris of New York and Arthur M. Wirtz of Chicago, owners of IBC, and the Madison Square Garden Corp., of New York.

When the action was brought in March, 1952, both Norris and Wirtz contended their business was "strictly legal."

"I feel the principle in this case is the same as that decided in the Supreme Court (in the baseball case) and I will follow Judge (John C.) Knox's ruling in the Shubert case," Judge Noonan ruled.

Judge Knox had ruled that the Shubert's legitimate theaters were in the entertainment field and not subject to anti-trust laws. The Supreme Court had used similar reasoning in the baseball case.

Not Covered By Act

"The Supreme Court laid down a broad principle which I say takes all professional sports out of the anti-trust act," Judge Noonan declared.

The government suit also had contended the club conspired to exclude competitors from radio, TV and movie rights.

Valley At Fort Hill, AHS Hosts Mt. Savage, Lions At Moorefield

Coach "Ebbie" Finzel's Beall High "giant killers" and Augie Eichhorn's Bruce High Bulldogs will share the basketball spotlight tonight when they tangle at Frostburg as the W.M.I. League resumes action after being idle since the close of the first half of the schedule on January 22.

To remain tied with Allegany High for first place, Bruce must win tonight as the Campers figure to take Mt. Savage High's last place team into camp at Campobello. Both Bruce and AHS have 4-1 records in the six-school county circuit.

Bruce Won Opener

Bruce walloped Beall in Westernport, 72-49, in the opening game of the series but in view of the fact that the Mountain City aggregation handed Allegany its only defeat of the season on the Beall court (64-58 in overtime) and Piedmont was spilled on the same floor (62-52) after having whipped the Frostburg outfit, 6-45, at Piedmont, the Bulldogs could be muzzled also. That Beall blows hot and cold is shown in the Ridgeley series in which the Finzelman won at Ridgeley, 33-43 and lost at home, 55-52.

The Mountaineers have bagged 9 out of 13 games while Bruce, beaten in two close ones (Allegany 47-46 and Piedmont 69-52) has a 12-2 record. Like Beall, Bruce has split even with Piedmont.

Joe Stanislawszyk and Eddie Diehl will work the Valley High at Fort Hill game tonight. The Sentinels, defeated by Valley, 51-45, before Richard Waddell, Coney's high scorer was injured, figure to take the Black Knights and thus break a four-game losing streak. The Waddell-less visitors have dropped six in a row.

Allegany, victorious in 14 of 15 games will be gunning for its 7th straight when it faces Mt. Savage at Campobello tonight. Bill Hahn and "Tack" Clark will officiate.

LaSalle shoots for win No. 12 tonight when the Explorers invade Garrett County to play Northern High in a return game. The locals hold a 70-41 decision over Coach Lilburn Brown's quint. The game will be LaSalle's 16th of the campaign. The North Centre Street cagers have won 11 and lost 4.

Jackets Test Piedmont

Piedmont, undefeated in nine P.V.C. starts, is expected to have its hands full keeping that record going when it collides with Johnny Paugh's Moorefield Yellow Jackets at Moorefield. The Lions had a tough time beating the Jackets at Piedmont, 51-47, and the Hardy countians, in the conference runner-up spot, should be just as tough, if not tougher, at home.

Bob Hartman's Franklin Panthers put a 7-game winning streak on the line when they tackle Petersburg's Vikings at Franklin tonight. The Pendleton countians dropped a 61-53 decision at Petersburg and they'll be out to avenge that setback. Franklin is 8-2 in the P.V.C. and is still in the running for the title. In other P.V.C. tests Ridgeley is at Romney, West Virginia School for the Deaf at Wardensville and Mathias at Capon Bridge.

Other Friday night contests include Southern of Oakland at Bayard, Circleville at Thomas, Alumni-Faculty at Hyndman High, Hagerstown at Westminster and Frederick at Martinsburg.

Baseball Briefs

CLEVELAND, Feb. 4 (AP) — Outfielder Bob Kennedy signed his 1954 contract with the Cleveland Indians today. Terms, as usual were not disclosed, but it's a safe assumption the husky Irishman took a cut.

Kennedy, 33, averaged only .236 with 22 runs batted in during 101 games last season. He appeared in many of those contests only as a pitch hitter.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 4 (AP) — The Cincinnati Redlegs today boosted to 40 the number of players under contract for the 1954 season.

Shortstop Roy McMillan and pitchers Jack Crimian and Tom Acker were the latest to come to terms, General Manager Gabe Paul said.

DETROIT, Feb. 4 (AP)—The Cleveland Indians signed Dick Hogg, 18-year-old Detroit high school left-handed pitcher to a $4,000 bonus contract, Cleveland scout Nap Ross said today.

Hogg reportedly had received offers from 11 major league clubs, including the Detroit Tigers.

Hogg will report to the Cleveland training camp at Daytona Beach, Fla. next month for assignment to a Class C or D farm club.

CHICAGO, Feb. 4 (AP) — Warren Hacker, the Chicago Cubs' hard luck pitcher last season, today signed his 1954 contract. He was the 32nd Cub to accept terms, leaving seven unsigned.

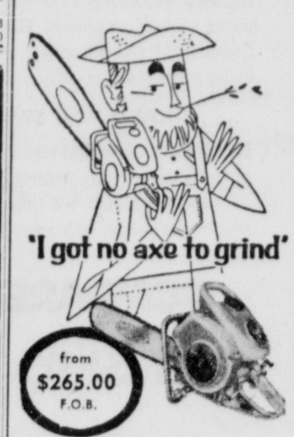

Hacker had a 12-19 record in 1953 and a 15-9 record in 1952.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 4 (AP)—Outfielder Dave Philley has returned three unsigned contracts to the Philadelphia Athletics, and the Philadelphia Phillies have received two rejects from pitcher Jim Konstanty.

The only bright news on the Philadelphia baseball scene was a telephone call from first baseman Edddie Waitkus that he was satisfied with the second contract Phillies Owner Bob Carpenter mailed him.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 4 (AP)—Pitchers Bob Hall and Vernon Law returned signed contracts to the Pittsburgh Pirates today, making a total of 21 Pirates under contract for the 1954 season.

Hall won 3 games and lost 12 for the Pirates last year. Law was in the armed forces. During his last season with the Pirates in 1951 he chalked up a 6-9 record.

Texas Aggies Name Bryant Grid Mentor

Paul Quits Kentucky For 6-Year Contract At $15,000 Annually

COLLEGE STATION, Tex., Feb. 4 (AP)—Texas A&M, football falterer in the Southwest Conference for more than a decade, today reached into the higher-priced echelons of coaching to snare Paul (Bear) Bryant of Kentucky with a 6-year contract at $15,000 a year.

Bryant, 41, the big, handsome fellow who four times got Kentucky into bowl games in eight years as coach, wired his acceptance of an offer to become athletic director and head football coach one month to the day after Ray George had resigned as coach of the Aggies.

From Lexington, Bryant wired that he had resigned his job at Kentucky where his contract had nine years to run, and that he would be on the A&M campus within a week or ten days.

Bryant will succeed Barlow Irvin as athletic director and president David H. Morgan of A&M said he had been given a free rein in naming his assistants. There aren't many places to fill—two assistants, Gil Steinke and Dalton Faircloth, already having left the college. Remaining are Bill Duncan, Willie Zapalac and Mike Michalske.

Spring football training opens at A&M Feb. 15 and presumably Bryant will arrive about that time.

The $15,000 salary is the highest ever paid a coach at A&M. George was receiving $10,500 when he resigned Jan. 4 after rumblings of discontent from the alumni. Coaches at A&M have worked under one-year contracts since 1947 when Homer Norton was paid off by the alumni.

A&M hasn't won a conference championship since 1941, most times finishing on or near the bottom of the standings.

Why don't you come in and get acquainted? I'm a very friendly person—and will give you personal attention and consideration on any request for a loan at my office.

We have no hard and fast rules. No long rigmarole. Just plenty of cash . . . which you can get in any amount from $25 to $1000, on signature or other plans. (Loans over $300 made under Md. Industrial Finance Act.)

Try a "Get-Acquainted" loan of $50 on just your name—if you want to see the kind of service we give you. You can pay it back any time. The total cost for 30 days is only $1.50. People in nearby towns invited, too. Phone or see me at the Aetna Finance office, 48 N. Centre St., Phone 5293.

Legislator Proposes 10 Cents Tax Increase On $2 Mutuel Tickets

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 4 (AP)—An increase from 20 to 30 cents on a $2 bet at Maryland horse race tracks was suggested today by a Baltimore County state delegate.

Del. Boone proposed that the state keep the whole increase. It now gets eight cents out of a $2 bet. The present split is six cents for the track and 4 for the state on a dollar.

Boone estimated it would bring in five million dollars more a year to the state. Maryland received about 6½ million dollars from horse racing in the last fiscal year. But state revenue estimators figure that daily betting is scheduled to drop 5 per cent in the fiscal year starting the first of July.

Boone, however, wasn't out to increase the horse racing tax for that reason. He was trying to set the stage for Democratic elimination of a proposal by Republican Gov. McKeldin to collect a tax on utilities twice within the upcoming fiscal year.

Paul Quits Kentucky For 6-Year Contract At $15,000 Annually

COLLEGE STATION, Tex., Feb. 4 (AP)—Texas A&M football falterer in the Southwest Conference for more than a decade, today reached into the higher-priced echelons of coaching to snare Paul (Bear) Bryant of Kentucky with a 6-year contract at $15,000 a year.

Bryant, 41, the big, handsome fellow who four times got Kentucky into bowl games in eight years as coach, wired his acceptance of an offer to become athletic director and head football coach one month to the day after Ray George had resigned as coach of the Aggies.

From Lexington, Bryant wired that he had resigned his job at Kentucky where his contract had nine years to run, and that he would be on the A&M campus within a week or ten days.

Bryant will succeed Barlow Irvin as athletic director and president David H. Morgan of A&M said he had been given a free rein in naming his assistants. There aren't many places to fill—two assistants, Gil Steinke and Dalton Faircloth, already having left the college. Remaining are Bill Duncan, Willie Zapalac and Mike Michalske.

Spring football training opens at A&M Feb. 15 and presumably Bryant will arrive about that time.

The $15,000 salary is the highest ever paid a coach at A&M. George was receiving $10,500 when he resigned Jan. 4 after rumblings of discontent from the alumni. Coaches at A&M have worked under one-year contracts since 1947 when Homer Norton was paid off by the alumni.

A&M hasn't won a conference championship since 1941, most times finishing on or near the bottom of the standings.

Legislator Proposes 10 Cents Tax Increase On $2 Mutuel Tickets

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 4 (AP)—An increase from 20 to 30 cents on a $2 bet at Maryland horse race tracks was suggested today by a Baltimore County state delegate.

Del. Boone proposed that the state keep the whole increase. It now gets eight cents out of a $2 bet. The present split is six cents for the track and 4 for the state on a dollar.

Boone estimated it would bring in five million dollars more a year to the state. Maryland received about 6½ million dollars from horse racing in the last fiscal year. But state revenue estimators figure that daily betting is scheduled to drop 5 per cent in the fiscal year starting the first of July.

Boone, however, wasn't out to increase the horse racing tax for that reason. He was trying to set the stage for Democratic elimination of a proposal by Republican Gov. McKeldin to collect a tax on utilities twice within the upcoming fiscal year.

Vary The Way You Serve Eggs

Your family needn't face eggs cooked the same way every day.

According to Janet Coblentz, Extension nutritionist for the University of Maryland, there are seven basic ways to prepare eggs — baked, broiled, cooked in the shell, fried, poached, scrambled and in omlets. The thing to remember in cooking aggs is to use low to moderate, even heat and cook slowly. High heat and overcooking toughens eggs because the protein in them becomes leathery.

Here's a basic egg breakfast. Start with a fresh fruit (grapefruit, blue berrie sliced oranges) to give your diet variety and vitamin C at the same time. Serve a poached egg on toast with a couple of strips of bacon.

The growing boy or the man who does hard physical work needs plenty of stick-to-the-ribs food, packed with muscle and tissue building protein and a good supply of calories. They'll do justice to a combination of grapefruit, cereal, ham and eggs — milk for Junior and coffee for Dad.

If you're on a diet, breakfast is more important than ever. Here's a satisfying meal that's low in calories — tomato juice, a soft-cooked egg (or poached if you prever but never fried), and a slice of whole wheat toast.

Even if the head of the house works at a desk he needs, and usually wants, a filling and well-balanced breakfast to keep him energetic and alert until noon. Serve cereal topped with fruit, and follow up with two fried eggs, sausages, toast and jam.

For aging people, whose appetites are likely to be slow at breakfastime, tempt them with blended fruit juices, a moderate helping of hot cereal with milk, scrambled eggs and a soft sweet roll.

'LASSES MILK AND FRUITS—FOR ALL THE LADS AND LASSIES! Here's simple magic for after-school appetites — magically simple for mothers to prepare. A daily four o'clock buffet starring a bowlful of fruits or raw vegetables — with milk or easy-to-make milk drinks! Make up the specialty of the day and serve in some gay favorite pitcher—like the Jolly Clown jug shown here. This is the way to make Molasses Smoothie: For each serving, to ¾ cup of Sealtest milk, add and stir in 1 tablespoon of molasses.

What are little boys made of? Two hollow legs and a bottomless cavern for a stomach, many a mother will declare. Little girls too!

But there IS a way to satisfy those after-school appetites-WITHOUT destroying a taste for supper. Have a different kind of four o'clock buffet at your house every day for the youngsters. Star milk and a big bowlful of attractive, munchable items — raisins, dried apricots, peaches and prunes. Or fresh fruits in season. Or a raw vegetable assortment with carot curls, raw cauliflowerets, even slices of raw turnip, with rosy apples. Such crispy, chewy foods, offered in a gay wooden bowl, become party food.

Remember, milk, cool and inviting, is food as well as drink. Serving it between meals is a fine way to add extra nutrients to the children's diet. If there's a weight problem, use skim milk, high in food value, low in calories.

To vary the everyday party, serve any one of many luscious milk drinks alluringly flavored. Molasses Smoothie is a fine one. Here's how: For each serving, to ¾ cup of milk, stir in one tablespoonful of molasses.

Good Gravy

Half the enjoyment of a roast for dinner is the rich brown gravy to serve over whipped or oven browned potatoes. To get best results, it's important to know a few basic facts about gravy making:

1. Meats which are cooked to the well-done stage—pork loin roasts, beef pot roasts, veal rump roasts—yield more gravy than roasts cooked to medium—rib roast of beef.

2. Most of the fat must be poured from the drippings before you start to make gravy; otherwise the gravy will be greasy.

3. The amount of flour for thickening depends upon the amount of brown drippings in the bottom of the pan. If there are only a few, as in the case of rare rib roast, carefully spoon off all but about two tablespoons of fat, stir in two tablespoons of flour and slowly add one cup of water, stirring constantly. If gravy is not meaty enough in flavor, add a little meat extract or a bouillon cube or two. Pork loin roast usually yields at least two cups of gravy.

Country-Fried Steaks Not Really Fried

On a winter's day you'll please the family when you serve a platter of country-fried steak and onions. It's named "country-fried" and goes in the frying-pan, but actually the steak is cooked by a braising and frying combination. This produces juicy steak with a crisp coating.

To prepare country-fried steak, purchase either round or chuck steak cut about ¾ inch thick, says Reba Staggs, home economist. Divide the steak into individual serving pieces. Before cooking, dredge the steak with seasoned flour. This helps give it a golden brown coating.

Then brown the steak in lard or drippings. When well browned, cover closely, reduce the heat and let the steak cook slowly for about 45 minutes. Next, remove the steaks from the pan. Stir into the drippings 2 tablespoons of flour and 2 cups of milk. Stir until smooth. Return steaks to gravy, cover and simmer about 20 minutes or until tender.

Prepare onion rings by marinating them in French dressing. Complete your menu with hash-browned potatoes, lima beans, a tossed salad, hot biscuits and cherry nut cake.

Chipped Beef Casserole

Add chipped beef to macaroni for a quick casserole. Mince the chipped beef, then combine with cooked macaroni and a cheddar cheese sauce. Place the casserole in a moderate oven (350° F.) and cook for 25 minutes.

Handy Cooking Guide

Do you often overlook nutritious variety meats because you don't know how to cook them? If so, clip this handy guide to use as a quick reference.

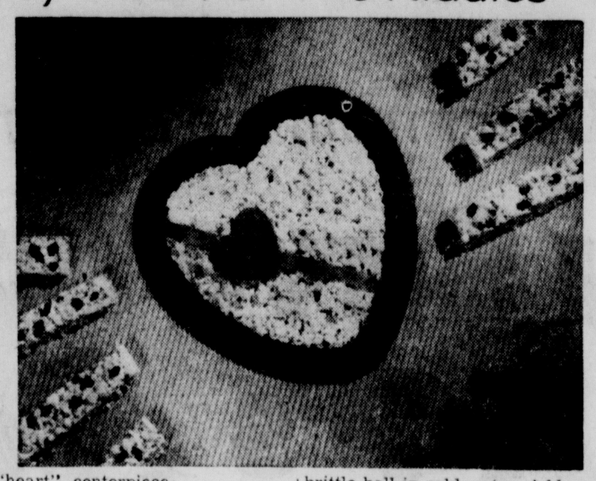

LIVER: Broil or pan-fry beef, veal and lamb liver. Braise pork liver. Or scald, grind and use beef or pork liver in loaves or patties.

TONGUE: Simmer in salted water to cover until tender (omit salt for smoked tongue). Remove skin and root ends before serving.

KIDNEYS: Wash and remove membrane; halve and remove fat and tubes. Braise beef and pork kidneys; good, too, in stews and meat pies. Broil or pan-fry veal and lamb kidney.

HEART: Wash and trim top roots. Simmer in salted water until tender. Or stuff and braise.

A Valentine's Day Treat For The Kiddies

You can treat your children to a fun-filled St. Valentine's celebration for pennies with heaping bowls of hot buttered pop corn, and nourishing, delicious pop corn "bars" they eat just like candy.

And the same basic recipe you use to make the pop corn bars is also perfect for the striking "heart" centerpiece.

What is more, this is the kind of party in which your children can help in making up the treats and the decoration.

How To Make The Pop Corn Bars And The Heart

1 cup sugar
⅓ cup white corn syrup
⅓ cup water
¼ cup butter
¾ tsp. salt
¾ tsp. vanilla
3 quarts of popped pop corn

Put sugar, corn syrup, water, butter and salt in a sauce pan and cook until sugar is dissolved. Continue cooking without stirring (270 degrees) F. until syrup forms a brittle ball in cold water. Add vanilla and stir only enough to mix it through hot syrup. Place pop corn in large mixing bowl and pour cooked syrup slowly over popped corn mixing well. Wet hands slightly and transfer mixture to flat cake pan. Press mixture into sheet cake and cut into bars with wetted knife. Nuts, candied cherries, gum drops or raisins can be added to popped corn before mixing.

To make the heart, press this mixture into a heart-shaped candy box. If that is not available, cut a heart-shaped pattern from a piece of cardboard, lay on top of pressed out mixture, and cut around it with a sharp, wet knife. Decorate wtih a red ribbon, and place pop corn heart on a large piece of red drawing paper as a background for your table centerpiece. If you desire, smaller hearts like this can be made as favors by making a cardboard pattern to cut-out the hearts.

In working with this pop corn mixture if it becomes too stiff and brittle before you have finished, it can be softened quickly and easily by warming in the oven.

Make Molded Ice Cream Hearts For Valentine Party

Amaze your Valentine guests with elegant Strawberry Ice Cream Hearts that you've made yourself. It's easy when you use strawberry flavored freezing mix. There's no need to rebeat the ice cream, so it's perfect for making molded frozen desserts.

For a "different" taste, coconut macaroons are folded into the ice cream before it is poured into the heart shaped mold to freeze. Use the large heart mold or individual molds if you prefer. Freeze in your refrigerator or home freezer.

Only minutes are needed to make this ice cream — your freezer does the rest. The result — Ice Cream Hearts as rich and elegant as any you could buy — and less expensive. Here's the simple recipe.

Valentine Hearts

2 cups light cream
1 package strawberry freezing mix
½ cup crumbled macaroons

Whip light cream in a deep bowl until a deep layer of foam forms—this takes 1 to 2 minutes. Add contents of package of freezing mix. Whip 1 more minute to dissolve. Fold in crumbled macaroons. Pour into large heart shaped mold or 8 or 9 individual heart molds. Freeze until firm. Unmold by dipping in hot water. Run knife around edge of mold to remove ice cream heart.

Handy Cooking Guide

Do you often overlook nutritious variety meats because you don't know how to cook them? If so, clip this handy guide to use as a quick reference.

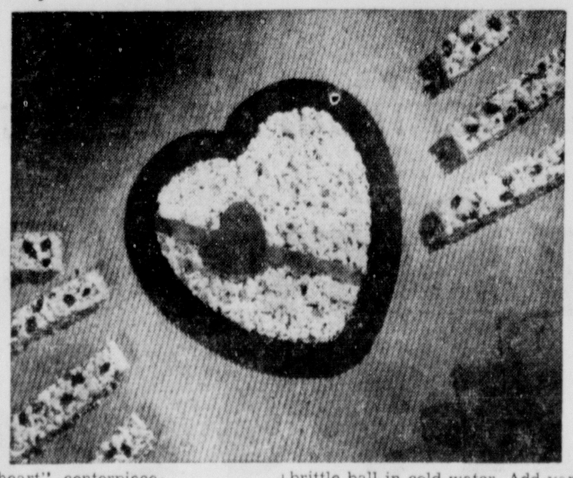

LIVER: Broil or pan-fry beef, veal and lamb liver. Braise pork liver. Or scald, grind and use beef or pork liver in loaves or patties.

TONGUE: Simmer in salted water to cover until tender (omit salt for smoked tongue). Remove skin and root ends before serving.

KIDNEYS: Wash and remove membrane; halve and remove fat and tubes. Braise beef and pork kidneys; good, too, in stews and meat pies. Broil or pan-fry veal and lamb kidney.

HEART: Wash and trim top roots. Simmer in salted water until tender. Or stuff and braise.

A Valentine's Day Treat For The Kiddies

You can treat your children to a fun-filled St. Valentine's celebration for pennies with heaping bowls of hot buttered pop corn, and nourishing, delicious pop corn "bars" they eat just like candy.

And the same basic recipe you use to make the pop corn bars is also perfect for the striking "heart" centerpiece.

What is more, this is the kind of party in which your children can help in making up the treats and the decoration.

How To Make The Pop Corn Bars And The Heart

- 1 cup sugar
- ½ cup white corn syrup
- ⅓ cup water
- ¼ cup butter
- ¾ tsp. salt
- ¾ tsp. vanilla
- 3 quarts of popped pop corn

Put sugar, corn syrup, water, butter and salt in a sauce pan and cook until sugar is dissolved. Continue cooking without stirring (270 degrees) F. until syrup forms a brittle ball in cold water. Add vanilla and stir only enough to mix it through hot syrup. Place pop corn in large mixing bowl and pour cooked syrup slowly over popped corn mixing well. Wet hands slightly and transfer mixture to flat cake pan. Press mixture into sheet cake and cut into bars with wetted knife. Nuts, candied cherries, gum drops or raisins can be added to popped corn before mixing.

To make the heart, press this mixture into a heart-shaped candy box. If that is not available, cut a heart-shaped pattern from a piece of cardboard, lay on top of pressed out mixture, and cut around it with a sharp, wet knife. Decorate wtih a red ribbon, and place pop corn heart on a large piece of red drawing paper as a background for your table centerpiece. If you desire, smaller hearts like this can be made as favors by making a cardboard pattern to cut-out the hearts.

In working with this pop corn mixture if it becomes too stiff and brittle before you have finished, it can be softened quickly and easily by warming in the oven.

Make Molded Ice Cream Hearts For Valentine Party

Amaze your Valentine guests with elegant Strawberry Ice Cream Hearts that you've made yourself. It's easy when you use strawberry flavored freezing mix. There's no need to rebeat the ice cream, so it's perfect for making molded frozen desserts.

For a "different" taste, coconut macaroons are folded into the ice cream before it is poured into the heart shaped mold to freeze. Use the large heart mold or individual molds if you prefer. Freeze in your refrigerator or home freezer.

Only minutes are needed to make this ice cream — your freezer does the rest. The result — Ice Cream Hearts as rich and elegant as any you could buy — and less expensive. Here's the simple recipe.

Valentine Hearts

- 2 cups light cream
- 1 package strawberry freezing mix
- ½ cup crumbled macaroons

Whip light cream in a deep bowl until a deep layer of foam forms—this takes 1 to 2 minutes. Add contents of package of freezing mix. Whip 1 more minute to dissolve. Fold in crumbled macaroons. Pour into large heart shaped mold or 8 or 9 individual heart molds. Freeze until firm. Unmold by dipping in hot water. Run knife around edge of mold to remove ice cream heart.

3 Cranberry Desserts For Valentine's Day

When you think of February and Valentine's Day you think of lacy greeting cards, hearts, cupid's arrows, and party foods for the family table. Make your Valentine's table festive for your family whether company's expected or not. Plan your dinner with foods the whole family enjoys and then go all out for a special Valentine's Dessert.

Here are three very special Cranberry Desserts for Valentine's Day. They're red as Valentine's Hearts should be. They're frilly in a simple way AND best of all they're easy to make.

First a Frosty Red Cranberry Loaf for the freezer tray. (You can make this in seconds!)

Frosty Cranberry Loaf

¾ cup finely ground toast
½ cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon allspice
¼ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon ginger
3 tablespoons melted butter
1 pound can jellied cranberry sauce
½ cup whipping cream
1 3-ounce package cream cheese

Mix first seven ingredients together. Work in melted butter. Press mixture evenly against sides and bottom of an ice cube tray. Chill in freezing compartment for at least one hour. Crush jellied cranberry sauce with a fork and spread over crumb crust. Whip cream. Soften cream cheese and whip with cream. Spread whipped cream-cheese mixture over cranberry sauce. Place in freezing compartment and freeze until firm. Slice to serve. Makes eight servings.

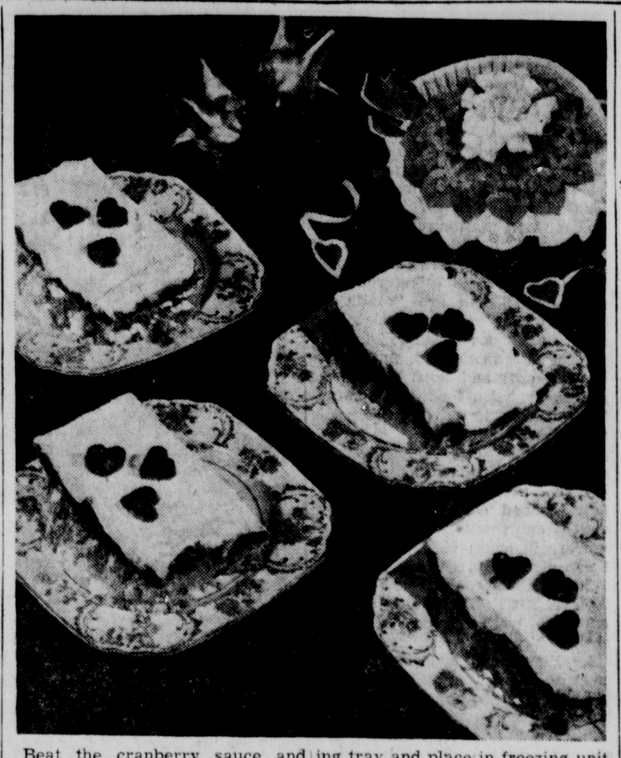

Or make individual Cranberry Tarts for the freezer. These party gems have a cranberry parfait for their fluted graham cracker crusts.

Cranberry Parfait Tarts

Graham Cracker Crust:
¼ cup (½ stick) softened butter or margarine
¼ cup sugar
16 graham crackers, finely rolled

Let butter or margarine stand at room temperature until pliable. Put in mixing bowl with sugar and crumbs and blend well. Divide crumb mixtuure into eight fluted paper baking cups set in muffin pans. Press firmly against bottom and sides of cups with the back of a spoon. Fill with Cranberry Parfait.

Cranberry Parfait:
1 pound can jellied cranberry sauce
2 tablespoons sugar
½ pint heavy cream, whipped
½ teaspoon almond extract

Beat the cranberry sauce and sugar together with a fork. Fold in whipped cream and flavoring. Spoon parfait into eight tart shells; place in freezer. Freeze until parfait is firm. Remove fluted paper cups before serving.

Here's still another timely idea for a frozen cranberry dessert. Serve crisp heart-shaped cookies with

Chanberry Raspberry Ice

1 cup cranberry juice cocktail
1 cup water
1 package raspberry sherbert mix

Place cranberry cocktail and water in bowl. Add sherbert mix and beat with rotary beater until dissolved. Pour mixture into freezing tray and place in freezing unit. Freeze until firm. Remove from tray to bowl and break up into large lumps with fork. Beat with rotary beater until free from lumps but still mushy. Return to tray and freeze. Makes six servings.

Pork Chop Casserole

Escalloped Pork Chops and Corn
4 end-cut pork chops
Salt, pepper, paprika
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ cup finely chopped onion
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon dry mustard
2 teaspoons sugar
¼ cup cracker crumbs
1 No. 303 can whole kernel corn (2 cups)

Trim some of fat from edges of chops. Rub chops with a mixture of 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper and 1 teaspoon paprika. Brown in a little hot fat. In a medium saucepan, cook onion in butter or margarine until soft. Blend in flour and gradually add milk, stirring constantly until thickened. Add remaining ingredients and ½ teasoon salt. Pour into a greased 1½ quart casserole. Place chops on top, cover and bake in a 350°F. oven for 1¼ hours; uncover and continue baking for 15 minutes. 4 servings.

GET THAT Million Dollar LOOK . . . .
FROM THE Million Dollar BEER!

That's right, again in February, Old German Beer will give away a natural ranch mink stole of matchless beauty, worth hundreds & hundreds of dollars. Old German, the beer that's so dry, so light, so smooth, so fine that its formula is insured for one million dollars, is giving away the one garment that provides a million dollar appearance.

HERE'S ALL YOU DO:

Examine Old German bottle caps. Pry up the cork lining — it's easy with a key or nail file — and you'll find a letter there. Save your letters till you can spell out O-L-D G-E-R-M-A-N. Then send all nine letters or reasonable facsimiles thereof to Queen City Brewing Co., Cumberland, Md. In the same envelope complete this statement in 10 words or less "I prefer Old German Beer because . . ." Winning entry each month will be judged on basis of accuracy, cleverness and clarity. It is not necessary to buy the beer from which the caps come in order to win. The letter will be found in cap-sealed bottles or cans. Judges have no connection with Brewery and their decision is final.

No employee of the Brewery or its advertising agency nor any wholesaler or retailer or their employees selling Old German Beer is eligible to win the mink stole.

AGAIN IN FEBRUARY

GET THAT Million Dollar LOOK . . . . FROM THE Million Dollar BEER!

That's right, again in February, Old German Beer will give away a natural ranch mink stole of matchless beauty, worth hundreds & hundreds of dollars. Old German, the beer that's so dry, so light, so smooth, so fine that its formula is insured for one million dollars, is giving away the one garment that provides a million dollar appearance.

HERE'S ALL YOU DO:

Examine Old German bottle caps. Pry up the cork lining — it's easy with a key or nail file — and you'll find a letter there. Save your letters till you can spell out O-L-D G-E-R-M-A-N. Then send all nine letters or reasonable facsimiles thereof to Queen City Brewing Co., Cumberland, Md. In the same envelope complete this statement in 10 words or less "I prefer Old German Beer because . . ." Winning entry each month will be judged on basis of accuracy, cleverness and clarity. It is not necessary to buy the beer from which the caps come in order to win. The letter will be found in cap-sealed bottles or cans. Judges have no connection with Brewery and their decision is final.

No employee of the Brewery or its advertising agency nor any wholesaler or retailer or their employees selling Old German Beer is eligible to win the mink stole.

Light Sweet Cherries For A Flaming Treat

We have a candidate for the pudding most likely to succeed in 1954. It is Cherry Duff with luscious Western canned sweet cherries steamed in a mold. Serve with hardsauce which is made unusual by the addition of more light sweet cherries, the same variety as found under the delicate brown crust in the pudding mold. Flaming lemon soaked sugar cubes spotlight our selection.

Sweet cherries come in many varieties. Most popular for commercial use are the Royal Annes, a light cherry with a golden tinge. Lamberts are deep tone of red and the Bings are a rich purple. The story of Lamberts is interesting. The original Lambert cherry was first grown as a seedling from the Napoleon cherry tree. In 1884, J. H. Lambert first noticed this small seedling growing under the much larger parent tree in his orchard. He isolated and replanted it to watch what might happen. The fruit from this seedling was different. After much experimentation, he developed the deep red variety which bears his name. Throughout the history of cherry development, loving care seems to characterize the production of this romantic little fruit.

Plan now to enjoy this dessert made doubly delicious because it features Western canned sweet cherries in the pudding and sauce.

Cherry Duff

Beat well
2 eggs
Blend in
1 cup brown sugar
½ cup melted margarine
2 cups light Western canned sweet cherries (pitted)
1¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda
½ cup whole almonds
¼ teaspoon almond extract

Pour into well greased mold. If the mold does not have a top, press several thicknesses of aluminum foil over top. Place in a pan with 2 inches of water. Cover pan and steam for 2 hours. Unmold and serve with:

Cherry Hardsauce

Beat until stiff
1 egg white
Add
⅛ cup butter
¼ cup sour cream
1½ cups powdered sugar
Few grains of salt
⅛ teaspoon almond extract
⅔ cup light Western canned sweet cherries (pitted and drained).

Combine all ingredients and refrigerate. Serve chilled on hot steamed pudding. To spotlight your steamed masterpiece, soak sugar cubes in lemon extract. Light just before carrying to the table. Serves 6.

Luncheon Loaf Special

Here's a meat luncheon loaf ideal for a quick dinner or supper. Cut the loaf into ½-inch slices. Combine 1 tablespoon of prepared mustard with 2 tablespoons flour, 1 slightly beaten egg and 1 tablespoon vinegar. Dip meat in batter, then brown the meat slices in lard or drippings.

Quick Supper—Ham Scallops Satisfies Hungry Folks

A yum yum good casserole dish is this fix-in-a-hurry ham scallop. This sumptuous and creamy oven dish is real—real easy to make, and for that matter may be mixed ahead of time and popped into the oven just before the meal.

All the foods in this terrifically good baked dish are "made for each other." Mushroom soup makes a "sauce supreme" to hold together the tasty ham, fluffy rice, green pepper and eggs. The cheese makes a golden topping as tempting to see as to eat.

Ingredients:

1-12 ounce can chopped ham, diced; 3 cups cooked rice; 1 green pepper, very finely chopped; 3 hard cooked eggs, sliced; 1 10-½ ounce can condensed cream of mushroom soup; ¾ cup of water; 1 cup grated American cheese;

PREPARING THE FLUFFY WHITE RICE: To make 3 heaping cups of white, fluffy, perfectly cooked rice:

1. Put 1 cup uncooked rice, 2 cups of cold water and 1 teaspoon of salt into a 2-quart saucepan and bring to a vigorous boil.

2. Turn the heat as low as possible. Cover the saucepan with a lid. Do not remove lid nor stir rice while it is cooking.

3. Leave saucepan over this low heat for 14 minutes. Remove from the heat. The rice is now ready to use.

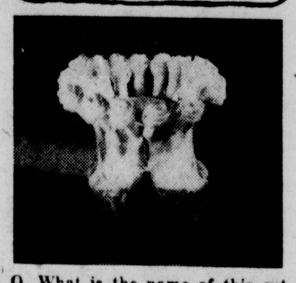

For extra fluffy, tender, separate grains allow the rice to steam for an additional 10 minutes—with heat off, but without removing lid.

For extra convenience and economy of time and effort, cook 2 cups of rice, 4 cups of water and 2 teaspoons of salt — keeping the extra cups of unused ready-cooked rice in the refrigerator in a covered container. Use this rice as needed in quick, delicious and inexpensive soups, salads, casserole dishes, hot breads and desserts.

Method: Mix together the ham, rice, green pepper, hard cooked eggs, mushroom soup and water. Place in a 2-quart oven dish. Sprinkle the cheese over the top. Place in 350°F. oven for 30 minutes or uptill the cheese is bubbly and the green peppef the desired degree of doneness.

Q. What is the name of this cut of meat?

A. Lamb crown roast.

Q. Where does it come from and how is it identified?

A. It is made up of two or more lamb rib sections from which the backbone has been removed. The ribs are "frenched" that is, meat is removed from rib ends, then the rib sections are shaped and tied into a crown.

Q. How is it prepared?

A. By roasting. Set oven regulator at 300° F. Place in shallow roasting pan with rib ends down. Cook for 1 hour, turn, fill with stuffing if desired, finish cooking. Allow approximately 35 minutes per pound roasting time.

Here's a delicious salad to serve with baked ham. Dice celery and add to diced canned pineapple; moisten with mayonnaise, spoon into lettuce cups and sprinkle with minced parsley. Or instead of the parsley garnish, sprinkle with chopped pecan nutmeats.

Radio And Television

by John Crosby

Tragedy Watered Down

When Lux Video Theater undertook an hour-long and elaborate production of Theodore Dreiser's classic "An American Tragedy," it did not use the original title. Instead Lux used "A Place in the Sun," which was the name of the movie version, on the sensible assumption that many, many more people had seen the movie than had read of even heard of the book. This was just another example of the successive watering down of a classic from a book, to a screen treatment, to a TV drama, with just a little bit more being lost each time around.

John Crosby

Dreiser's novel is a very long one filled with a wealth of bitter detail whose primary purpose is to weave a web of economic frustration around the two unfortunate lovers. It was society, especially its economic tyrannies, that was the villain, not the young man who had seduced a poor factory girl, got her pregnant and then abandoned her in favor of a daughter of the rich.

In the Lux version the economic conditions which so preoccupied Dreiser were pushed way in the background. Here the young man, George Eastman, simply met and fell in love with another girl, whose wealth was almost incidental. This drastically changes the emphasis of the story and makes it, in fact, a rather ordinary tale, the likes of which we can see most any night on "Suspense" or Martin Kane or what have you. Boy Meets New Girl. Boy Tries To Get Rid of Old Girl. Boy Lands in the Electric Chair. That is the contemporary twist on the Boy Meets Girl formula.

There were, it's true, sudden dramatic switches of locale from the grimy lodging house of the poor girl to the elegant country estate of the rich girl which made clear that the two girls lived in very different circumstances. Still, it was love, not social position or wealth, that propelled George Eastman into taking his pregnant sweetheart for a fatal rowboat ride and the tragedy becomes an accident of lust rather than an indictment of society.

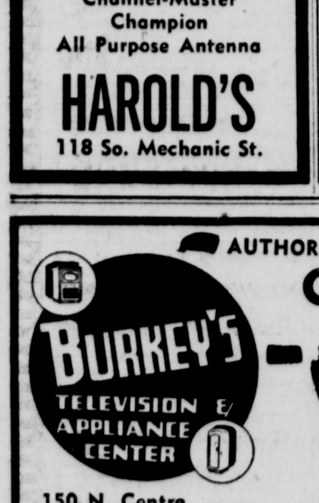

Dreiser won recognition with "An American Tragedy" in 1925 after almost two decades in which his realism had aroused only scorn, contumely and indignation. By the time he won his battle for naturalism, it had become almost old hat and it still, to some degree, is. There is something curiously old-fashioned about this story of a girl ruined in such classic fashion.

In other respects, Dreiser is way ahead of us. Just recently, "The Moon Is Blue" got into lots of censor trouble because it spoke of seduction and pregnancy. Here, these things are committed, not simply discussed. Our prudery, it seems to me, has taken a turn for the worse. Things that shouldn't exist, we pretend don't exist, or, if they do exist, it's best not to write about them. If Dreiser had been a contemporary screenwriter, I doubt that he'd have written "An American Tragedy" at all, figuring it never would have got past the Breen office.

This particular Lux production, which was twice as long as the ordinary Lux shows, was one of the most lavish and expensive in the history of live television. Produced in CBS' Television City in Hollywood, it boasted 67 actors, which is one hell of a big cast, and 17 sets, which is about three times as many as those used in most TV dramas. Even the climactic scene when the rowboat tips over in a mountain lake was done live by some sort of camera trickery (which, frankly, wasn't very convincing.)

It's encouraging that television, in such a few short years, has taken such vast strides in overcoming the physical limitations of live staging. I just hope, though, that the producers don't get so wrapped up in technical perfection, don't get so immersed in the scenery that they ignore the writers and the actors, something which is quite likely to happen in Hollywood.

Daily Bridge Lesson

by Barclay

ALMOST A CONVENTION

IF YOUR partner won your opening lead in one side suit, laid down the ace in another and then returned your first suit, so that you could ruff it, he has followed a procedure which almost amounts to an accepted convention. It should be crystal clear to you that the ace of his second suit was a singleton and that he could trump a return of that suit to him. Only once in a blue moon do you see a defensive player with any pretense of skill miss his cue on this order of events.

	♠ K 10 8 ♥ Q 2 ♦ A Q 9 6 ♣ K Q 9 7
♠ 9 ♥ 10 8 5 ♦ J 8 4 2 ♣ J 8 4 3 2	N W E S	♠ A Q J 6 5 4 ♥ 7 3 ♦ K 10 7 3 ♣ A
	♠ 7 3 2 ♥ A K J 9 6 4 ♦ 5 ♣ 10 6 5

(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	2 ♥	Pass	3 ♦
3 ♠	Pass	Pass	3 NT
Pass	4 ♥

Among the possibilities of this deal was that of the trouble East would have had in 3-Spades if the opponents had passed or doubled it. Another is what might have been accomplished if South had left North's 3-No Trumps in. Keen development of a throw-in might have made that contract. The 4-Hearts, as it developed, didn't have a chance after West led the 9 of his partner's spades.

The 10 covered the lead, the J won it and East then laid down the club A. Next he scored the spade A and led the 6, which West ruffed with the heart 5 to set the contract one trick. The diamond 2 return was won by the A, whereupon trumps were taken out and the marked finesse of the club 9 enabled South to get the rest of the tricks, to be down only one.

A kibitzer then censured West for not leading a club after ruffing the third spade. That, he pointed out, was certain to beat the contract a second trick, since the club A was obviously a singleton.

Then East ran with the ball. "You really should have trumped my ace of spades," he said, "and returned a club to give me a first ruff. I would have given you a second spade ruff, and another club return by you would have set it a third trick if I had two hearts, which I did. If I had held only one, no harm would have been done, and we would have gained the same result as if you had not been smart enough to trump my ace."

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ A K 2 ♥ Q 7 6 ♦ Q ♣ K J 10 5 4 2
♠ 10 8 ♥ J 10 4 3 ♦ 9 7 6 3 2 ♣ 7 6	N W E S	♠ Q J 9 7 4 ♥ 9 5 2 ♦ K J 8 4 ♣ Q
	♠ 6 5 3 ♥ A K 8 ♦ A 10 5 ♣ A 9 8 3

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

Tragedy Watered Down

When Lux Video Theater undertook an hour-long and elaborate production of Theodore Dreiser's classic "An American Tragedy," it did not use the original title. Instead Lux used "A Place in the Sun," which was the name of the movie version, on the sensible assumption that many, many more people had seen the movie than had read of even heard of the book. This was just another example of the successive watering down of a classic from a book, to a screen treatment, to a TV drama, with just a little bit more being lost each time around.

John Crosby

Dreiser's novel is a very long one filled with a wealth of bitter detail whose primary purpose is to weave a web of economic frustration around the two unfortunate lovers. It was society, especially its economic tyrannies, that was the villain, not the young man who had seduced a poor factory girl, got her pregnant and then abandoned her in favor of a daughter of the rich.

In the Lux version the economic conditions which so preoccupied Dreiser were pushed way in the background. Here the young man, George Eastman, simply met and fell in love with another girl, whose wealth was almost incidental. This drastically changes the emphasis of the story and makes it, in fact, a rather ordinary tale, the likes of which we can see most any night on "Suspense" or Martin Kane or what have you. Boy Meets New Girl. Boy Tries To Get Rid of Old Girl. Boy Lands in the Electric Chair. That is the contemporary twist on the Boy Meets Girl formula.

Daily Bridge Lesson — by Barclay

ALMOST A CONVENTION

IF YOUR partner won your opening lead in one side suit, laid down the ace in another and then returned your first suit, so that you could ruff it, he has followed a procedure which almost amounts to an accepted convention. It should be crystal clear to you that the ace of his second suit was a singleton and that he could trump a return of that suit to him. Only once in a blue moon do you see a defensive player with any pretense of skill miss his cue on this order of events.

	♠ K 10 8 ♥ Q 2 ♦ A Q 9 6 ♣ K Q 9 7
♠ 9 ♥ 10 8 5 ♦ J 8 4 2 ♣ J 8 4 3 2	N W E S	♠ A Q J 6 5 4 ♥ 7 3 ♦ K 10 7 3 ♣ A
	♠ 7 3 2 ♥ A K J 9 6 4 ♦ 5 ♣ 10 6 5

(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	2 ♥	Pass	3 ♦
3 ♠	Pass	Pass	3 NT
Pass	4 ♥

Among the possibilities of this deal was that of the trouble East would have had in 3-Spades if the opponents had passed or doubled it. Another is what might have been accomplished if South had left North's 3-No Trumps in. Keen development of a throw-in might have made that contract. The 4-Hearts, as it developed, didn't have a chance after West led the 9 of his partner's spades.

The 10 covered the lead, the J won it and East then laid down the club A. Next he scored the spade A and led the 6, which West ruffed with the heart 5 to set the contract one trick. The diamond 2 return was won by the A, whereupon trumps were taken out and the marked finesse of the club 9 enabled South to get the rest of the tricks, to be down only one.

A kibitzer then censured West for not leading a club after ruffing the third spade. That, he pointed out, was certain to beat the contract a second trick, since the club A was obviously a singleton.

Then East ran with the ball. "You really should have trumped my ace of spades," he said, "and returned a club to give me a first ruff. I would have given you a second spade ruff, and another club return by you would have set it a third trick if I had two hearts, which I did. If I had held only one, no harm would have been done, and we would have gained the same result as if you had not been smart enough to trump my ace."

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ A K 2 ♥ Q 7 6 ♦ Q ♣ K J 10 5 4 2
♠ 10 8 ♥ J 10 4 3 ♦ 9 7 6 3 2 ♣ 7 6	N W E S	♠ Q J 9 7 4 ♥ 9 5 2 ♦ K J 8 4 ♣ Q
	♠ 6 5 3 ♥ A K 8 ♦ A 10 5 ♣ A 9 8 3

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

How should South play for 7-Clubs after West leads the heart 3?

We want several neat, intelligent young men who have already served their time in the services to demonstrate one of the most popular automobiles on the road today. This does not require high pressure selling. When properly demonstrated the car sells itself. We'll show you the ropes. All we ask is that you apply yourself sincerely and energetically. Make no mistake, this is an unusually good opportunity. Drop a line to Box 687-A c-o Times-News and we'll arrange to talk it over with you.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4 (AP) — The Stock Market advanced today in heavy trading and pushed close to a new 24-year high.

The stock market has been advancing steadily for the past four weeks, continually pushing into the high ground for the current recovery movement.

Today's market advanced under the rotating leadership of the railroads, aircrafts, and oils, although throughout the day there were soft spots in the list in evidence.

Motors, for example, didn't do very well, nor did the distillers, air lines, radio-televisions and a number of key issues.

However, that backwardness was overlooked in the general enthusiasm worked up by bullish elements in Wall Street. Gains went to between 1 and 2 points in many instances, and losses usually were small.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks added 90 cents at $114.60. It was up 70 cents yesterday. The average now stands at the best level since March 27 of last year.

The industrial component gained $1.10, the railroads were up $1.00, and the utilities were ahead by 20 cents.

There were 1,166 individual issues traded, a moderately broad market. Of this number, 667 issues advanced and 220 declined. New highs for the 1953-54 at 94 were the biggest for many months, and there were no new lows.

Chicago Board Of Trade

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W
One letter simple stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Business Groups Differ On Plan For Parking Lot

Pledge Support On Other Projects Here

Members of the South Cumberland Business Men's Association, and of the North Centre Street Business Men's Association disagreed on a city-owned parking lot plan last night, but both groups pledged to join together in supporting other projects which they said would be for the good of the community.

The Centre Street members also offered their help in any problems that the South End association might have. A spokesman for the South Cumberland group, during a meeting of the two groups last night, said it was the first time that a Cumberland group had offered to work with the South End business men.

Arguments Aired

The meeting was the result of a request of the North Centre Street Association to meet with the South End group and discuss the municipal parking lot plan.

Centre Street members were in favor of a city-owned parking lot, while the South End group were opposed to the idea. Both sides, however, agreed that Cumberland has a parking problem and that something should be done to eliminate it soon.

Business men of the Centre Street party pointed out that city-owned parking lots are a nation-wide trend and that many cities the size of Cumberland already have such lots and are operating them at a profit.

Speakers for the South End group said they felt that a parking lot run by the city officials might lead to graft. They added that they opposed operation of any business with taxpayers' money.

Bond Issue Proposed

The uptown group came back with figures to show that the city-operated lot would cost $126,000, which would be paid for by a bond issue. They declared the project would not cost the taxpayers any money because the lot would pay for itself and in addition would bring in more revenue for the city's general fund.

On this point, the South End business men argued that the Centre Street merchants could raise the money and buy the lot themselves, thus making it a private business investment to improve members' individual businesses.

Spokesmen for the Centre Street group said they had tried to purchase the property, which they thought was centrally located as a parking lot, but that the owner had refused to sell.

The uptown group stated that business is on its way out of the city to vicinities on the outskirts. If business is to be kept in Cumberland, they said, lots must be built to keep shoppers in the city.

Agree To Work Together

The South Cumberland group, however, said parking is a proposition directly connected with business and that it is the individual businesses' responsibility to the customer, as much as keeping an adequate inventory.

The two groups did agree that they should get together on other projects and problems so that the city may have valuable assets to offer incoming industries. They pledged to work together in bringing about better roads and transportation facilities and other projects "for building a better Cumberland."

Representing the Centre Street group were James Gaffney, Edward R. Burkey, Donald W. Mason, David P. Goodfellow and Harry B. Dicks.

New Court Clerk Sworn In

James R. R. Judge Harris Disallows Sick Benefit

Upholds Commission Decision In Case

An opinion and order of court have been signed by Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris in Garrett County Circuit Court affirming the decisions of two state agencies in disallowing the claim of Jess Perando, a furloughed Vindex miner.

Judge Harris' order affirms the decisions of the State Industrial Accident Commission and the Medical Board.

Ii his five-page opinion the judge cited various facts in the case. He noted that Perando, now more than 60 years of age, began work in the coal mines at the age of 12 and was employed by various mining companies until 1948.

His last employer was the McNitt Coal Company of Vindex, which hired him in April 1947 to shoot and load coal. He was furloughed November 27, 1948, due to curtailment of personnel. It was not until September 23, 1952, that the Golden Clinic, Elkins, W. Va., notified Perando that he had silicosis.

The Medical Board decided the claimant did not file his claim within one year of disability and disallowed the claim. No petition for review having been filed with the State Industrial Accident Commission within the 30 days allowed by statute, the commission affirmed the Medical Board findings.

In his opinion, Judge Harris wrote in part:

"If the Medical Board and the Commission had found in favor of the claimant and the proceedings had been regular, this court would have had to reverse the award because there is not one scintilla of evidence in the record that the claimant was injuriously exposed to sand while in the employ of the McNitt Coal Company, Inc. . . . ."

New Court Clerk Is Sworn In For Washington Co.

Deputy Resigns After 15 Years

HAGERSTOWN, Feb. 4 (AP)—The Washington County Circuit Court got a clerk and lost a deputy today.

Sworn in as interim clerk to succeed J. Guy Weagley, who died, was James R. R. Black whose appointment had touched off a hassle among judges of the Fourth Judicial Circuit.

After Black was sworn in, John W. Hartle, a deputy clerk for 15 years, quit. He said he had been considering withdrawing from politics for some time and that this seemed to be "the appropriate time" to resign. He said his actions were not dictated "by any feeling whatever of jealousy or ill will."

About 50 county Republican leaders looked on as Judge George Henderson of Cumberland swore in Black, first GOP clerk in the county since 1908. A permanent clerk is to be named in the November elections.

The squabble came after Judges Henderson and Morgan C. Harris, both Cumberland Republicans, backed Black while Chief Judge Joseph D. Mish, who represents Washington County in the circuit, recommended appointment of one of two veteran deputies, Edward Heimel and Merlin Snyder, both Democrats.

Tonight the Republican State Central Committee for Washington County issued a statement saying that for the first time since 1908 the GOP has "an equal opportunity" to run an experienced man against the Democrats for clerk of court.

The committee noted that Black had been successful in winning election to three terms as clerk of the county commissioners and said he would gain ample experience between now and November to seek reelection as court clerk.

"On the background of the experience thus gained, he will have an equal opportunity in the next election with any 'career' Democrat who may seek the office," the committee statement said.

Black succeeded the late Guy Weagley, whose term would have expired in November. Weagley, a Democrat and deputy clerk, had himself been appointed to the job on the death of Edward Oswald.

The committee statement noted that the two Republican judges had joined Judge Mish in naming Weagley to the office. It said, in effect, that now it was the Republicans' turn to have a chance.

Broad Program Mapped Here On Pigeon-Starling Menace

Court Order May Start Off Campaign

A many-pronged attack which promises to bring results against the perennial pigeon and starling menace in Cumberland was mapped out last night at a meeting sponsored by the Health Department.

Some three dozen civic leaders and owners of properties being defaced by the birds attended the meeting held in the Health Department Training Center.

Health Department officials planned to start off the drive by obtaining a court order against a downtown building termed the breeding place of many of the pigeons in an attempt to make the owners make structural changes which would keep the pests out.

An official of an area extermination firm offered to kill any of the tramp pigeons which are in the building so none of the birds will be left to breed.

Offers Free Supplies

An offer of Street Department aid in applying the substance was made by Street Commissioner Lucile W. Roeder.

Finds Poisoned Birds

Meanwhile, officials learned that someone has been taking positive steps to meet the menace.

Dr. Hixon T. Bowersox, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, said the church recently spent $75 to remove dead pigeons which had fallen between the church and an adjoining building, and said the birds had been poisoned.

He pointed to one of the answers when he said the next church the congregation erects "will be flush."

Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, promised the cooperation of the department, and said a combination of methods will be needed to correct the nuisance.

Thomas B. Finan, city attorney, said the city has the power to make property owners abate the nuisance, including the elimination of the source, but said cooperation would be tried first.

Suggest Methods

He said the city cannot assume the responsibility until some practical method within the city's scope is found. One way, he added, might be the installation of supersonic oscillating devices which are still in the experimental stage.

H. D. Barber, co-chairman of last year's Clean Up Drive, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, said the substance which was used so effectively on Rosenbaum's store should be given further use.

Killing is the solution, according to R. E. Dean, of Hygenic Sanitation Company. He said other methods, such as the gooey substance, are good but not permanent.

L. E. Sellman, of Vogel Ritt Company, suggested use of an anti-roost compound, screening of buildings, cleaning and trapping.

Anthony Saeli, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said the problem can be solved by men of good will working together, and urged that the offers be accepted.

Crews To Shoot Through Rock To Lay Sewer Line

Workers hit solid rock yesterday as the line reached the 1800-block of the street, and officials said it will be necessary to shoot holes in the rock in order to lay the sewer line.

A 30-foot roadway was provided for the stretch of about 500 feet. It will get a temporary surface of cinders and gravel.

Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, street commissioner, said slate from the airport will later be applied to the area after water and sewer lines are laid. There are already about eight homes on the street and two more are to be built soon.

Another crew has been busy at Riverside Park, clearing the area which is to provide the city approach to the new bridge between here and Ridgeley. All of the city work is complete, and backfilling for the road is expected to get under way soon.

Street sweeper crews have been operating the motorized sweeper around the clock this week to rid the streets of cinders and dirt left from recent snows.

The sweeper will return to a 16-hour schedule as soon as the streets are cleared of all of the debris.

Edmund Wageley Is Acquitted By Jury In Shooting

Verdict Is Returned After Two-Day Trial

A Mineral County jury yesterday acquitted Edmund Wageley of criminal charges in the shooting of his brother-in-law, Lawrence Cline, after deliberating an hour and 20 minutes following a two-day trial in Circuit Court at Keyser.

The shooting occurred last November 14 in the Cline home on West Piedmont Street, Keyser, and Cline spent several weeks in the hospital while recovering from an abdominal wound.

"On November 14 I heard my wife downstairs screaming and making sounds which I cannot explain. I picked up my gun from my suitcase and started down the back steps. I thought she was being hurt badly, but didn't know what I was going to do."

Wageley said that he did not go downstairs when his wife did that morning. She had gone down to prepare breakfast for him and his son, he stated.

Hears Loud Talking

"First I heard loud talking and when my wife yelled, I thought that Lawrence Cline and Howard Cline were hurting her, since they had threatened several times in the past to do bodily harm to both me and my wife," he continued.

"When I reached the steps I stopped on the second or third step from the bottom from where I could see into the kitchen, but could not see my wife. My wife was making sounds I cannot describe and suddenly both Lawrence and Howard Cline started towards the front of the house and I believed that they had harmed my wife and were turning on me."

Wageley testified that he started firing his pistol, but was not aiming at anyone and didn't even know how many shots he had fired. He went back up the stairs and told his son to go down and stay with his mother.

Reported To Authorities

He then stated he left the house by the front stairs, carrying the pistol, and drove his car to the office of Vernon E. Rankin, Mineral County prosecuting attorney. Not finding Rankin in his office, Wageley said he then went to the office of Judge Ernest A. See and told him what had happened. Judge See called State Police, who took Wageley into custody.

Wageley, a slight man, said he had felt sure, in view of the threats that had been made against him and his wife by the Cline brothers, that they had harmed his wife.

Both Lawrence and Howard Cline were recalled to the witness stand in rebuttal by the state yesterday afternoon and each denied ever having threatened the Wageley couple or having had any trouble with them.

Judge See instructed the jury on four possible verdicts following closing arguments by Prosecuting Attorney Rankin and Herndon R. Athey, attorney for Lawrence Cline, and Howard P. Shores for the defendant.

See told the jury to return with either a verdict of malicious wounding, a felony with a penalty of two to 10 years; unlawful wounding, a felony with a penalty of one to five years; assault and battery, a misdemeanor with a jail sentence, or not guilty.

Classes Attend Trial

A sidelight of the case, which attracted wide attention resulting in an overflow crowd in the Court House during the trial, was the attendance of two Mineral County school classes.

The civics class of New Creek School, accompanied by Harold Carvey, teacher-principal, and a similar class from Fort Ashby School, under the direction of its instructor, William Marker, were at the trial.

Following the testimony the students themselves cast ballots on the evidence and both classes voted for acquittal for the defendant, their instructors stated.

Meeting Set On Route 40 Proposals

Officials To Confer With Association

A meeting has been arranged for February 19 at 9:30 a. m. in City Hall, to discuss improvement plans for U. S. Route 40 between Cumberland and Hancock.

Governor Theodore R. McKeldin and members of the Maryland State Roads Commission, accompanied by some of the commission's engineers, are coming here to discuss the proposals with members of the Route 40 Association and other interested individuals.

According to Robert Robinette, president of the Route 40 Association, the executive board of the group conferred with State Senator Robert B. Kimble last week and asked him to arrange the meeting.

Sen. Kimble advised Robinette yesterday that the Governor and other officials would be here on February 19.

Robinette explains that the Association wants to discuss the possibility of immediate improvements to U. S. Route 40 east of Cumberland.

He said his membership is aware that extensive plans for the National Highway are included in the State's 12-year road-building program. Route 40 improvements in this area are not to take place, under present programming, until the second and third four-year periods.

Route 40 Association, formed last year to publicize this area as a mecca for tourists, Robinette explains, wants the work moved ahead and the National Highway improved ahead of anything else.

Robinette said other interested citizens and groups will be welcomed to this conference. Senator Kimble also plans to attend, along with the other state officials.

Mrs. See Will Attend Meet

Mrs. See is certified by the American Association of Instructors of the Blind and holds a permanent "A" certificate which ranks her as a first-class teacher. Accredited by the State Department of Education, Mrs. See works with pre-school children and adults in Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties.

Speaking from Annapolis, where her husband, Charles M. See, is chairman of the County Delegation in the House of Delegates, Mrs. See said that she is much interested in getting in touch with parents of children with limited visibility while they are of pre-school age.

The earlier special training is started for such children, the sooner the children become accustomed to their condition.

Soil Officials Plan Meeting

Area officials of the Soil Conservation Service today are concluding a two-day stay here during which they are completing arrangements for an engineering training meeting which will be held here March 2 and 3.

Soil Conservation Service employes from Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties will convene here. Meeting with the local SCS workers are Hugh Hancock, area soil conservationist, and George E. Wheeler, engineering specialist. They serve seven Maryland counties, including Baltimore, Harford, Carroll, Frederick, Washington, Allegany and Garrett.

Hancock called attention to the fact that Martin M. Gordon, soil conservation aid here, has received a superior accomplishment step increase in recognition of outstanding work in Allegany County.

"Supervisors praise the excellent work you have done in handling the program in the area above your normal responsibility," Alvin C. Watson, acting regional director from Upper Darby, Pa., wrote Gordon. "We hope this award will in small measure recognize the work you have done," he concluded.

Kelly Arbitration Hearing Is Held

A hearing on a grievance between Local 26, Rubber Workers Union (CIO), and the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company was held early this week by G. Allen Dash, Philadelphia, umpire for the company and the union.

The dispute concerns the seniority of mold changers, core spacers and drum setters, who were moved from the Mechanical to the Production department.

Engineers To Meet

Local 37-B, Operating Engineers (AFL), will meet Saturday at 7:30 p. m. in Dairy Workers Hall.

Small Girl Dies When Trapped Under Mattress

Bonnie Wolford, 8 Months Old, Victim

An eight-months-old girl was suffocated when trapped between the mattress and the side of her bed Wednesday afternoon at the home of her parents on Route 1, Ridgeley, W. Va.

Parents of Bonnie Jean Wolford, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Wolford of Death Valley Road, said the baby had been playing in her bed and apparently had wedged herself between the mattress and the wooden side railings.

Parents Outside

Dr. Robert Brown, a Fort Ashby physician said the breath was squeezed from her body and she suffocated. The doctor was called by the parents, who discovered the child dead when they returned from outside the house.

Both parents said they were outdoors at the time and did not hear Bonnie Jean crying or struggling for breath. Mrs. Wolford had left to pay her rent and her husband was outdoors burning brush in the yard.

Funeral Saturday

Surviving besides the parents are a brother, Ronald, and a sister, Linda Sue, at home; and the child's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Wolford and Mrs. Naomi Davis, all of Points, W. Va.

A funeral service will be held Saturday at 2 p. m. at the Mellick Church, Augusta, W. Va., with Rev. Donald Wright, pastor, officiating. Interment will be in the church cemetery.

Bill Would Give Counties Share Of Utility Tax

Whitworth Will Offer Measure

A bill which would give all Maryland counties a portion of the franchise tax collected on shares of stock from public utilities located within their limits will be placed in the hopper today by Delegate Horace P. Whitworth Jr. of Westernport.

Whitworth said that his bill would give Allegany County about $15,000 a year and at no additional cost to the public utilities. His measure, he said, would provide for a more equitable distribution of taxes collected on the public utilities' shares of stock.

Illustrating the point, the Allegany County delegate observed that all such tax money now collected from the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company goes to Baltimore City, although the company has personal property in many counties. Similarly, the Potomac Edison Company tax on shares of stock all goes to Frederick County.

Whitworth's proposed bill provides specifically:

"Shares of stock in certain corporations shall be subject to assessment and taxation for ordinary taxes in the county or city in which the personal property of the corporation is located in ratio to the proportion of personal property located in the county and city to all of the personal property of the corporation in the state."

Whitworth noted that public utilities are not required to pay personal property taxes. However, the franchise tax on shares of stocks is considered to serve the same purpose.

The Westernport man said the public utilities would not oppose his bill because they will not be required to pay more taxes. Twenty-one of the 23 counties would get additional revenue through his distribution plan. Only Frederick and Wicomico counties and Baltimore City would have their revenues reduced, he added. They are the headquarters for the utilities.

All Roads Clear After Snowfall

Half an inch of snow fell in Garrett County yesterday, but State Police and State Roads Commission officials said all roads were open and in safe condition last night.

The Weather Bureau predicted possible flurries again last night, but said today probably will be partly cloudy and moderately cool.

G. Bates Chaires, district engineer for the State Roads Commission, said his crews had things under control in Garrett County early yesterday shortly after the powdery, light snow began to fall. Roads were well-cindered and about 50 per cent bare by last night, he said.

State Police said all highways in Allegany County and eastward were clear, although roads were generally wet and slippery in spots as the mercury stayed slightly below freezing in most places.

The Weather

Partly cloudy skies and moderately cool temperatures are forecast for today after yesterday's intermittent snow flurries, which whitened the ground here and there but failed to stick. The high was 33, the low, 26, and at 6 p. m., relative humidity was 86 per cent.

Novel Securities Scheme Puts Stocks On Installment Plan Basis For Small Buyers

By F. ALLAN WEATHERHOLT
News Staff Writer

It is a program for the purchase of common stocks on the installment plan, thus spreading the ownership of American industries among a broader segment of the American public.

At the same time, the idea will help people in lower and moderate income brackets to accumulate some savings and make some of their earned dollars work for them, proponents of the plan believe.

Ralph G. Smeltz, manager of the local branch of Stein Bros. and Boyce, South Liberty Street, a member of the New York Exchange, in discussing the plan said, "this idea, which met with some doubt at first, is a program that makes it almost as easy to buy stocks in Cumberland or anywhere else as it is to buy a new suit or refrigerator."

It is now possible to get into the stock market for less than 50 cents a day, and over a period of time, to accumulate a substantial holding in common stock ownership in America's industries, railroads and other enterprises.

Smeltz, who has managed the local office for several years, was formerly associated with Clarence Litzenburg in the same business here, and is remembered as manager of the Postal Telegraph office on North Liberty Street for many years. He observed, "this idea is so simple, and yet so unique, that it is a wonder it hasn't been tried before."

Practically all members of the New York Stock exchange are going along with the program and offering the public in communities wherever there is a branch office, the chance to use the installment plan for investment and stock speculation.

Business Groups Differ On Plan For Parking Lot

Pledge Support On Other Projects Here

Members of the South Cumberland Business Men's Association, and of the North Centre Street Business Men's Association disagreed on a city-owned parking lot plan last night, but both groups pledged to join together in supporting other projects which they said would be for the good of the community.

The Centre Street members also offered their help in any problems that the South End association might have. A spokesman for the South Cumberland group, during a meeting of the two groups last night, said it was the first time that a Cumberland group had offered to work with the South End business men.

Arguments Aired

The meeting was the result of a request of the North Centre Street Association to meet with the South End group and discuss the municipal parking lot plan.

Centre Street members were in favor of a city-owned parking lot, while the South End group were opposed to the idea. Both sides, however, agreed that Cumberland has a parking problem and that something should be done to eliminate it soon.

Business men of the Centre Street party pointed out that city-owned parking lots are a nationwide trend and that many cities the size of Cumberland already have such lots and are operating them at a profit.

Speakers for the South End group said they felt that a parking lot run by the city officials might lead to graft. They added that they opposed operation of any business with taxpayers' money.

Bond Issue Proposed

The uptown group came back with figures to show that the city-operated lot would cost $126,000, which would be paid for by a bond issue. They declared the project would not cost the taxpayers any money because the lot would pay for itself and in addition would bring in more revenue for the city's general fund.

On this point, the South End business men argued that the Centre Street merchants could raise the money and buy the lot themselves, thus making it a private business investment to improve members' individual businesses.

Spokesmen for the Centre Street group said they had tried to purchase the property, which they thought was centrally located as a parking lot, but that the owner had refused to sell.

The uptown group stated that business is on its way out of the city to vicinities on the outskirts. If business is to be kept in Cumberland, they said, lots must be built to keep shoppers in the city.

Agree To Work Together

The South Cumberland group, however, said parking is a proposition directly connected with business and that it is the individual businesses' responsibility to the customer, as much as keeping an adequate inventory.

The two groups did agree that they should get together on other projects and problems so that the city may have valuable assets to offer incoming industries. They pledged to work together in bringing about better roads and transportation facilities and other projects "for building a better Cumberland."

Representing the Centre Street group were James Gaffney, Edward R. Burkey, Donald W. Mason, David P. Goodfellow and Harry B. Dicks.

Judge Harris Disallows Sick Benefit

Upholds Commission Decision In Case

An opinion and order of court have been signed by Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris in Garrett County Circuit Court affirming the decisions of two state agencies in disallowing the claim of Jess Perando, a furloughed Vindex miner.

Judge Harris' order affirms the decisions of the State Industrial Accident Commission and the Medical Board.

Ii his five-page opinion the judge cited various facts in the case. He noted that Perando, now more than 60 years of age, began work in the coal mines at the age of 12 and was employed by various mining companies until 1948.

His last employer was the McNitt Coal Company of Vindex, which hired him in April 1947 to shoot and load coal. He was furloughed November 27, 1948, due to curtailment of personnel. It was not until September 23, 1952, that the Golden Clinic, Elkins, W. Va., notified Perando that he had silicosis.

The Medical Board decided the claimant did not file his claim within one year of disability and disallowed the claim. No petition for review having been filed with the State Industrial Accident Commission within the 30 days allowed by statute, the commission affirmed the Medical Board findings.

In his opinion, Judge Harris wrote in part:

"If the Medical Board and the Commission had found in favor of the claimant and the proceedings had been regular, this court would have had to reverse the award because there is not one scintilla of evidence in the record that the claimant was injuriously exposed to sand while in the employ of the McNitt Coal Company, Inc. . . . ."

New Court Clerk Is Sworn In For Washington Co.

Deputy Resigns After 15 Years

HAGERSTOWN, Feb. 4 (AP)—The Washington County Circuit Court got a clerk and lost a deputy today.

Sworn in as interim clerk to succeed J. Guy Weagley, who died, was James R. R. Black whose appointment had touched off a hassle among judges of the Fourth Judicial Circuit.

After Black was sworn in, John W. Hartle, a deputy clerk for 15 years, quit. He said he had been considering withdrawing from politics for some time and that this seemed to be "the appropriate time" to resign. He said his actions were not dictated "by any feeling whatever of jealousy or ill will."

About 50 county Republican leaders looked on as Judge George Henderson of Cumberland swore in Black, first GOP clerk in the county since 1908. A permanent clerk is to be named in the November elections.

The squabble came after Judges Henderson and Morgan C. Harris, both Cumberland Republicans, backed Black while Chief Judge Joseph D. Mish, who represents Washington County in the circuit, recommended appointment of one of two veteran deputies, Edward Heimel and Merlin Snyder, both Democrats.

Judge Mish did not attend today's ceremonies.

Tonight the Republican State Central Committee for Washington County issued a statement saying that for the first time since 1908 the GOP has "an equal opportunity" to run an experienced man against the Democrats for clerk of court.

The committee noted that Black had been successful in winning election to three terms as clerk of the county commissioners and said he would gain ample experience between now and November to seek reelection as court clerk.

"On the background of the experience thus gained, he will have an equal opportunity in the next election with any 'career' Democrat who may seek the office," the committee statement said.

Black succeeded the late Guy Weagley, whose term would have expired in November. Weagley, a Democrat and deputy clerk, had himself been appointed to the job on the death of Edward Oswald.

The committee statement noted that the two Republican judges had joined Judge Mish in naming Weagley to the office. It said, in effect, that now it was the Republicans' turn to have a chance.

The third district embraces all posts between and including Hagerstown and Friendsville.

Broad Program Mapped Here On Pigeon-Starling Menace

Court Order May Start Off Campaign

A many-pronged attack which promises to bring results against the perennial pigeon and starling menace in Cumberland was mapped out last night at a meeting sponsored by the Health Department.

Some three dozen civic leaders and owners of properties being defaced by the birds attended the meeting held in the Health Department Training Center.

Health Department officials planned to start off the drive by obtaining a court order against a downtown building termed the breeding place of many of the pigeons in an attempt to make the owners make structural changes which would keep the pests out.

An official of an area extermination firm offered to kill any of the tramp pigeons which are in the building so none of the birds will be left to breed.

Offers Free Supplies

Another extermination firm offered to furnish free supplies of a substance which will keep the birds from alighting on the wires in the worst sites.

An offer of Street Department aid in applying the substance was made by Street Commissioner Lucile W. Roeder.

The manager of one Baltimore Street store promised that at least six merchants on the street would apply the substance to their buildings.

The Allegany Racing Pigeon Club, through its president, C. A. Smith, offered to help the city in a trapping campaign to rid the city of the "tramp" pigeons.

Finds Poisoned Birds

Meanwhile, officials learned that someone has been taking positive steps to meet the menace.

Dr. Hixon T. Bowersox, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, said the church recently spent $75 to remove dead pigeons which had fallen between the church and an adjoining building, and said the birds had been poisoned.

He pointed to one of the answers when he said the next church the congregation erects "will be flush."

Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, promised the cooperation of the department, and said a combination of methods will be needed to correct the nuisance.

Thomas B. Finan, city attorney, said the city has the power to make property owners abate the nuisance, including the elimination of the source, but said cooperation would be tried first.

Suggest Methods

He said the city cannot assume the responsibility until some practical method within the city's scope is found. One way, he added, might be the installation of supersonic oscillating devices which are still in the experimental stage.

H. D. Barber, co-chairman of last year's Clean Up Drive, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, said the substance which was used so effectively on Rosenbaum's store should be given further use.

Killing is the solution, according to R. E. Dean, of Hygenic Sanitation Company. He said other methods, such as the gooey substance, are good but not permanent.

L. E. Sellman, of Vogel Ritt Company, suggested use of an anti-roost compound, screening of buildings, cleaning and trapping.

Anthony Saeli, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said the problem can be solved by men of good will working together, and urged that the offers be accepted.

Law Firm Moves

The law firm of Cobey, Carscaden and Gilchrist has moved its offices to a suite in the First Federal Savings and Loan Association building on Baltimore Street.

Crews To Shoot Through Rock To Lay Sewer Line

Street Department crews will resort to dynamite today to complete the construction of a 3,000-foot sewer line on Bedford Street north of Fectig Avenue.

Workers hit solid rock yesterday as the line reached the 1800-block of the street, and officials said it will be necessary to shoot holes in the rock in order to lay the sewer line.

A 30-foot roadway was provided for the stretch of about 500 feet. It will get a temporary surface of cinders and gravel.

Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, street commissioner, said slate from the airport will later be applied to the area after water and sewer lines are laid. There are already about eight homes on the street and two more are to be built soon.

Another crew has been busy at Riverside Park, clearing the area which is to provide the city approach to the new bridge between here and Ridgeley. All of the city work is complete, and backfilling for the road is expected to get under way soon.

Street sweeper crews have been operating the motorized sweeper around the clock this week to rid the streets of cinders and dirt left from recent snows.

The sweeper will return to a 16-hour schedule as soon as the streets are cleared of all of the debris.

Edmund Wageley Is Acquitted By Jury In Shooting

Verdict Is Returned After Two-Day Trial

A Mineral County jury yesterday acquitted Edmund Wageley of criminal charges in the shooting of his brother-in-law, Lawrence Cline, after deliberating an hour and 20 minutes following a two-day trial in Circuit Court at Keyser.

The shooting occurred last November 14 in the Cline home on West Piedmont Street, Keyser, and Cline spent several weeks in the hospital while recovering from an abdominal wound.

Wageley took the stand in his own defense yesterday morning and told the court:

"On November 14 I heard my wife downstairs screaming and making sounds which I cannot explain. I picked up my gun from my suitcase and started down the back steps. I thought she was being hurt badly, but didn't know what I was going to do."

Wageley said that he did not go downstairs when his wife did that morning. She had gone down to prepare breakfast for him and his son, he stated.

Hears Loud Talking

"First I heard loud talking and when my wife yelled, I thought that Lawrence Cline and Howard Cline were hurting her, since they had threatened several times in the past to do bodily harm to both me and my wife," he continued.

"When I reached the steps I stopped on the second or third step from the bottom from where I could see into the kitchen, but could not see my wife. My wife was making sounds I cannot describe and suddenly both Lawrence and Howard Cline started towards the front of the house and I believed that they had harmed my wife and were turning on me."

Wageley testified that he started firing his pistol, but was not aiming at anyone and didn't even know how many shots he had fired. He went back up the stairs and told his son to go down and stay with his mother.

Reported To Authorities

He then stated he left the house by the front stairs, carrying the pistol, and drove his car to the office of Vernon E. Rankin, Mineral County prosecuting attorney. Not finding Rankin in his office, Wageley said he then went to the office of Judge Ernest A. See and told him what had happened. Judge See called State Police, who took Wageley into custody.

Wageley, a slight man, said he had felt sure, in view of the threats that had been made against him and his wife by the Cline brothers, that they had harmed his wife.

Both Lawrence and Howard Cline were recalled to the witness stand in rebuttal by the state yesterday afternoon and each denied ever having threatened the Wageley couple or having had any trouble with them.

Judge See instructed the jury on four possible verdicts following closing arguments by Prosecuting Attorney Rankin and Herndon R. Athey, attorney for Lawrence Cline, and Howard P. Shores for the defendant.

See told the jury to return with either a verdict of malicious wounding, a felony with a penalty of two to 10 years; unlawful wounding, a felony with a penalty of one to five years; assault and battery, a misdemeanor with a jail sentence, or not guilty.

Classes Attend Trial

A sidelight of the case, which attracted wide attention resulting in an overflow crowd in the Court House during the trial, was the attendance of two Mineral County school classes.

The civics class of New Creek School, accompanied by Harold Carvey, teacher-principal, and a similar class from Fort Ashby School, under the direction of its instructor, William Marker, were at the trial.

Kelly Arbitration Hearing Is Held

A hearing on a grievance between Local 26, Rubber Workers Union (CIO), and the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company was held early this week by G. Allen Dash, Philadelphia, umpire for the company and the union.

The dispute concerns the seniority of mold changers, core spacers and drum setters, who were moved from the Mechanical to the Production department.

Meeting Set On Route 40 Proposals

Officials To Confer With Association

A meeting has been arranged for February 19 at 9:30 a. m. in City Hall, to discuss improvement plans for U. S. Route 40 between Cumberland and Hancock.

Governor Theodore R. McKeldin and members of the Maryland State Roads Commission, accompanied by some of the commission's engineers, are coming here to discuss the proposals with members of the Route 40 Association and other interested individuals.

According to Robert Robinette, president of the Route 40 Association, the executive board of the group conferred with State Senator Robert B. Kimble last week and asked him to arrange the meeting.

Sen. Kimble advised Robinette yesterday that the Governor and other officials would be here on February 19.

Robinette explains that the Association wants to discuss the possibility of immediate improvements to U. S. Route 40 east of Cumberland.

He said his membership is aware that extensive plans for the National Highway are included in the State's 12-year road-building program. Route 40 improvements in this area are not to take place, under present programming, until the second and third four-year periods.

Route 40 Association, formed last year to publicize this area as a mecca for tourists, Robinette explains, wants the work moved ahead and the National Highway improved ahead of anything else.

Robinette said other interested citizens and groups will be welcomed to this conference. Senator Kimble also plans to attend, along with the other state officials.

Mrs. See Will Attend Meet

Mrs. Margielea See of this city will attend a special meeting of instructors of pre-school blind children at the Maryland Workshop for the Blind in Baltimore today.

This special seminar will be conducted by a representative from the American Foundation for the Blind.

Mrs. See is certified by the American Association of Instructors of the Blind and holds a permanent "A" certificate which ranks her as a first-class teacher. Accredited by the State Department of Education, Mrs. See works with pre-school children and adults in Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties.

Speaking from Annapolis, where her husband, Charles M. See, is chairman of the County Delegation in the House of Delegates, Mrs. See said that she is much interested in getting in touch with parents of children with limited visibility while they are of pre-school age.

The earlier special training is started for such children, the sooner the children become accustomed to their condition.

Area officials of the Soil Conservation Service today are concluding a two-day stay here during which they are completing arrangements for an engineering training meeting which will be held here March 2 and 3.

Soil Conservation Service employes from Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties will convene here. Meeting with the local SCS workers are Hugh Hancock, area soil conservationist, and George E. Small Girl Dies When Trapped Under Mattress

An eight-months-old girl was suffocated when trapped between the mattress and the side of her bed Wednesday afternoon at the home of her parents on Route 1, Ridgeley, W. Va.

Parents of Bonnie Jean Wolford, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Wolford of Death Valley Road, said the baby had been playing in her bed and apparently had wedged herself between the mattress and the wooden side railings.

Parents Outside

Dr. Robert Brown, a Fort Ashby physician said the breath was squeezed from her body and she suffocated. The doctor was called by the parents, who discovered the child dead when they returned from outside the house.

Both parents said they were outdoors at the time and did not hear Bonnie Jean crying or struggling for breath. Mrs. Wolford had left to pay her rent and her husband was outdoors burning brush in the yard.

Funeral Saturday

Surviving besides the parents are a brother, Ronald, and a sister, Linda Sue, at home; and the child's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Wolford and Mrs. Naomi Davis, all of Points, W. Va.

A funeral service will be held Saturday at 2 p. m. at the Mellick Church, Augusta, W. Va., with Rev. Donald Wright, pastor, officiating. Interment will be in the church cemetery.

Bill Would Give Counties Share Of Utility Tax

Whitworth Will Offer Measure

A bill which would give all Maryland counties a portion of the franchise tax collected on shares of stock from public utilities located within their limits will be placed in the hopper today by Delegate Horace P. Whitworth Jr. of Westernport.

Whitworth said that his bill would give Allegany County about $15,000 a year and at no additional cost to the public utilities. His measure, he said, would provide for a more equitable distribution of taxes collected on the public utilities' shares of stock.

Illustrating the point, the Allegany County delegate observed that all such tax money now collected from the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company goes to Baltimore City, although the company has personal property in many counties. Similarly, the Potomac Edison Company tax on shares of stock all goes to Frederick County.

"Shares of stock in certain corporations shall be subject to assessment and taxation for ordinary taxes in the county or city in which the personal property of the corporation is located in ratio to the proportion of personal property located in the county and city to all of the personal property of the corporation in the state."

Whitworth noted that public utilities are not required to pay personal property taxes. However, the franchise tax on shares of stocks is considered to serve the same purpose.

The Westernport man said the public utilities would not oppose his bill because they will not be required to pay more taxes. Twenty-one of the 23 counties would get additional revenue through his distribution plan. Only Frederick and Wicomico counties and Baltimore City would have their revenues reduced, he added. They are the headquarters for the utilities.

Novel Securities Scheme Puts Stocks On Installment Plan Basis For Small Buyers

By F. ALLAN WEATHERHOLT
News Staff Writer

A plan to give more salary and wage earners a stake in the free enterprise system has been evolved by the New York Stock Exchange.

It is a program for the purchase of common stocks on the installment plan, thus spreading the ownership of American industries among a broader segment of the American public.

At the same time, the idea will help people in lower and moderate income brackets to accumulate some savings and make some of their earned dollars work for them, proponents of the plan believe.

Ralph G. Smeltz, manager of the local branch of Stein Bros. and Boyce, South Liberty Street, a member of the New York Exchange, in discussing the plan said, "this idea, which met with some doubt at first, is a program that makes it almost as easy to buy stocks in Cumberland or anywhere else as it is to buy a new suit or refrigerator."

It is now possible to get into the stock market for less than 50 cents a day, and over a period of time, to accumulate a substantial holding in common stock ownership in America's industries, railroads and other enterprises.

Smeltz, who has managed the local office for several years, was formerly associated with Clarence Litzenburg in the same business here, and is remembered as manager of the Postal Telegraph office on North Liberty Street for many years. He observed, "this idea is so simple, and yet so unique, that it is a wonder it hasn't been tried before."

Practically all members of the New York Stock exchange are going along with the program and offering the public in communities wherever there is a branch office, the chance to use the installment plan for investment and stock speculation.
